

Georgia Strait Coho Spared If Run Light

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Depending on the salmon run now just getting started, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis may close Georgia Strait to both commercial and sport fishermen. This was his explanation of an exchange that took place in the Commons Wednesday between himself and New Democratic Leader Tommy Douglas.

"Nothing is decided yet," he insisted outside the House. "We'll have to play it like a piano, by ear."

"If the run is good and enough, fish can escape to the breeding grounds. Then perhaps there won't have to be any closing of the strait to either sport or commercial people.

"If not, then we will have to widen the areas of prohibition around the south end of Vancouver Island."

Following was the exchange between Davis and Douglas.

DOUGLAS: "May I ask the minister of fisheries whether he intends to ban fishing for coho salmon in the Georgia Strait to commercial fishermen during July and August?"

DAVIS: "This matter is under active consideration because of the concurrent demand by the sports fishermen, but I am not prepared at this moment to say what decision will ultimately be made."

DOUGLAS: "Is the minister considering applying any such closure to the sports fishermen or is it to be applied only to commercial fishermen?"

DAVIS: Consideration will be given to both sides and to the claim of both parties."

Conservative Fisheries critic Lloyd Crouse, a Maritimes MP, had another question about West Coast fishing.

CROUSE: "Has the minister any report to make on his recent visit to British Columbia and especially on his proposal that the Japanese be permitted to harvest dogfish in West Coast waters to protect our salmon from this predator?"

DAVIS: "The visitors from Japan are men from the technical level. They were not prepared to discuss policy, but we have some hope we can develop a trade with the Japanese in this surplus fish."

At this point, Newfoundland Conservative MP J. A. McGrath used the dogfish to stick a gaff into B.C. Liberal Ray Perrault.

There have been strained feelings between the two who are near-neighbors.

"In view of the interest taken in fishing matters by the honorable member for Burnaby-Seymour," suggested McGrath, "would the minister consider changing the name of this fish from the big-mouth dogfish to the Burnaby cod?"

Everybody except Perrault guffawed at what was very obviously an "in" joke with Parliament.

The report, sponsored by the non-political Institute of Race Relations, is based on five years of study and research in Britain, which has absorbed more than 1,000,000 colored subjects from colonies and former colonies.

The report's most startling conclusion is that re-establishment of compulsory national service for Britain's young men to harness their energies is "well worth considering." The draft in Britain was discontinued in 1960.

Boarding Blamed On Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States Coast Guard and fisheries officials Wednesday blamed a Canadian customs officer for the seven-hour detention of a Canadian fish boat June 26.

Robert Simpson, acting area director of fisheries at the U.S. bureau of commercial fisheries in Juneau, Alaska, said in a telephone interview that the 12-mile limit had nothing to do with the boarding.

He said the Canadian boat was boarded because

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Wednesday announced closure of its Kelsey Bay Logging division as British Columbia's labor troubles crept into the woods.

A company spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said the division on Vancouver Island was shut down "until further notice" because of a persistent slowdown by employees.

The shutdown affects some 300 men.

The spokesman said at issue is the union's insistence that employees receive pay for the Dominion Day holiday "which they are not entitled to since they were engaged in another wildcat strike at that time."

"The slowdown has reduced production in recent days by about 40 per cent normal," the spokesman said. The company viewed it as "another form of wildcat strike."

He said the employees, members of the International Woodworkers of America, have so far this year staged nine "wildcat strikes" against company operations.

He said the company is prepared to talk to the union at any time "provided it receives an assurance from the union that employees are prepared to resume work in a normal manner."

Meanwhile Wednesday 6,600 employees of the British Columbia Telephone Co. announced they will increase strike activity.

WILL BE WIDENED

Bert Johns, general secretary of the union's plant division, said the strike will be "widened."

Mr. Johns said in a statement, "We are asking the B.C. Federation of Labor to declare 'hot' telephone conduit now being installed in commercial and industrial construction projects."

"Such a declaration would mean that no further telephone conduit would be installed until this strike is settled."

PRESIDENT BLAMED

Mr. Johns blamed J. Ernest Richardson, president of B.C. Tel, for making the action necessary. He said Mr. Richardson's "stubborn refusal to negotiate with the union" was partly responsible for the continuation of the strike.

Employees seek a 32 per cent wage increase over two years on present rates of $1.45 to $5.10 an hour. The company has endorsed a conciliation board recommendation for a 17 per cent hike.

Meantime, about 200 workers refused to cross picket lines

Moon Countdown Beginning Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the countdown set to start today, Apollo 11 astronauts Wednesday rehearsed how they will prepare to step on to the moon.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr., who hope to become the first men to stroll on the lunar surface, worked in a landing craft trainer learning how to put on their oxygen-filled backpacks.

As they labored, their Apollo 11 copilot, Michael Collins, worked in a command ship trainer practicing what he will do circling the moon alone in the mother ship while his two colleagues explore below.

The three astronauts also met with experts from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reviewing computer navigation programs designed to steer Apollo 11 automatically on a perfect course to and from the moon and guide Armstrong and Aldrin to a precision landing on the surface July 20.

Discussing problems that may arise with Apollo 11's complex 363-foot-tall Saturn V rocket and spacecraft combination, a space agency official said the "kind of accuracies we're dealing with are extremely precise" in navigation computer programs. For example, when the upper stage of the Saturn rocket ignites in earth orbit to fling Apollo 11 toward lunar orbit, "an uncertainty of just eight-tenths of a mile per hour could cause the spacecraft to impact the moon."

Pesticide Residue Still at Safe Level

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that recent surveys have not indicated any dangerous level of DDT or other pesticides in Canadian food.

Munro said the question is under review but no decision has been reached on such a study.

Health Chief Praises Safety Record, Gains

'World Can't Afford DDT Ban'

BOSTON (UPI) — The head of the World Health Organization said Wednesday the world cannot afford to outlaw DDT, insecticides until economically feasible substitutes are found.

Director-General M. G. Candau acknowledged international concern over evidence that some insecticides harm certain wildlife species, but praised the 20-year record of DDT's safety to man.

Candau, a Brazilian, also urged W.H.O. members to keep the door open to all nations irrespective of politics or ideology.

He made his remarks in an address to W.H.O.'s 22nd annual health assembly to formally introduce his annual report on W.H.O. activities around the world.

Candau said "DDT has been instrumental in controlling some of the most important vector-borne diseases of man. The concept of malaria eradication rests completely on its continued use."

He said DDT's "low cost makes it irreplaceable in public health at the present time. Limitations on its use would give rise to grave health problems in the majority of the developing countries."

The W.H.O. chief executive called for worldwide co-operation of all nations in health programs but acknowledged pressure to bring in non-member governments has slackened. The communist regimes of China, East Germany, North Vietnam and North Korea are the most conspicuous absentees.

"The movement towards universal membership of states has apparently abated but will undoubtedly revive, and at any moment," Candau said.

of an apparent violation of International Halibut Commission regulations requiring that a boat's licence be validated by customs authorities for fishing in a particular area.

"However it was later discovered that the boat had gone through Canadian customs—in Prince Rupert we believe—but some officials there hadn't validated it correctly," Mr. Simpson said.

He said it took seven hours for the messages to go to and from Juneau to check the licence validation.

"The Canadian captain was probably upset and maybe misunderstood the reason for the boarding," he said.

Capt. Hugh MacLean said in Vancouver earlier his halibut boat the Shirley Rose was boarded and detained for an alleged violation of the U.S. 12-mile limit.

"The 12-mile limit might have been mentioned during discussions with the captain but he was certainly not told that that was the reason for the boat being apprehended," Mr. Simpson said.

Capt. MacLean said that after standing by for seven hours, he was ordered to pick up his fishing gear and leave the spot, about nine miles offshore of the Shumagin Islands, 300 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska.

Both U.S. and Canadian officials say there is a gentleman's agreement allowing the other's fishermen to fish up to within three miles of the Canadian or U.S. coast.

In Vancouver, commenting on the U.S. explanation, Homer Stevens, secretary of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union said the explanation was "phony."

"They are making up a phoney story now to cover up their actions," Mr. Stevens said.

"How would the U.S. know what boats had cleared customs in Canada?"

Neither union nor Kaiser officials said what started the walkout.

BERLIN (AP) — East German border guards discovered and arrested a young woman hiding in a crate as she tried to make her way to West Berlin aboard a truck. Hearing Aids On Trial

VICTORIA: In the past a great deal of criticism has been leveled against the hearing aid industry. This has been due primarily to high prices, poor service and the fact that a free trial period was practically non-existent. In many cases a person dissatisfied with the hearing aid was unable to obtain either satisfaction or refund.

This situation has now been corrected by a company manufacturing hearing aids in Victoria.

By dealing directly with the manufacturer a saving of fifty per cent is realized on a high quality hearing aid with two weeks free trial, thus eliminating cause for dissatisfaction.

About 25 per cent of Norway's land is covered by forests.

One research project disclosed that "the degree of prejudice in the population is quite considerable," but "the degree of tolerance in the population is even higher."

JOB DISCRIMINATION
"The one fact that stands out above all others," the report says, "is that throughout the field of employment, discrimination is widespread and pervasive."

Other recommendations:

● The inclusion of lectures on race relations in police training courses.

● Admission to Britain in the future on the following basis: 1. Temporary skilled employment. 2. Seasonal or temporary work. 3. Entry for settlement. 4. As students. 5. As visitors with no numerical limit laid down in law.

● Overhaul of current citizenship law.

states that lack of a coherent immigration policy "has been one of the main factors in the deterioration of race relations in Britain."

After a decade of practically uncontrolled immigration of colored persons from the West Indies, India, Pakistan and Africa, Britain abruptly limited the number of immigration work vouchers to 7,500 a year in 1965.

PREDICTION
The survey predicts that by 1986 the non-white population will be between 2,074,000 and 2,373,000. The total population of the United Kingdom is about 55,000,000.

The report recommends repeal of a section of the 1965 Race Relations Act that makes it a criminal offence to incite others to racial hatred by speech or writing. The report contends that the law "comes close to encroaching upon freedom of expression."

Trend Mixed In Car Sales

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. had increased sales in the first six months of this year compared with the similar 1968 period, but those of Chrysler Canada Ltd. declined.

GM said it sold a total of 205,342 cars and trucks in the first half of this year, compared with 178,525 a year ago.

Its sales this year included 104,161 North American-type cars, 35,084 trucks and 6,078 British-built cars. Last year's sales were made up in the first half of 141,492 North American cars, 28,296 trucks and 8,737 British cars.

Sharp Tells House

Ottawa Backs Thant Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday Canada is opposed to shipment of arms into the troubled Middle East.

Answering Communist questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Sharp said Canada supports United Nations Secretary-General U Thant's appeal for an end to all military action between the Arabs and Israelis, and a cease-fire.

Stanfield asked what specifically Canada is doing to improve the situation. Would it call for an international embargo on arms shipments to the two sides?

The minister replied that Canada itself is not supplying arms to either side and opposes such shipments. He didn't think Canada could do more than support the pleas of U Thant and others for a cessation of hostilities.

Stanfield said Canada appears to be doing nothing besides endorsing U Thant's position. He asked what Canada's policy is on a settlement imposed by the great powers.

Sharp replied Canada is working as effectively as it can with the governments in the area concerned, trying to get them to support the peace efforts of Sweden's Gunnar Jarring, U Thant's special representative in the area.

Answering another question from Stanfield, the external affairs minister said he hopes to visit the Middle East but he didn't say when.

GIs Ambushed

Six-Hour Attack Drives Viets Back

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese regulars using rocket-propelled grenades Wednesday ambushed an American truck convoy 65 miles northwest of Saigon killing four GIs and wounding 11. An American counterblow killed 22 of the attackers.

U.S. military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese used a land mine, automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades in an effort to stop the convoy.

SIX-HOUR PUSH

They said armoured units guarding the trucks counter-attacked the communist troops with tanks, armored personnel carriers, fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery and after six hours finally forced the North Vietnamese to pull back.

The North Vietnamese force was identified as members of the 7th army. The U.S. 1st cavalry division convoy was getting bread for breakfast. At least 12 houses were destroyed in Binh province and was escorted by armored elements of the U.S. 11th armored cavalry regiment.

American military sources in Saigon said, meanwhile, that the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into South Vietnam last month dropped to its lowest level since the U.S. military buildup began in 1965.

Communist forces stepped up their shelling attacks throughout South Vietnam Wednesday night and this morning, pounding at least 29 targets with rockets, mortars or recoilless rifle fire. Fourteen of the shelling attacks occurred Wednesday night.

Shortly after 7 a.m. today, about 10 107 mm rockets smashed into a South Vietnamese army dependent housing area near Bien Hoa, 14 miles northeast of Saigon.

Spokesmen said six civilians were killed and 14 wounded in the attack. They said four of the six were children who were out getting bread for breakfast. At least 12 houses were destroyed in Binh province and was

Soviet Warships Steam Off U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States defence department said Wednesday three guided missile ships and two submarines are among the group of Soviet vessels heading along the U.S. coast for a visit to Cuba.

The Russian naval group is due to visit Cuba between July 20 and 27, the first time a Soviet squadron has approached so close to the United States.

The department said at last report one group of Soviet ships consisting of a guided missile cruiser, guided missile destroyer and guided missile frigate was located 600 miles east of Charleston, S.C.

Another group including two submarines and a submarine tender was 720 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla.

This would put the Soviet ships near Bermuda.

Soviet fleet oilers have joined the two groups from time to time, spokesmen said.

The Soviets announced the Cuba visit after President Nixon said he planned to visit Communist Romania in August.

Black Power Leader Can't Enter Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuters) — A militant United States Black Power leader Wednesday was denied entry to Bermuda, where the first Caribbean-North American regional Black Power conference opens today.

Officials of the British colony said Omar Ahmed first arrived here Tuesday but was turned back when airport immigration officials spotted his name on a list of undesirable.

Ahmed again attempted Wednesday to enter Bermuda posing as a clergyman but he was recognized and put back on the plane for New York.

Informed sources said Maluma Ron Karenga, head of the central Black Power planning committee in New York, is also on the list of prohibited aliens. Karenga is scheduled to speak at the opening session today of the conference.

Soviet Pressure Spurred Egypt?

By JOE ALEX MORRIS Jr.
(Associated Press Service)

BONN — Egypt may have recognized East Germany out of fear that the Soviet Union would cut off future arms deliveries if she did not, a West German spokesman said Wednesday.

Suez Guns Blaze

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian gunners exchanged artillery fire across the Suez Canal all day Wednesday. The army said one Israeli soldier was killed and five were wounded in the firing.

Along the Jordan River cease-fire line, Arab guerrillas opened bazooka and light-arms fire on an Israeli patrol, 30 miles north of the Dead Sea, and wounded two soldiers, the army announced.

The military announced also that Arab saboteurs blasted a war memorial to Australian and New Zealand Second World War dead and slightly injured two Israeli civilians.

"There is information that the Soviet Union had made further weapons deliveries to Egypt dependent on the recognition of East Berlin," deputy government spokesman Conrad Ahlers told a press conference here. He did not elaborate.

Government leaders tended to credit growing Soviet influence in the Arab world for the step, which was met with regret but not surprise here. It makes Egypt the fifth Arab state and the sixth in the non-communist world to recognize East Germany recently.

Both Bonn leaders agreed on Egypt's decision, which was relayed here Tuesday by the Italian embassy in Cairo. Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt on retaliation to recognition of East Germany.

Germany have no freedom of choice. But this claim has eroded in a major difference of opinion between Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt on retaliation to recognition of East Germany.

was the result of pressure from Moscow and that no more economic aid nor trade concessions would be forthcoming.

The decision by Cairo to recognize the East German government far outweighs in importance similar steps taken by other countries recently, notably Cambodia and four other Arab states: Iraq, Syria, the Sudan and South Yemen. Despite broken diplomatic relations ever since Bonn recognized Israel in 1965, West Germany has never altered its thinking that Egypt was the most important Arab state. Close to $250,000,000 in capital aid and credit guarantees were given to that country, with the result that for years Nasser resisted East Berlin demands for full diplomatic ties.

The immediate reaction here was to tie the step to Nasser's need for Soviet arms in the steadily heightening confrontation with Israel and also to his alleged concern that no Arab state overtakes his image as the region's leading progressive.

Power Struggle

IF THE DEBATE on closure rules now cutting into MPs' summer vacation fails to attract much public interest, it will be because the subject appears both complicated and of no direct effect on the everyday life of Canadians. But in fact it is a debate worth watching, and worth the expression of public opinion, because in a way it is a struggle for power not between parties, but between government and Parliament.

In the first round, it may be said that Parliament won.

It was pressure from a group of Liberal backbenchers, according to Ottawa reports, that combined with Opposition protests brought about the withdrawal of a motion on the rules which the government sought to substitute for the recommendations of the Commons-procedures committee.

The difference in the proposals was not great.

The committee, instructed by Parliament to bring in the report on rules, recommended three ways of limiting debate, itemized as Rule 75-A, B and C. Under 75-A, where all House leaders of the parties agreed, a minister could move an allocation of time for one or more stages of a bill and the motion would be decided upon at once. Under 75-B, where a majority of House leaders agreed, a minister could move a time allocation and the debate on this motion would last not more than two hours. Under 75-C, with no agreement among House leaders, a minister could give notice of his intention to move closure on any stage of a bill; two hours would be allowed for debate on the motion, and the time allotted for any stage would be not less than one sitting day.

The motion which the government sought to substitute for the committee's report would have altered 75-B to require that the majority include the House leader of the government party.

Mr. G. W. Baldwin, Conservative MP for Peace River, had this to say about the government's action: "The committee structure was to have been the foundation of the new order through which the just society would be ushered into this country. Here we find an important committee report being ignored. Logic, reason, persuasion, have gone out of the window because the prime minister, the president of the Privy Council and their colleagues have accepted the rule of the bulldozer. From now on, apparently, the rules belong to the government, and the House has no interest in them..."

Apparently the Liberal backbenchers serving on the committee were of a similar mind — and sufficiently so to persuade their House leader and the prime minister to avoid the embarrassment of bulldozing at the moment.

It may be a hopeful omen for the main debate. Here the contention chiefly is over the third method of limiting discussion. The objection from the Opposition is that 75-C would make it possible for the government to cut short from the beginning the debate on a complicated, controversial issue; to cut it to a few days, far too short a period for the public or perhaps even the Opposition MPs and the backbenchers on the government side to grasp all the implications.

One may doubt that any government mindful of its re-election chances would so arrogantly push through any measure. But a government that has shown itself to have so little regard for Parliament as the present administration should not be given the opportunity; none should. We live in an era of almost instant communication, but that does not mean instant comprehension. Liberal parliamentarians as well as the rest should realize that the power the government seeks from them is the power to act before they, or their constituents, know what it really is doing. A longer period of notice of closure, where there is no agreement, is clearly needed.

Bus Losses

THE ANNUAL REPORT of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority referred to "substantial" losses in operating the Vancouver and Victoria bus systems, but without specifying what those losses were last year. Surely the public is entitled to know.

The fear of being burdened with the cost of operating these services no longer haunts the municipalities as it once did. At the 1968 session of the legislature Premier Bennett appeared to recognize and accept two arguments concerning B.C. Hydro's continued operation of the buses.

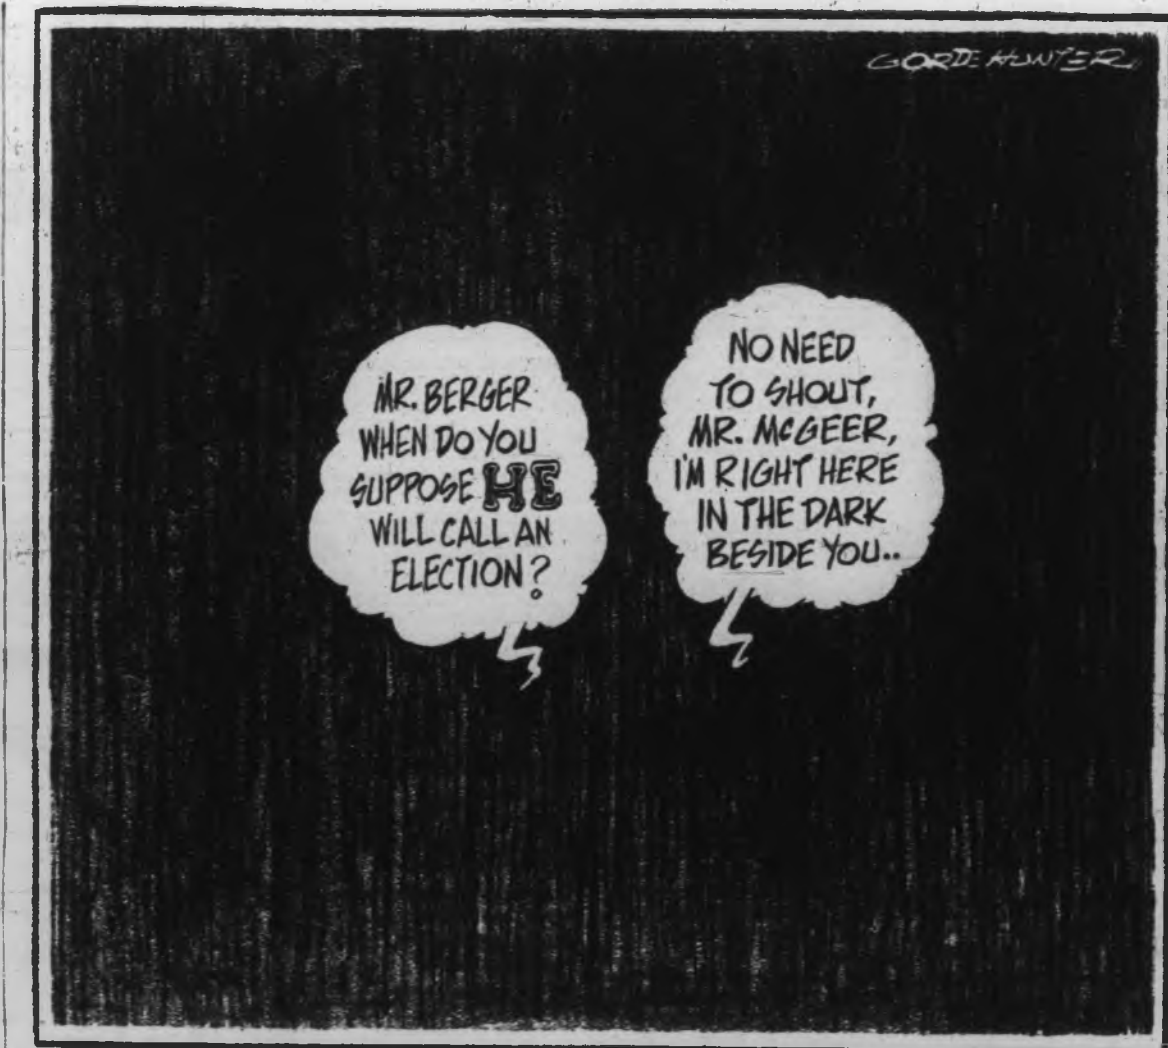

These were, first, that the province had a responsibility for the well-being of the cities, transportation being one of the most important ingredients; second, that it was fair that Hydro should take some loss on public transit in its most profitable power markets. The premier announced a $1,000,000 subsidy for the buses, equating it with the $1,000,000 subsidy toward rural electrification. This year both have been doubled.

When the subsidy was announced, however, the losses were said to be running between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 a year, and though there has been an increase in use of the buses, costs undoubtedly have risen more sharply.

To wonder what the situation is now is not idle curiosity. The government has appeared to accept a greater role in urban development. But the cities, for the sake of their own planning, must be fully aware of the trend in public transportation costs. "Substantial" is hardly a sufficient description of the extent of last year's deficit.

"We're both in the same business, except my friend here is neater."

The Flap over the Loyal Regiment

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

SOMETHING funny — if it wasn't all a bit sad — happened on the way to the Dominion Day celebrations here in the national capital.

It sent Armed Forces Headquarters into such a blue funk and flap as hasn't happened since Paul Hellyer "unified" the services.

It was the report from Quebec City that from Camp Valcartier, the armed forces base near the provincial capital, an official letter was being sent to the British Army's Loyal Regiment, asking that it cancel a scheduled summer visit there.

Reason behind it, explained the Quebec City reports, was that 210 years ago, the Loyal Regiment, known to history as "Wolfe's Own," had helped storm the heights to the Plains of Abraham, defeat Montreal and wrest Canada from French possession.

Old wounds still rankled, memories were long, so please forget the whole thing, an official Canadian forces spokesman in Quebec City was quoted as requesting, in a letter, to the British Loyalists.

Incredible? Not these days.

In from London came incredulous cables of enquiry to Canadian representatives of Britain's national newspapers on Fleet Street, and who knows, perhaps to CGHQ itself.

It had to be something like that to cause the flap out of which headquarters took the long holiday Dominion Day weekend to shakily emerge.

To Brigadier-General Louis Bourgeois, chief of armed forces public relations, fell the task of trying to tell it the way headquarters thought Canadians might buy it.

It was the old soft-sell of the compromise, a saw-off between Ottawa and Quebec City.

The British Loyalists, actually the North Lancashires, come to Canada at the end of this month for some summer training at Camp Petawawa in Eastern Ontario.

Their commanding officer is an old staff college buddy of the officer commanding Quebec City's Camp Valcartier, Brigadier General Roy Reid.

On instructions from his own OC, still in London, Major B. G. Phesey, the North Lancashires' liaison officer and a one-man advance party already posted to Petawawa, wrote General Roy, saying his old pal thought it would be nice if he could send the regimental band to Quebec City for a spot of concert playing on the boardwalk and perhaps for a bit of touring for the changing of the guard at the Citadel.

The Quebec City newspapers got wind of it, and up went the balloon. Onto the news wires went the reports, described later by CFHQ here as "false."

Washington Calling

End of the Nixon Balancing Act

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE famous high-wire balancing act of the great president, Richard M. Nixon, is ended. It was an impressive act while it lasted, confusing both friends on the right and doubters on the left.

The Nixon administration in a whole series of moves has come down on the conservative side. The president won the nomination and the election with a Southern strategy. He is following a Southern strategy today, the appeal being to the entrenched hard liners of the South.

These are the men who control the powerful committees in Congress. They can smooth the way for Nixon programs and the election with a group of young Canadians trekking to California to support the Nixon administration in the House from the South next year, may be the goal of the president as pragmatist.

The on-again, off-again battle over the appointment of Dr. John M. Knowles to a key position in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, that the North Lancashires was being SOS'd to for goodness sake forget it, and the flap was well and truly on.

It took the Dominion Day weekend for CFHQ to shake off the panic with the explanation from General Bourgeois that General Roy now (after days of delay) was writing his old buddy-buddy, the CO of the North Lancashires, that the band would be "indeed welcome" in Quebec City — as rubber-necking tourists, but not as musicians specializing in those great, old, slow-beat British marches.

For to have "Wolfe's Own" play for the changing of the guard by Quebec's own "Van Doan" at the capital, Montreal's old fortress of defeat back in 1759, might be a bit much.

So come and have fun, but please, no parades, essentially the message that General Roy transmitted to Major Phesey and the British Loyalists, with the prayerful hope that this diplomatic dipso-do was least likely to offend everyone's sensibilities.

It was all in the name, explained General Bourgeois smoothly in his soft-sell voice, of not doing anything that might excite the separatist bomb-squads.

But wasn't it Prime Minister Trudeau himself just the other day who warned that a hard line had better be taken pretty soon "with these guys who want to throw bombs?"

Apparently, National Defence Headquarters wasn't listening.

may have been only partly serious and which was quickly shushed. "After all, we had to fulfil somewhere on the return trip." While the meaning of this transitory gesture is still uncertain, it is being widely read as notice of rebuke to Moscow.

Given the hard-nosed opposition to any reduction in the barriers around East-West trade, the stop in Bucharest has little substantive meaning. It is as though Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny should make a state visit to Peru, with the Peruvians defying Bob Kennedy to the north. The whole journey — six countries in 12 days — is the script for a television spectacular that will fade in significance as the image fades from the screen.

Having delayed completion of a negotiating position on the nuclear arms talks with the Soviet Union for six months, the White House has appointed an advisory commission likely to be dominated by hard liners. William J. Casey, chairman of a committee propagandizing for the antiballistic missile, and Paul Nitze, former deputy secretary of defence and a highly articulate advocate of ABM, are conspicuous. They are offset to some degree by Cyrus Vance, James R. Killian and other moderates opposed to ABM. Yet, the net effect of the commission, if it has any effect at all, could be to fence in Director Gerard C. Smith of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Now all of this may add up to the pragmatist's prescription for winning in the congressional elections next year and consolidating a victory stance for 1972. The United States is moving to the right, alienated by both black and white extremists, and nothing can check the trend that Mr. Nixon, as an astute opportunist, knows so well how to exploit.

Young Rebels with Imported Causes

By FRANK LOWE

WHILE I know I should, somehow I find our young rebels hard to take seriously. I mean, it isn't as though they were rebels without a cause, it is because generally they are rebels with a made-in-U.S.A. cause.

So when I see the kids protesting against such things as too much Americanization of the Canadian way of life, I find it difficult to take them seriously.

After all, they seldom take up a cause until it has been tested in the U.S.A. They import their slogans from the U.S.A. And when they need firing up they import some firebrands from the U.S.A.

This thought came to mind at this time because I had been asked to read an article — an article which simply had to be published because of its burning social significance — about a group of young Canadians trekking to California to support the striking grape pickers there.

Now, I am sure the striking grape pickers probably have many just grievances. But as I read this article it occurred to me that the California grape pickers are a lot better off than many of our transient workers in Canada.

Yet I see very few young people here demanding justice for them.

The same holds true when kids here take up the chant about the "military-industrial complex" and the evils thereof. Such a complex does exist in the United States, and it does wield an awesome amount of power, and it should be checked.

But to try to insist that the same sort of evil partnership exists in this country is absurd. I get the same kind of feeling that everybody is playing follow-the-leader when I see our young people staging emotional rallies about the war in Vietnam.

Sure, it is a nasty war. It probably is an immoral nasty war. But it is not our war. And the draft does not affect our young men.

To pretend that this is an issue which can justify student demonstrations here is to acknowledge that our young people like to jump almost blind-tested band wagons. They aren't capable of finding a cause of their own.

Either that, or they are not sure enough of themselves to think for themselves. They won't join a protest movement until its popularity has been assured in the U.S.A.

These same young people, mind you, are the ones who complain bitterly that they can't get recognition in their own country. A writer or a musician or an actor, or so they claim, has to make it big in the U.S.A. before he or she is recognized here.

Yet the majority of the college magazines and newspapers I read almost slavishly follow the tested-and-approved-in-the-U.S.A. line. The articles which have caused the most controversy on campuses in the last few years almost invariably have been articles which originated with the campus or underground press of the United States.

I find this kind of discouraging. Like most Canadians, I am nervous about the influence the U.S.A. has on almost every aspect of Canadian life.

Isn't that I am anti-American, or feel that the U.S.A. has evil designs on this country, it is simply that the U.S.A. is so big and so close it can't help but influence us.

And I had hoped, when I heard that the up-and-coming generation was the best educated generation we had ever produced, that it was unwilling to accept the old answers and was searching for new ones, that maybe one thing they would do was work out a way to be distinctively Canadian without being anti-American.

I realize, of course, that it is much too early to pass any final judgment. But so far the signs are not too encouraging.

So far, in fact, the signs indicate that the young rebels of today are more virulently anti-American than any generation in this country since the war of 1812, or the Fenian Raids.

At the same time, and without any apparent sense of contradiction, they are also the most dependent generation, as far as being dependent on the U.S.A. for ideas and inspiration are concerned, we have ever had. Sure, it is a great to be concerned about the grape pickers in California. It is natural to be outraged about what is going on in Vietnam. But maybe it would also help things if some of this concern and outrage had a Canadian base. Surely a cause doesn't have to be popular and approved-in-the-U.S.A. to be worthwhile.

Woes Played Down

Curacao Could Head Toward Another Cuba

By CHARLES FOLEY from Willemstad

THE six Netherlands Antilles islands lie calm in the sun, but there are few signs that apart from strengthening security the Dutch are yet willing to deal with the basic problems of what might become a second Cuba in the Caribbean.

The woes of Curacao, where disastrous rioting caused $40,000,000 worth of damage, are being firmly played down by Curacao's masters. "Foreign agitators" are blamed by Dutch officials for the week-long rioting and everywhere one is assured that the outbreak was an isolated event which could not possibly recur. "Don't whoop it up, old man," is the cry. Premier Ciro de Krom has announced that he has definite proof that foreign-trained Communists turned a labour dispute into a full-blown insurrection.

But the fact is that Curacao's problems are many and deep. Behind the facade of crammed "gift-shops," sleek international hotels and fat new U.S. cars lurk poverty, unemployment and a fierce resentment at the growing disparity between rich and poor.

"Don't you just love this place?" cried a Canadian woman, as her party trailed in crocodile over the famous pontoon bridge that spans the harbor entrance. She surveyed Willemstad's sparsely clean Dutch frontage, which in a few hours would cease to exist. "I could live here for ever!"

For the people who do have to live here for ever, automation of Royal Dutch Shell's oil refineries, the island's chief industry, has meant that one-fifth of the adult male population is out of work. These are the largely black or mixed black-white majority — the have-nots. The haves are the white minority, tall, pink Dutchmen in knee-length white shorts and long white socks who stride the streets in martial style.

Curacao has been Dutch since the 17th century. It is the largest of the six islands in the Netherlands Antilles, with an economy based on tourism and the refining of Venezuelan oil.

Now that the tourist trade — which brought some 200,000 yearly visitors to the island — has been virtually destroyed, at least for this summer, with empty hotels and massive ca-cellation, unemployment and discontent will grow.

But Curacao has a bundle of other troubles which range from political squabbling of the bitterest kind to religious conflict and anti-Semitism.

The haves are Protestant or Jewish; the poor masses are mostly Roman Catholic, and feeling against Jewish store-owners was very evident in the rioting.

In street after street the day the rioting began I saw shops with Jewish names over the doors ablaze, while those run by colored people were left unharmed.

At the height of the disturbances, Willemstad looked like London during the blitz. Almost the whole main shopping area was burned down, besides hotels and restaurants. Gangs of Negroes roamed the streets for some hours before the rolling busses, warning shops to close and telling tourists to return to their hotels.

Entrances to Willemstad were blocked by troops with rifles and fixed bayonets, but clearly there were not enough to cope. The same went for the fire services: trucks sent thick jets over rooftops into unreachably blazing. Then on the canal that divides the town in two galleries sprayed giant fires without noticeable effect. In the streaming wind, the old-fashioned Americano hotel was gutted in 10 minutes. As smoke billowed acridly across the canal, looting began.

By evening the streets were littered with thick slabs of plate glass, discarded velvet jewel cases, Japanese cameras, coral necklaces, transistors, even plaster shop-window mannequins from which dresses had been stripped.

The cruise ships were the first to depart on the morning following the outbreak. They glided calmly past the smoldering hulks of gift-shops and hotels, leaving Willemstad under its pall of thin, ashen smoke. In minutes they were out of sight.

So ended Curacao's hopes of moving the island's economy away from oil-refining towards tourism. The great draw was low prices: watches at half the United States price; whisky at $2.25; cameras, perfume and other luxury items at bargain prices; duty-free typewriters — and much more.

There were few signs of anti-American sentiment. The vast Intercontinental Hotel, where the majority of U.S. tourists stay, was left untouched. The smog and overcast bodies clustered around the pool and bar in a haze of sun-oil remained unaware that anything unusual was happening until flakes of soot began to descend and the shooting began. Feeling against the Dutch, however, runs high among the black population. The Netherlands gave a limited form of home rule to the Antilles islands in 1954, and Dutch aid since then has been quite generous. Whether it has been put to good use is another matter.

Since 1966 local government has been controlled by the Democratic Party which is solidly Dutch-backed, and led by its founder Mr. de Krom, who is currently prime minister. The opposition consists of the National People's Party, behind which stand most working people (and most of the unemployed). The NPP bitterly accused de Krom's Democrats of electoral fraud and malpractice after the 1966 poll, and this political infighting has grown worse.

In conversation with colored people I found admiration and sympathy for Castro's Cuba and communism in general. A passenger from an Italian cruise ship named Volta described how she was abruptly ordered home by a colored policeman. "I have no home," she replied. "I'm from the Volta." "The Volta," cried the policeman, beaming. "You are Russian? Let me find you a taxi."

Church reformer John Calvin was born 400 years ago today — in 1509. His doctrine of Calvinism asserted the dogma of predestination, which says that God has chosen certain souls for salvation and others for damnation, and that these decrees are unalterable. The reformer was born at Noyen in France where he received a chaplaincy in the cathedral. Most of his reform work was done in Geneva.

European Climate Ripe For British Admittance

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Brussels

Mention Europe after de Gaulle at this headquarters of NATO and the Common Market, and officials pull long faces, talk of hard problems, and cite the proverb that "nothing is dead until it has been replaced."

But even though the resignation of General de Gaulle as president of France does not mean that Gaullism has been replaced as a force in Europe, the outlook is not at all that bleak.

Internal political problems in London, Bonn, Rome, and Paris make it certain that come autumn there will be new moves for more European cooperation, including British membership in the Common Market.

The serious question is whether there is available enough political power to carry the moves that are bound to come past the technical problems which have hardened into near-obsessions during the past seven years of European stagnation. The reason new European moves are in the cards for this fall emerges most clearly through a glance backwards at the motives which led to the formation of a Common Market back in 1955 and 1956.

The Treaty of Rome was not conceived and executed because the governments of France, West Germany, Italy, and the Benelux countries had suddenly got religion about Europe.

It came about because these governments had nothing else to do, no other card to play, no other reason d'être than the raison d'être of Europe. And so it is today.

The British government of Harold Wilson is a supreme case in point. From Borneo through Rhodesia to Anguilla, it has been in steady retreat.

The pound, once devalued by the Wilson government already, can only be saved from further falls by a deflationary economic policy bound to tighten credit, curb investment, and raise unemployment.

Thus the Wilson regime needs not only to find a role for Britain in the world. It needs, even more desperately, to have some show of success — any show of success.

And the right ticket for both needs is to move forward this fall in pushing for action on the application to the Common Market which has been pending since 1967.

In West Germany, prosperity persists, and the ruling coalition of Christian and Social Democrats goes into elections on Sept. 28 under no special internal pressure.

But the coalition regime has not solved any of West Germany's international problems. More than ever, accordingly, West Germany needs to look to Western Europe.

In Italy, as the present crisis demonstrates abundantly, the independent notes struck by the Communist Party and the ceumenical notes struck by the Church have tempted the left wings of both the Christian Democrats and Socialists to think thoughts of a popular front with the Communists.

The central need of Italian politics is for some cement to hold the recent coalition of Democrats together in a working majority.

Europe happens to be the right cement. For the European cause rallies the Catholics and the Socialists, while keeping the Communists at a distance.

There remains the case of France. The new regime of President Georges Pompidou is chiefly remarkable for its concentration on internal problems — notably economic and social matters connected with building confidence in the stability of the franc.

In foreign policy, the old position of showy opposition to anything European is now abandoned. The new foreign minister (Maurice Schumann), the new finance minister (Valéry Giscard d'Estaing), and the constant talk of a European summit in the fall, all indicate that the French government is no longer wedded to a European veto.

In this situation, a European summit meeting is due to come after the German election on Sept. 28. Post-de Gaulle Europe will then have its innings, and the time will be ripe for a wide range of initiatives beginning with British membership.

But will these initiatives, like those of 1957 and 1958, bear fruit? The answer is that success depends on replacing a present concentration on time-worn problems of insurmountable complexity by a disposition to think new and think big.

Nixon's Visit to Romania Summit Meeting Prelude?

By REG MACDONALD, from London

What is President Nixon really up to in the Balkans? This is the $64,000 question in diplomatic circles following the surprise announcement that the American president would duck behind the iron curtain in August for talks with President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania.

The first reaction was that President Nixon was trying to turn up his nose at the Russians from their own backyard, but now more significant reasons are being exposed. And not the least important is the deteriorating situation along the Russian-Chinese border.

Romania, the most independent-minded of the Soviet satellite states, is the only country in Eastern Europe, barring belligerent little Albania, which maintains good relations with China.

Observers feel that President Ceausescu could play the role as an intermediary between China and Russia and America. President Nixon has made it known that he would like to leave open future possibilities for improving relations with the Chinese. His visit to Bucharest could, therefore, be a hint to Peking that the Americans are not fully committed to Moscow in the bitter inter-communist conflict.

But there is no doubt the visit is also designed to remind the Russians that the Americans would not sit back and watch if the Warsaw Pact countries attempted to treat Romania in the way they treated Czechoslovakia last year.

Romanians still express concern over the possibility that the Soviet Union and its satellites might demand to send troops into Romania under the guise of Warsaw Pact manoeuvres.

The fact that the "Citizen Defence Battalions" organized by the 51-year-old Ceausescu after the invasion of Czechoslovakia are still recruiting, indicates how seriously they regard this threat.

Romania has a long common frontier with the Soviet Union and they need this citizen militia to back up their small but extremely efficient army and air force.

The Romanians have a great love of independence. The reason for this national characteristic, which will adopt herculean proportions in a crisis, can be found in the country's turbulent history.

It has been conquered, colonized and partitioned so many times that the quest for national unity and freedom from external interference has become an obsession.

This credo has been given enormous impetus by President Ceausescu.

In his most recent speeches, Ceausescu has again gone out of his way to emphasize that international relations should be based on the principles of independence and national sovereignty, equal rights, non-interference in the internal affairs of others, the rights of all people to decide their own destiny and their own road to socialism.

For good measure, he also pointed out that the concept of "limited sovereignty" devised by the Russians to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia, was contrary to Marxist-Leninist principles.

Strong language, and if Ceausescu gets away with it, it will probably be because the Romanians have been much more prudent and circumspect than the Czechs in applying liberalization policies. In addition, the Romanians have not deviated from communist orthodoxy as much as the Czechs did.

The Romanian Communist Party Congress, will open in Bucharest on August 4. It is likely that President Nixon's talks with Ceausescu could result in important meetings with delegates from other communist countries, including Russia.

China, it is felt, will be discussed at length, if those additional meetings take place.

Chinese Missile Sites Feared

Russia May Take Steps To 'Neutralize' Albania

By HAROLD KING, from Paris

Communist China holds a hostage country in the heart of Europe from which all the main cities of the European NATO countries, including London, Paris, Bonn, Hamburg, Oslo and Rome, and all the countries of the Warsaw Pact nations, including Moscow, Warsaw, Budapest, Bucharest and Prague can be reached by medium-distance ground-to-ground hydrogen bomb missiles.

This is the closed fortress of Albania, tightly sealed off from any access by foreigners. This mountainous pocket-handkerchief country has a long coast line on the eastern side of the Adriatic Sea opposite southern Italy. To the north its frontiers thrust into Yugoslavia, to the south into Greece.

French, Romanian and Yugoslav military experts have been reporting signs of Peking setting up missile launching sites in this Chinese reservation in the centre of Western Europe. The same experts believe Soviet Russia is getting very uneasy about the potential nuclear threat that China could exercise from Albania. They also believe that the Soviets may soon do something about it.

They think the Russians may organize a definitive raid by air or by sea to overthrow the pro-Peking Communist Party leaders of Tirana, the 50,000-population capital of Albania, or they may be working from within to stage a new pro-Moscow putsch.

Allowing Albania to fall into the control of the Russians in the first place was one of the mistakes made by the Western Allies' leaders towards the end and after the end of World War II.

Actually what happened was that Britain, the United States, physically absent, recognized a provisional Albanian government headed by the Communist General Enver Hoxha, on the laughable understanding that free elections would be held.

Until the fall of 1961 Albania was a Soviet preserve. It was — and still is — more difficult to get into Albania than into the palace of Mao Tse-tung in Peking. But in that year Khrushchev damned Stalin and on the face of it all his works.

General Hoxha refused to fall into line, or rather out of line, and remained staunchly faithful to the Stalin line. He turned to Peking for support. At the Communist Party congress in Moscow in October 1961, Albania was severely attacked for adhering to the Stalinist ideology. Only Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-lai defended the Albanian leaders.

Moscow broke off diplomatic relations with Tirana. Hoxha did not care. He went in for a severe party purge on the best Stalin model, since when it is nothing extraordinary to see Chinese faces all over the place among the poor, mostly illiterate Moslem population of less than a million and a half souls.

While the Russians were in control, there were many reports of Soviet submarines being brought into Albania — by air and by land — to be assembled there. Now Moscow is getting gravely concerned about the possibility of missile launching bases being set up in the heart of Albania, if they have not already been built.

The Yugoslavs, who despite the sealed-off frontiers seem to get some of their agents across mountain passes and forest tracks into the fringes of Albania, are worried by the actual presence of Chinese technicians at Elbasan, a township in the central interior of Albania.

Dozens of Albanian refugees are interrogated daily by the Yugoslav security services (the "UDBA") at frontier posts set up at regular intervals along the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier.

For the Kremlin leaders, things started coming to a head after Albania withdrew from the Warsaw Pact on September 13, 1968. This act coincided with Chinese insistence on having a military representation in Albania.

Then came a warning from Prime Minister Chou En-lai that if the Soviet Union committed an act of aggression against Albania, China would not stand by idly. This warning was repeated after the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last year. At the same time the Chinese prime minister revealed that his country would soon possess deep-sea nuclear submarines.

According to reports here, 1,200 Chinese technicians are enlarging the approaches to Valona, former Soviet naval base in Albania.

Military observers here and in Belgrade seem to think that the Russians will soon know what the Chinese are really up to in Albania. Any missiles loaded with uranium 235 can be detected by equipment carried by Soviet warships in the Mediterranean.

Albania may be the site of the next piece of shattering world news.

Westcoast Sues German Steelmaker

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Westcoast Transmission Company is claiming $13,000,000 damages from the Canadian subsidiary of a leading West German steelmaker for selling it what it describes as "defective steel pipe."

Westcoast incurred loss in revenue and in pipe replacement said Frank McMahon, chairman of the natural gas pipeline company.

Defending company is Canadian Phoenix Steel and Pipe of Edmonton. It is controlled by August Thyssen Hütte of Düsseldorf, West Germany's largest steel manufacturer. The suit is being defended.

Westcoast said its operations were affected from July 1968 to March 1969 by line failure.

SHORT OPTION GIVEN

The new $50,000,000 8 1/2 per cent sinking fund bond issue by Imperial Oil has been priced at 99.50 and is being offered to the public this week.

The bond which matures Aug. 15, 1989, will give a yield of 8.55 per cent over the 20 years, but it may be called by the holder for redemption in five years, in which case it will give a yield of 8.625 per cent.

The option to redeem must be made between Feb. 15, 1973 and Feb. 15, 1974.

OIL MERGER AGREED

Bralorne Oil and Gas has agreed to purchase all the outstanding shares of Carleton Oil and Gas Development Co. Ltd. at a price of $1,500,000 cash. Principal shareholders of Carleton have agreed to sell their shares.

Carleton has reserves of 1,000,000 barrels of oil and 14,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas at Yoyo, B.C., Dodsland, Bank, and Nipisi-Gilwood. Proved-Viking and Rainbow Keg River of Alberta.

VICTIMS FRISKED

The Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges have lost their faith in their visitors.

Before guests will be allowed to take part in a guided tour of the visitors' gallery, they will have to submit to inspection of their bags, briefcases or parcels, and then leave them at the door.

Bomb trouble in the past has caused the frisking rule which will be "stringently enforced."

The old gallery was damaged Feb. 13, and the new one was opened this week.

EXPERTS NEEDED

Canada Trust says the amendments law of the Estate Tax Act and the Gift Tax sections of the Income Tax Act which passed into law May 8, make the need for professional help in estate planning more important than ever.

Four basic points under the amendments on which there is widespread misunderstanding are listed by Canada Trust as follows:

Leaving his estate in trust for his wife will not necessarily exempt a testator's estate from payment of estate tax on his death, even though his wife survives him;

The new estate tax rates reach their maximum of 50 per cent on taxable values in excess of $1,550,000 of taxable values;

The new rates are effective from midnight Oct. 22, 1968 even though they did not become law until May 8, 1969;

The widespread belief that the executor of the estate of a person dying between Oct. 22, 1968, and Aug. 1, 1969, has the option of having the estate taxed on either the pre-amendment or the post amendment basis is false. Additional allowances are applicable in some cases but there is no option and the new rates apply.

SQUEEZE IS "ON"

Dividends paid by Canadian companies this year are running at record high levels, but the momentum of the advance, experienced in the earlier years of the 60s, is slowing down, and for the first seven months they are less than one per cent ahead of a year ago and two per cent ahead of the similar period of 1967.

Higher taxes are offsetting higher sales, a larger number of companies, and more shares outstanding.

The seven months total for the past three years have been $828,970,740; $822,687,206 and $808,956,346.

OIL DELIVERIES RISE

Rising volume of oil deliveries is reported by Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line over a year ago.

The June deliveries of petroleum products averaged 236,210 barrels a day, compared with 250,318 barrels in June 1968.

The outlook for July is also favorable with an expected average of 310,000 barrels a day.

Tobacco Relief Backed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, sponsor of a campaign to combat cigarette addiction among school children, asked Tuesday for federal relief for tobacco producers.

A resolution adopted at the federation's annual meeting asked the government "gradually to divert the tax dollars now being used to support the tobacco industry into programs of research, information and promotion for the production of crops which could become income-producing alternatives to tobacco."

George Gray of Toronto, who introduced the motion, said that as a anti-smoking campaign intensifies "its the farmer that's going to take a beating, not the cigarette manufacturers."

Pill Sales Up After Ban

ROME (AP) — Sales of birth control pills in Italy have doubled since Pope Paul banned all contraceptives for Roman Catholics a year ago, a health ministry survey indicates. Prof. W. Inghilla of the University of Rome said more than 24,000,000 pills were sold in the last year. The country's population is 55,000,000.

B.C. Medicare Bill Near $75,000,000

Medical bills for the first nine months of medicare in B.C. totalled $74,717,321, the B.C. finance department said Monday.

The government's financial statement for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1969, says that the total paid into B.C.'s medical services plan was $86,527,059.

Bills already paid came to $53,543,789, and the remaining $21,173,532 consisted of bills accrued but yet to come in, and premiums paid in advance.

Total cost of administering the plan was $4,221,019.

Of the total paid into the plan, $49,055,585 came from subscribers' premiums, $21,689,300 came from the federal government, $14,925,131 came from the B.C. treasury and $877,045 came from interest on investments.

National medicare came into effect on July 1, 1968, and the figures cover the period between that date and March 31, 1969.

From April 1 to June 30, 1968, B.C. paid $1,610,542 into the provincial plan.

Police Battle Wait-Wearry Mourners

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP) — Police battled tribal mourners Wednesday as the funeral cortege carrying the body of assassinated leader Tom Mboya moved like a military convoy into Kisumu on Lake Victoria.

Earlier, Mboya's widow, Pamela, who is expecting their fourth child, was injured in a three-car accident along with Mboya's brother, Alphonse, and his wife. There were no serious injuries but all were treated for shock and Mrs. Mboya was x-rayed at the War Memorial Hospital at Nakuru, about 90 miles northwest of Nairobi, near where the crash occurred. Kisumu is about 165 miles northeast of Nairobi.

Mboya, minister for development and economic planning, was killed by an unknown gunman Saturday as he left a pharmacy in downtown Nairobi. He is to be buried Friday on Rusinga Island on Lake Victoria.

President Jomo Kenyatta, have occurred since the shooting. Nairobi itself was calm after rioting Tuesday, which started when thousands of Luo tried to enter the Roman Catholic cathedral for a requiem mass.

Biafran Tots Eat Rats

OWERRI, Biafra (AFP) — The food situation is daily worsening in Biafra. Many desperate parents are buying rats to feed their starving children. Food stocks of the Red Cross now are almost totally exhausted and charitable organizations have almost no food left to distribute to refugees. Relief flights into Biafra have been reduced to a trickle since June 5 when Nigerian jets shot down a mercy plane.

An Irish priest who runs a refugee camp in the north of the country in the region of Okwele said he has only 15 tons of food a week to distribute among 60,000 persons. Tens of thousands of people will die in the next few weeks if the situation continues, he said. Peasants who live near relief centres have still some chance of surviving but for the others living away from the main roads it is famine. Sitting in rags in the mud in front of their huts, they boil in big cooking pots what roots they can still find. Around them, their stomachs swollen, their children await death.

Atlantic Storm Spreads Death

RENNES, France (AP) — At least 23 persons died in a sudden, violent storm that boiled up out of the Atlantic this week, scourged coastal resorts with 100 mile-an-hour winds and moved inland. Reporters said the demonstrations were not tribal in character, but reflected the impatience of the crowd who waited for up to 10 hours to get a glimpse of Mboya's coffin.

Debate Curb Crisis for Lords

Labor Wins Bitter Fight

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson's government went ahead Wednesday with plans to redraw the electoral map of Britain. Labor rejected Conservative opposition charges of cheating and risking a constitutional crisis.

In a House of Commons debate with anger and insult, Wilson's Labor members won approval by 291 to 246 to limit debate on their controversial bill to 40 hours.

Members meeting Tuesday night had hurled books, papers and invective at each other in the dispute.

LORDS STRATEGY

Outside the chamber, Edward Heath's Conservatives pondered action to thwart the measure when it reaches the House of Lords, where they have the most members. It is within the power of the peers to toss out the measure or to amend it, thereby blocking it for at least a year.

Home Secretary James Callaghan warned the Conservatives that "it would be a very serious matter" for the lords to meddle with the decision on composition of the House of Commons.

CHANGE THREAT

It was Callaghan's way of serving notice that a "peers-vs.-the-people" crisis could arise. The House of Lords is composed of hereditary and appointed life peers; members of Commons are elected by popular vote.

A government defeat in the Lords on this issue would infuriate many members of Labor.

Two Killed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Two men were killed in a two-car collision in heavy rain on the Trans-Canada Highway near Savona, about 25 miles west of Kamloops.

They probably would press the government to resurrect plans previously shelved to alter radically the upper chamber's composition.

The storm in Parliament erupted midnight Tuesday night when Conservatives protested a debating time-limit on the bill that would allow the government to ignore recommendations.

changes in the distribution of parliamentary seats or electoral divisions.

Heath and his lieutenants have said the government, by ignoring these proposals, would rob the Conservatives of up to 15 seats.

And by implementing certain picked recommendations, Heath's advisers estimate,

Labor will pick up a bonus for itself of between eight and 20 seats.

If Britain's next national election, which must come by May, 1971, is at all close, the government's measure could make the difference between Labor's winning or losing power in the 630-member House of Commons, Conservatives say.

Outcry Astonishes NASA:

'Less Worry for Astronauts'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Humane and animal welfare societies expressed concern Wednesday over the death of astronaut Bonny but space officials contended the pig-tailed primate did not die in vain.

"We have had close to 1,000 letters and some nasty telephone calls," said Don Zystra, a public affairs officer of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

OFFICIALS STARTLED

He added: "We are astonished that there seems to be more concern for the animal than for our astronauts."

The Humane Society, the Anti-mal Welfare Institute and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals joined in deploring as an act of inhumanity the monkey's death after nine days of a projected 30-day, earth-orbiting mission.

"It is an inhuman thing—and we abhor it," said Mrs. Cameron McNeill, president of the Washington Humane Society.

'ANOTHER WORLD'

"Granted that scientific research is another world and this is a very complex matter—there is still a different concept in relating this to human beings."

The human being is self-willed. The monkey had no say in the mission.

Mrs. Christine Stevens, president of the Animals Welfare Institute, said: "This was just a young monkey, three years old and in the prime of life."

TWO MONKEYS

"I understand he was strapped in a capsule with a heavy head-gear containing 23 electrodes. We feel that... it would be much more humane to lighten the load and have two monkeys on such a trip."

"As for the human element, the astronauts themselves, they are not immobilized. They have the freedom of choice. They are mentally and emotionally equipped for such a venture."

WEIGHED 14 POUNDS

The 14-pound monkey given in a $92,000,000 biosatellite mission to determine the effects of prolonged weightlessness in space, died Tuesday in Honolulu after a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean.

Although hailed 21 days ahead of schedule, the experiment was proclaimed a technical success.

Zystra said all letters of pro-

Bonny's Autopsy

HONOLULU (UPI) — A preliminary autopsy report Wednesday revealed that Bonny the space monkey probably died of heart failure resulting from a combination of weightlessness, immobility and a chilly space capsule.

The 14-pound pigtail monkey died Tuesday after being brought back to earth from an aborted 30-day orbiting mission.

The autopsy report said Bonny suffered "minor injury to internal organs, probably due to re-entry forces."

However, scientists said, "all organ systems indicated full function until the time of death. Death was probably due to cooling of the animal and consequent heart failure."

Soviet Lunar Launch Forecast for Today

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Many persons here think the Soviet Union will make a last-gasp effort at a space spectacular before United States spacemen land on the moon July 20.

For the last three months, Communist sources have said the Soviet Union will try to land an unmanned spaceship on the moon and then order it to blast off and return to earth.

NEWEST DATE

Two previous predictions of an imminent unmanned flight to the moon and back—in March and June—proved false. Some sources said two attempts exploded on the launching pad.

The newest date being rumored for a moon shot is Thursday—the latest the Soviets can attempt a moon landing without risking interference with the U.S. Apollo 11 shot scheduled for July 16.

Foreign Communists and some Soviet sources said they had heard that the Soviet space planners are trying to have their ship—which would probably be code-named Zond 8—scoop up some moon soil and bring it back to earth.

Earlier this year, cosmonaut Alexei Leonov told Japanese correspondents he expected a moon rock to be available for exhibition at the 1970 Tokyo World Fair. He did not say how it would be obtained, but indicated an unmanned station could pick it up.

RETURN TRIP

But scooping up moon soil is not the problem, experts here said. They said the Soviet Union has not yet shown evidence of having a rocket powerful enough for the return trip.

This would require a rocket or rockets that could slow the spacecraft into an orbit around the moon, land a vehicle on the moon's surface, raise it up into lunar orbit again, blast out of lunar orbit towards earth and then land on the earth.

Seven Perish

TOKYO (UPI) — Police reported at least seven persons died as a result of rainstorms during the weekend on the southernmost island of Kyushu. A three-day deluge earlier in the week took 66 lives.

Telecast Times For Apollo 11

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI)—The space agency plans to beam six color television shows from the Apollo 11 command ship during its trip to and from the moon and in moon orbit, and one long black-and-white telecast from the lunar surface.

Latest scheduled times (all times PDT and approximate, based on an on-time launch and subject to change) include:

Thursday, July 17, 4:47-5:02 p.m., color shots of earth the day after launch during earth-moon coast.

Friday, July 18, 4:32-4:47 p.m., color shots of earth and moon during earth-moon coast.

Saturday, July 19, 1:02-1:17 p.m., color from moon orbit between first orbital insertion and a corrective manoeuvre to lower orbit.

Sunday, July 20, 10:52-11:22 a.m., color showing moon lander flying formation near command ship.

Monday, July 20, 11:32 a.m.-1:52 a.m., black-and-white telecast live from the moon's surface, showing Neil Armstrong and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin walking on the moon.

Tuesday, July 22, 6:02-6:17 p.m., color during coast back toward earth showing moon fading in distance.

Wednesday, July 23, 4:02-4:17 p.m., color shots of earth on last night before splashdown.

Up, Up, Up and Away

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Equipped with a guitar and a harmonica to while away the time, James Conitos and Arnold Holm prepared Wednesday to set out in a huge orange balloon hoping to float 3,000 miles across the United States.

Two men are determined not to touch down again until their captive air balloon drifts over Bangor, Maine.

Conitos, 51, of Akron, Ohio, and Holm, 21, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, hope eventually to make a transatlantic flight later this year.

Conitos, who is a veteran balloonist, said of the trip, "We have great hopes and expectations of setting a new distance and endurance record in this flight." The current record for distance is 1,800 miles set in 1913 by a German balloon. That flight also set the record for the longest time aloft, three and a half days.

The pair picked this southern Montana plains city for their takeoff point because of a sudden shift in the all-important prevailing winds. Their original plans were to ascend from Amarillo, Tex. The current wind patterns should carry them from Montana to south of the Great Lakes area, and then on up to Maine.

Their vehicle is a $70,000 balloon which stands more than 70 feet high and has an envelope capacity of 40,250 cubic feet of helium. The gondola, where the two passengers will ride, is 12 feet across. The huge craft is described as looking much like the one in Around the World in 80 Days.

Chiropractor Convicted Of Murder

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Almost eight years after the death of his 8-year-old patient, a Long Beach, Calif., chiropractor was sentenced to prison Wednesday in what was termed the first murder conviction for medical quackery in the history of American law.

It was also the second conviction for the same crime for Dr. Marvin M. Phillips, 40. Since his first conviction in 1962, he had moved from Los Angeles and continued his medical practice in Long Beach.

Phillips, convicted of second-degree murder in the Dec. 29, 1961, death of cancer victim Linda Epping, was given a sentence of five years to life.

REVERSED

Phillips was first convicted of second-degree murder in 1962 but the conviction was reversed by the district court of appeals on grounds that Phillips' crime itself was not inherently dangerous to human life.

Phillips had assured Mr. and Mrs. Herman Epping that he could cure their daughter of cancer and proceeded to treat her with iodine-water and vitamins.

He also influenced the parents to remove the child from a hospital the day before she was to undergo critical eye surgery.

PARENTS BELIEVED

Linda died of cancer after about two months in treatment by Phillips, who then billed the Eppings for $730.

Phillips was indicted for murder under an interpretation of California law which holds that when a death occurs during commission of a felony — in this case grand theft — the death is second-degree murder.

Miracle Coating REPLACES PAINT

Another boon to the space age has been accomplished for home and apartment owners: an exterior wall coating so tough and durable it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior painting for over 15 years. This remarkable product combines the long-lasting properties of fiberglass, asbestos, mica and perlite to make a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes. 16 colors available.

Guided missile manufacturers for the United States government have found this material a superior product for insulation of heat shields used in the space program. Over two million world-wide applications have been made on industrial, commercial and residential buildings since 1946.

Applied With A Gun
"Fiberglas" Textured Coating is applied with heavy-duty spray equipment under high pressure. It fuses itself to the wall surface to a thickness of 20 times that of paint. It remains flexible and withstands cracking and surface expansion and contraction. Every application is registered and factory-guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, peeling or flaking.

Free information on how easily you may have "Fiberglas" Textured Coating applied now at low bank terms, with no down payment, may be obtained by calling direct or collect to Textured Coating Division.

Bishop Cridge Centre

Family Care Root of Plan At Revitalized Orphanage

By NANCY BROWN
The Protestant Orphanage has changed its name to the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family, opened a day care centre for children and is ready to begin architectural planning of $1,500,000 worth of low-rental housing for single-parent and low-income families.

The program has been hailed as a potential showpiece of service to families. The orphanage stands ready to receive an initial 15 children from needy families. Intention of the expanded board of management is to provide an entire range of services for needy families — from houses to residential or day care, from recreation to emergency shelter. Praise for the imagination shown in the development came from Family and Children's Service executive director Gordon Wright.

"This could well become a showplace for the entire continent, a unique project which will point the way for other developments," he said.

Charles Ellington, president of the centre, said some 15 families had already been housed in the orphanage since

Ellington

January, because of home emergencies. "We hope to continue this service," he said. The pilot day care unit will be expanded as space becomes available and the need becomes evident, he said. He expects children and families will be referred by welfare agencies.

"As soon as an architect has been chosen, he can go ahead with his plans," said Mr. Ellington. "We want as many rental units as possible, but we want to retain all the beauty of this land."

"We want the needy families to have the kind of surroundings other families have," he added. There are 12 acres of land surrounding the big house on the hill at Cook and Hillside, secured in 1981 through a bequest of the late John Taylor.

"We expect to put in recreational facilities on a par with those at the YM-YWCA," Mr. Ellington said. "It will be a place that the community will want to come into."

Mr. Ellington said he expected many of the women housed in the units would find a new way of life, and be able to become self-supporting once they had good housing and care for their children.

"We hope to provide a complete program of recreational, educational and social services for the residents and the neighboring communities."

"I would expect that some of the women would want to take over the care of some children, while others would go out to work."

"It is likely that the place would function as a complete community," he said.

Mr. Ellington said the new name honored the memory of the Bishop Edward Cridge who founded the original Home for Orphans in the city in 1873.

"The ladies' auxiliary has become part of the expanded board of management and will help control policy and financing of the complex of family and children's services," he explained.

He pointed out that while the proposed development was expected to cost an initial $1,500,000, federal and provincial contributions would cover 90 per cent of the cost.

"The city of Victoria has said it will put up 5 per cent toward any such housing development," he said, "and we have the money for our share, so we are ready to go right ahead."

Mr. Ellington said there was a possibility that the present form of residential care would be phased out, and the home used as a group foster home.

"However, we haven't made final decision on these things yet," he said. "Our firm intention is to go right ahead with the low-rental housing units."

"We expect to build 100 at first, but the numbers are really up to the architects who will have to retain the present atmosphere of the grounds."

Mr. Ellington said that since the complex was still tentative.

"We do hope to keep pace with the demand for services, and I would think there will be a counselling program for the women," he said.

Mr. Wright said he hoped the Family and Children's Service would be able to work closely with the new centre.

"Any facilities we have will be at their disposal, and we will give any help we can," he said.

Duncan, 21, of Iroquois Falls, Ont., a United Church member. "Cool Aid has 300 kids working with them. They're great people but we want to reach the kids who aren't associated with them."

"The transients and the draft dodgers are being looked after by Cool-Aid but we want to get to know the young people in Victoria and do something for them," explained Susan Vickers, 18, of Toronto, an Anglican.

Bruce Mellott, 19, a United Church member from Oakville, Ont., said he worked with S.O.S. in Winnipeg last year. He became interested in the group when he was a member of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament.

S.O.S. is an interdenominational group organized by the Canadian Council of Churches in 1956 to send volunteer young people to Canadian communities to foster worthwhile projects among young residents.

The group is supported by the federal government and by the organizing churches.

In Victoria, the quartet is being housed at St. John's Anglican Church Memorial Hall and arrangements are being made for funds for food. The young people are not paid.

They plan to go wherever young people are and find out what they'd like to be doing.

"From what some of them have told us, there isn't much to do here," said Susan.

All four said they were anxious for "social involvement" and expected to get more out of their summer here than they put in.

"We're ready to give to the young people here and we hope they'll give something back for all of those involved," said Susan.

It looks as if Centennial Square will be their main headquarters for a while, said Eve.

"That's where the young people are. We hope we can find out what they want. Maybe a coffee house. Maybe something else."

The quartet issued an invitation to all young people in the area to meet them in Centennial Square or to phone them at the Cool Aid number, 383-1951, and ask for S.O.S.

Exciting future lies ahead

Who's Managing Who?

Home-Front Lines Busy As Issue Takes Toll

A member of the management team comes face-to-face with a striker.

Management: "Get out of bed and make my breakfast."

Striker: "Yes, dear."

This may not be exactly routine in a labor dispute, but the current B.C. Telephone Co. strike is producing a number of oddities.

To begin with, there are 6,600 people on strike and a good number happen to have wives, husbands, boyfriends, girlfriends and assorted relatives crossing their picket lines daily to man the phones for management.

In one case, a woman has been working an 84-hour week as a member of management while her husband has been walking the picket line.

On the second day of the strike, the woman fixed her husband with a household management look and told him that since she was working the longer shift, he should make her breakfast.

According to the woman, he did, without any argument.

Last week in Victoria, a man who is in management took his girlfriend, who is a striker, to a party.

The hostess said afterward not one angry word had been spoken.

Also in the Victoria area is a 64-year-old man who walks the picket line while his son crosses it to go to work.

"There doesn't seem to be any trouble because of all these things," a union spokesman said Wednesday night.

"But then, who knows what happens at home?"

There are, of course, other types of odd happenings.

A Victoria man who wanted a phone installed in a new house at the end of July could get nothing but a busy signal each time he phoned the company's downtown Victoria office.

Finally, he drove downtown in desperation and found that the phones used to answer installation orders had all been left off the hook.

It appeared that the load of calls had become too heavy for the management.

Phone Strikers Concerned For Management

Striking B.C. Telephone Co. workers in Victoria accused the company Wednesday night of overworking its own management personnel to the point of endangering their health.

They also said many of the people they now consider strike-breakers gained the right to work with the company in the past through union efforts on their behalf.

These points, as well as denials of some company statements, were included in a statement released by Local 2 of the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers. The local covers the Victoria area and had remained fairly silent on all issues since the province-wide telephone strike began.

"It seems quite apparent that the company cares as little for its management staff as it does for its other employees," the local said.

"The long daily hours that these supervisory people are forced to work (12-hour shifts, seven days a week) are definitely going to affect the health of these people," the statement said.

It also said: "Union leaders are not making demands, but are taking orders from the membership, which had decided on a strike by an 85-per-cent majority vote. And contrary to company reference to paid union leaders, the six paid officials of the federations stopped drawing pay when the strike began."

Will Victoria Youth Come and Take It?

Four of a Kind Offer a Hand

Jelly Beans For Peace was the name of a spur-of-the-moment movement that started in Centennial Square Wednesday, said the slim, blonde girl at the ironing board.

"Actually," Eve Hertzberg explained as she deftly ironed a misundress at the Cool-Aid house on Balmoral, "it was part of our welcome to Victoria and we loved it. Some of the kids in the square just came over to us and said 'Jelly beans for peace'."

The 18-year-old Quaker from Toronto is one of four young people who arrived Wednesday to spend six weeks in Victoria as members of S.O.S., Summer of Service volunteers.

"We wanted to do something to give a sense of purpose," said Eve, who is a second-year philosophy student at the University of Toronto.

She said the four had been invited here by Victoria Youth Council and were the temporary meal guests of Cool-Aid. "But we won't be working with Cool-Aid," said Blaine

Duncan, 21, of Iroquois Falls, Ont., a United Church member. "Cool Aid has 300 kids working with them. They're great people but we want to reach the kids who aren't associated with them."

Colwood Man Killed By Broken Mirror

A 22-year-old Colwood man bled to death Wednesday night after he put his arm through a full-length mirror in his bedroom.

Colwood RCMP identified the man as Robert Stewart Coulter of 213 Aylton. He was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital at 6 p.m. police said.

Police speculated he was probably standing in front of the mirror, which was the front door of a closet, and possibly removing a sock when he lost his balance and put his arm through the mirror. Broken glass severed an artery near the shoulder.

Mr. Coulter is survived by his wife and a daughter.

Crowner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre has ordered an inquiry into the death.

Students Asked to Avoid High-Rate Ottawa Loans

The credit trap threatens university students who have no other source of funds but government loans. University of Victoria financial aid officer Neil Granewall warned Wednesday.

"A student who borrows the maximum of $1,000 per year for five years will have to repay $65 per month for 10 years at the current interest rate," said Mr. Granewall.

"A couple of student teachers who borrowed $10,000 over five years, then married on graduation, would face payment of $130 a month for a decade."

Mr. Granewall said he was giving prospective borrowers this message: "Borrow if you must, but pay your budget to the minimum."

As financial aid officer he administers the loan plan established by the federal government and administered by the province.

The plan was established in 1964 with an interest rate of 5 1/2 per cent. The loans were (and remain) interest-free until after graduation.

SIX MONTHS

Six months after graduation, a borrower must begin repayment. Last year the interest rate was increased to 8 1/2 per cent and regulations tightened to reduce borrowing.

Mr. Granewall said Wednesday that 1,500 students applied last year and about 1,100 were granted loans. The students borrowed a total of $736,000 which was down $20,000 from the previous year although enrolment rose by 700.

LENGHTY TEST

The 1969-70 government application from includes a lengthy means test for both student and his parents.

A variety of scholarships and bursaries for needy students also is available.

The province will pay three-quarters of tuition fees for students scoring an 80-per-cent average in the previous academic year.

SECOND CLASS

Second-class marks — between 70 and 80 per cent — are worth a government scholarship varying from one-half to one-third of tuition.

Students in need may apply for a provincial bursary, which varies from $120 to $400, with the average at $177. Last year the government granted bursaries to 2,823 students for a total of $894,050.

At the University of Victoria, 500 students got $84,500 in bursaries.

The University of Victoria estimates that a single student from outside Victoria will require between $1,500 and $1,800 for eight months on campus.

St. Joseph's Looks Ahead

By PAT MURPHY

Without further delays, a new acute and extended-care St. Joseph's Hospital complex could be completed in five years, the chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital board said Wednesday.

However, Dr. Alex Wood thought that a more realistic schedule would see a 200-bed extended-care hospital ready in two years, the central building of a 600-bed acute-care institution ready in five, and the remaining sections of the main hospital completed in seven.

Dr. Wood, who was reporting on a presentation given Wednesday at a meeting of the regional hospital board advisory committee, declined to estimate the cost of the complex, but admitted that hospital construction ran at about $32,000 a bed.

FEASIBILITY REPORT

That would put the total cost upward of $26,000,000.

The presentation was made in the form of a feasibility report by Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners, St. Joseph's architects, for at least the first part of the building study.

Appointment of a permanent architectural firm awaits the formation of a public society which will operate the new St. Joseph's.

Constitution of the society is in the hands of Health Minister Ralph Lofmark, awaiting his approval.

STREET CLOSED

The preliminary plan presupposes the closure of Humboldt Street between Rupert and Blanshard and the extension of Belleville to Fairfield, through the property of the Sisters of St. Ann.

The plan also presupposes the use of the grounds now occupied by St. Ann's Academy.

Dr. Wood said Wednesday that the sisters had agreed to sell and that evaluators, appointed by the religious order and the hospital, were already making an assessment of the property.

RETAIN ACADEMY

A member of the hospital board, Michael Griffin, said the sisters wanted to leave the elementary school field, but retain their interest in the high school academy.

The proposed new hospital, to be built in several sections, would span the extension of Belleville Street with an aerial walkway, which would later be developed and built several storeys high for other uses if needed.

When completed, the several buildings of the new hospital would form a rough horseshoe bounded by Collinson and Rupert Streets, Beacon Hill Park boundary and Blanshard Street.

A big feature of the whole program, said Dr. Wood, would be that there would be no loss of bed use during construction. In fact, he added, there would be a steady gain over the five to seven years of construction.

A new unit would be built and an old one demolished, and this leapfrogging progress would be continued throughout.

CRASH PROGRAM

In the interim, a crash program for more acute-care beds right now was being studied, said Dr. Wood.

By means of prefabricated buildings, or some other temporary structure, St. Joseph's hoped to be able to add 50 more beds to the 429 it now has in use.

Royal Jubilee Hospital hoped to come up with 50 more beds to meet the desperate need, Dr. Wood said, and other courses of action were being studied.

Borg Commuting Statement Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — R. G. L. Fairweather, P.C.—Fundy, called on Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday to make a public statement giving the government's position on commuting the death sentence of Leonard Borg to life imprisonment.

Fairweather said in the Commons there is "public disquiet" over the reprieve of Borg, who had been sentenced to death for the murder of an RCMP officer in Grand Prairie, Alta.

Trudeau replied that he will take the matter up with Solicitor-General George McNeil.

He reminded the House, however, that when Parliament abolished the death penalty for murder, except in cases involving the death of police officers and prison guards, it was made clear that the cabinet retained the royal prerogative of mercy.

It was pointed out, Trudeau said, that this prerogative might be used in cases where the jury recommended clemency, as the jury did in the Borg case.

Innovation Needed, Not Subsidy

By DON GAIN

Canada's marine industry shouldn't be subsidized, it should be revolutionized. John Case, a Victoria marine architect and naval engineer, said Tuesday.

Mr. Case, president of Case Existological Laboratories, said he agreed with Sir Francis Bacon's adage: "Innovate or accept a greater evil."

"Subsidies are a greater evil," he said. "It would depress me to think that the marine industry was going to be subsidized."

LOOKING TO PAST

The marine and shipping industry now, to a great extent, looks to the past rather than the future, in Mr. Case's opinion.

"It's time we called a spade a spade," he said. "Subsidies come out of the taxpayers' pockets and Canada's taxpayers don't have that much money so it had better be spent very wisely."

Mr. Case warned that if the marine industry didn't innovate, the aircraft industry would take over.

LOOK AHEAD

"By 1975, the jumbo jets will be carrying about 25 per cent of the cargo now being carried by ships," he said.

So it's a case of getting in and innovating, looking to the future and the needs of the country, according to Mr. Case.

"We have a fantastic potential, marine-wise. Some of the inventions becoming available, such as hovercraft, will assist Canada more than other countries because of our expanses of muskeg and tundra."

"We have the means in our country to develop new methods, and the technical know-how is just around the corner. And the marine industry has a lot to offer in this new world. But right now, it's hiding its light under a bushel."

Mr. Case's advice is to develop the country and take advantage of all the good ideas that Canadian citizens have and let the ideas pay their own way.

"Promote the innovator" is the way he put it.

RIGHT IDEA

"All the innovators aren't to be found in engineering offices," he said. "They can be found throughout the community."

Great Britain's National Research and Development Company has the right idea, he said.

The company insisted that the inventor of the hovercraft get together with people with drive and money.

"Put all this together and work it out. That's the way to do it."

The Case laboratory has done its share of innovating.

"We broke tradition when we stretched the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Esquimalt," Mr. Case explained.

The classification society which decides the specifications of vessels on particular bodies of water was persuaded to recognize for the first time that the Strait of Georgia had characteristics of its own.

"Up until our submission, ferries had to be built to specifications to withstand seas saved taxpayers about $300,000 on the Great Lakes. They have been said."

The building of Sealant at Oak Bay Marina was another example of innovations paying off.

Indecent Act Costs Man $400

"This court has a grave responsibility to deter lechers preying upon young girls," Magistrate Ostler said Wednesday in Central Magistrate's Court after finding a 22-year-old man guilty of an indecent act.

James F. Shorten, of 1661 Mortimer, was fined $400 and placed on a good-behaviour bond for one year. Two 12-year-old girls testified that he approached them on the Cedar Hill Golf Course, advanced several improper propositions and finally exposed himself.

Magistrate Ostler advised Shorten to seek psychiatric care.

A 25-year-old housewife was fined $100 after pleading guilty to a charge of theft under $50. Heather M. Ouellette, of 535 West Bay Terrace, admitted she had taken a pair of pants hose valued at 99 cents from the counter of a local store and left without paying.

"Shoplifting in this area is an epidemic," observed the magistrate.

Robert J. Haight, 22, of 416 Hawkes and Wilfred R. Low, 23, of 1242 Faithful, were fined $50 each after pleading guilty to consuming liquor in a public place.

A Victoria youth, who turned 18 last week, was sentenced to six months in the Young Offenders' Unit for car theft.

Island Link Rejected

Copter Firm Rapped

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian transport commission strongly criticized Northern Helicopters Ltd., of Abbotsford, B.C. Wednesday, in turning down two applications by the company to operate West Coast passenger and crop-spraying services. The commission's air transport committee expressed concern at the cost to the taxpayer and intervening parties caused by the submission of Northern's "ill-prepared application."

Northern had proposed to schedule helicopter service between Vancouver and Victoria for $17 one-way and $30 round-trip, and between Vancouver and Nanaimo for $12 one-way and $20 round-trip.

The committee concluded that the company had "over-estimated traffic, underestimated the number of aircraft required, grossly underestimated its costs, and failed to establish a need for the service."

Mearns

Director Will Leave Hydro for Harbors

Premier Bennett announced Wednesday that William C. Mearns will retire Sept. 1 as director of the B.C. Power and Hydro Authority.

Mr. Mearns, who has been a director since 1961, when the B.C. government took over the B.C. Electric Co. and formed B.C. Hydro, will now devote his full time to his other job of chairman of the B.C. Harbors Board, the premier said.

The two positions on the B.C. Hydro executive committee left open by Mr. Mearns and recently retired co-chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside will be filled by Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

Also appointed to the executive committee is recently retired B.C. Hydro chief engineer John Steede.

Coroner's Warrant

Missing Witness Faces Arrest

A jury inquiring into the death of motorcyclist Stewart Blake Ramsay, 17, killed in a crash with a car early June 28, was told Wednesday that a bench warrant would be issued for the arrest of a witness.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre told the inquest he would issue a warrant on proof that Terrance Patrick Martin, 840

Craigflower had been properly subpoenaed as a witness.

Court was told Mr. Martin had been in the hall of the Law Courts waiting to testify but when the court officer went to call him about 10 p.m., he was gone.

The jury heard evidence from eight witnesses including three occupants of the car involved. The inquest was adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

'Torpedo' Off Oak Bay Probably Tidal Meter

A torpedo-shaped device that appeared in Oak Bay waters Wednesday was probably a tidal current meter, a Canadian Hydrographic Service spokesman said.

Oak Bay police were notified of the object and turned over the investigation to the hydrographic service.

Victoria Man Top Chopper

The hydrographic service plants the five-foot-long meters in the sea to measure the force and direction of tides by means of a propeller and electronic equipment, said Ernest Geldart, marine superintendent for the service.

Brian Herlihy of 3334 Painter won the standing block chop, hard-hut chop and log-chopping competitions at the weekend Timber Carnival in Albany. Another Victoria man, Hugh McKenzie, won the axe-throwing event.

Young Czech Singers Like Any Other Children

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

Ludek Dvorak, youngest member of the Brno Children's Choir, from Czechoslovakia, doesn't miss his mother. He's having too good a time.

Aged 11, Ludek, who is no relation of his country's most famous composer, Antonin Dvorak, is one of 20 in a choir

People are people wherever they live and whatever language they speak. This is the theory behind the Children to Children Cultural Exchange which is

Although they sing in six languages, none speaks English, and Ludek was interviewed through Erika Kurth, Czech-born Victoria soprano. Professor Frantisek Lysek, conductor and founder of the choir, is a world authority in

Smythe and Ballard Charged with Tax Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, two of Canada's best-known names in the management of professional hockey, were charged Wednesday with income tax evasion over a four-year period.

The charges involve $278,920 for Smythe and $124,685 for Ballard, both directors of Toronto Maple Leafs, home of the National Hockey League.

The information against Smythe alleges that between April, 1965, and March, 1968, he evaded income taxes of $278,920, made up as follows:

- The sum of $35,576 appropriated by him from monies payable to Maple Leaf Gardens in respect of the Marlboro Hockey Club.
- A total of $208,166 appropriated by him from Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., in respect to the cost of construction and improving his residence.
- The sum of $35,178 appropriated from the Gardens for personal and family expenses.

The other four counts allege that Smythe made "false or deceptive" statements in his tax returns for the years 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

In 1964, the crown alleges, Smythe made a false statement by saying he had incurred a loss of $15,146 when he had failed to report income of $4,910.

In 1965, Smythe reported his income as $9,906, the crown alleges, but failed to report income of $10,165.

In 1966, the information said his return was falsified again when he reported an income of $34,330. The crown claims he should have reported another $221,115.

The 1967 return listed income of $38,273, which the crown said should have shown another $42,728.

In the case of Ballard, the information alleges that he evaded taxes on $134,685

income received by him from the Gardens. The crown charges Ballard appropriated $74,336 from the Gardens in respect of the cost of constructing and improving his residence.

It adds that he also appropriated $24,713 from the Gardens for personal and family expenses and $35,575 from monies payable to the Gardens in respect of the Marlboro Hockey Club. The Marlboros are in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

For the tax year 1967, the crown alleges Ballard made a false statement by saying his income was $64,628, but failed to report other income of $4,481.

In 1965, it charges his reported income was $39,358 when in reality it was $13,717 higher. In 1966, the crown alleges, Ballard reported an income of $261,743, but failed to include another $41,686.

For the tax year 1967, the information says Ballard reported $68,113, but allegedly failed to show a further $74,798.

The two are to appear in court July 17.

Penalties under the Income Tax Act depend on whether the Crown proceeds summarily or through an indictment.

A summary involves a trial in provincial court. Upon conviction there is a minimum fine of $25 and a maximum of $100,000 on each count, plus double the tax that should be paid and possibly imprisonment for up to three years.

If the Crown decided to proceed by indictment, which would be before a higher court, imprisonment, in addition to the other penalties, could be as high as five years and not less than two months.

The shock announcement came only 13 days after both Smythe and Ballard were fired as president and executive vice-president respectively of the Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Both are still members of the board and are governors and alternate governors, respectively, of the NHL.

Cliff Allan with sighted bow

City Archers Train For Championships

By KEVAN HULL

To see Cliff Allan relaxing over a picnic lunch would give one the impression of an average working man of 26.

Watching him at his hobby a few minutes later, that impression would be swiftly wiped out. There is nothing average in the way the young welder manipulates his bow on the target range. And that is why he rates as the Vancouver Island hope to dethrone two-time winner Don Jackson, of London, Ont., when the Canadian Archery championships are held here Monday through Thursday, at Macdonald Park.

ALL BUSINESS

Everything is in earnest from the moment he slips into his glove, arm and chest guards and slips on the side quiver of arrows.

A quick adjustment of the sight on the bow and a 29 and one-half inch aluminum arrow is readied for shooting.

The left arm is stiffly extended perpendicular to the body and the right arm takes the initial pull on the string.

MOUTH SHOWS MARKS

Then the string is brought smartly back to the right-hand corner of his mouth, which shows the mark of thousands of pulls — a quick final sighting and twang, the arrow speeds to the target centre on the straw buff.

Six ends (a group of six arrows shot at the target) in 50 metres and there is less than a foot separating any of the 36 shots.

This is the style which won Allan the free style aggregate at Nanaimo in the recent Vancouver Island championships with a record total of 1307 which included records in the American and Field rounds of 734-810 and 271-300.

BOW UNDER TREE

"I hadn't intended to become involved in archery," said Allan. "I went shopping with my mother for a bow for my brother Glen. When Christmas morning came there were two bows under the tree."

That was five years ago and he has been a member of Seaview Archers since then, starting with a bare bow (no sight). He won the Island field event three years ago before switching to the sighted bow.

Glen has since changed to guns and represented Canada at Bixley, England in last year's international cadet shoot.

But another member of the Allan family has been progressing rapidly in archery and hopes to capture the junior girls' title in the Canadians.

Sister Wanda, 14, holds indoor records for the Island senior in the bare bow and B.C. junior girls' instinctive events.

Miss Allan, who earned the money to go to the meet by berry picking, won the clout shoot in the Pacific North West tournament in Longview last year and placed third in the freestyle, despite using the bare bow.

The brother and sister team were both warming up Wednesday by shooting a FITA (Federation of International Target Archers) round with veteran Lil Jones, who founded the club with her husband, Frank, in 1963.

Mrs. Jones, ladies' freestyle titlist in the Island meet and holder of several records, and the Allans were all within striking range of the Canadian event marks in the practice.

Coffey Shines In Ti-Cat Win

EDMONTON — A 42-year-old field goal by Tommy Joe Coffey, his fourth of the night, midway through the final quarter gave Hamilton Tiger-Cats a 22-21 win over Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday night in the first round of the Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Eskimos still had a chance to win the game, before 12,500 fans, but a fumble by quarterback Corey Colehour snuffed out the last threat.

STRUCK QUICKLY
Ti-Cats struck quickly with Joe Zuger hitting halfback Ed Buchanan for an 85-yard pass just 32 seconds of play but it was Hamilton's last touchdown.

With Coffey adding the convert, and kicking a 10-yard field goal and single, Ti-Cats led 11-6 at the end of the first quarter.

Coffey and Zuger combined for 20 first downs compared with Hamilton's 14. The Eskimos had a total offence of 382 yards compared with the Tiger-Cats' 352.

PASS COMPLETIONS
Zuger combined with John Echman to complete 23 of 22 passes while Colehour and Fulton completed 26 of 37.

Hamilton's Willie Betha topped the running with a 107-yard yardage on four carries.

Hamilton's Willie Betha topped the running with a 107-yard yardage on four carries.

Eskimos started a comeback for 27 yards and Jim Thomas with a third-quarter touchdown with 25 yards in eight carries by Colehour from the one and took the lead at 21-19 in the final quarter when Colehour hit Karl Sneider with a 30-yard touchdown pass and Joe Petrone converted and added a single.

Al Irwin scored Edmonton's first touchdown on a pass from Colehour with the play covering 24 yards.

While Hamilton was on the winning side of the scoreboard the statistics showed Edmonton with 20 first downs compared with Hamilton's 14. The Eskimos had a total offence of 382 yards compared with the Tiger-Cats' 352.

continually gave it away with bad passing.

Game statistics charge Shamrocks with losing the ball 18 times through errant passes, but it appeared as if it happened that often in the first period alone.

By JIM TANG

There isn't much sense skirting the truth any longer. The reason Victoria Shamrocks are 2-12 in the Western Lacrosse Association isn't tough luck or the fault of game officials. It's just that they haven't enough talent.

The proof was there again for the 1412 fans at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

Not only did the league-leading Coquitlam Adanacs come to battle without scoring stars Mike Gates and John Allen, they had to start rookie Terry Garrett in goal and probably turned in their poorest performance of the season.

MADE NO MATTER
It made no matter. The Shamrocks were in the running for no more than 12 minutes and the eventual victory of the defeat, this time by 12-7, was obvious from the time Bill Bradley and Wayne Spooner scored 17 seconds apart to break a 2-2 tie.

It was 6-2 at the end of the first period, and Shamrocks made no serious threat in the remainder of one of the year's duller games.

They had their chances. Looking anything but like a club which started the game 13-1, Adanacs gave the ball away time and again with wild shooting, lost 19 of the 32 faceoffs and were generally dull.

But they never looked like possible losers. Shamrocks weren't moving, left everything up to the man in possession when they had the ball and Phil Niekro failed to become the first major leaguer to win 15 games this season, losing a pitching duel to Bill Singer, 12-6.

In the other games, San Francisco dumped Houston, 10-3, and Cincinnati downed San Diego, 4-3.

Baltimore, Orioles' Dave McNally failed again to gain his 13th victory without a loss but the leaders in the Eastern Division of the American League took him off the hook by rallying for a 6-5 victory in 10 innings over New York Yankees.

Detroit Tigers regained second place by defeating Boston Red Sox, 6-5, in a game which was marred by five throwing errors.

In other single games, Washington Senators blanked Cleveland Indians, 5-0, on Joe Coleman's four-hitter; Chicago White Sox downed Oakland Athletics 5-3, on Pete Ward's three-run pinch home run; and Kansas City Royals stopped Minnesota Twins, 4-3.

Seattle Pilots split a doubleheader with California, winning the first, 8-0, before Angels came back, 5-0.

Shamrocks Shortcomings Evident Again

Short-Staffed Adanacs Coast to Win

Coquitlam Adanacs

There isn't much sense skirting the truth any longer. The reason Victoria Shamrocks are 2-12 in the Western Lacrosse Association isn't tough luck or the fault of game officials. It's just that they haven't enough talent.

The proof was there again for the 1412 fans at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

It Could Be Goodbye Leroy Sledge If Brash Rookie Produces Tonight

VANCOUVER (Special) — Mexico State, will start at split end for the Lions in their exhibition game against Montreal Alouettes. If he does well, it could be goodbye, Leroy.

Head-coach Jim Champion, burned once by Sledge last year, said at the start of training camp that Leroy would make it at split end or nowhere. In last Sunday's 26-10 loss to Calgary Stampeders, Sledge had two passes thrown his way, dropped one and didn't get to the other. His pass patterns were, shall we say, casual.

Now enter Taylor, who set all sorts of career records as a receiver at New Mexico State and was drafted 12th by St. Louis Cardinals.

Hampered by a leg injury, he was unimpressive in the opening scrimmage and hasn't played since. But he's been getting better, and telling reporters not to worry, because "I could beat Leroy before breakfast."

SLUDGE ON BURNER
By the time the season opens, the man he'll probably have to beat is Canadian Jim Young, who could, in turn, make Taylor's chances of survival somewhat slim. Right now, the man on the burner is Sledge, which comes as a great shock to fans used to yelling, "Give the ball to Leroy." Leroy has yet to prove that he wants it.

Veteran Canadian defensive end Dick Fouts and import will replace Jim Heighton at halfback. Dale Brady will be the left defensive tackle, and Ken only two Lions of the 49 left in Ferguson will play left corner camp who'll miss tonight's game. Meanwhile, Champion has made some changes in a defense that proved dangerously porous against Calgary.

BIGGEST QUESTION
But the biggest question still is whether or not Pete Olier can play first-string quarterback. He and import Paul Brothers had a bad afternoon against Calgary and despite all the flag-waving, Canadian rookie Hank Grenda simply isn't ready to step in.

The offensive line is excellent, the running game promising. But if Olier can't make it, they're dead. "We know we can do it," says Champion. But the man he and Ted Gerela on the inside, must convince is Olier, who Garrett Hunsperger, a rookie just might lack the confidence import form Central Missouri to stick.

Tonight's game between Montreal Alouettes and B.C. Lions will be broadcast on radio stations CFAX (1070) and CKNW (980) starting at 8:00.

Charles' 66 Leads British Open Golf

LYTHAM ST. ANNES (AP) — Bob Charles, a left-handed New Zealander who won the title six years ago, carved a two-stroke lead Wednesday in the first round of the British Open.

Charles equalled his own course record of 66 for the Royal Lytham and St. Annes layout and actually set a record because Lytham has been revamped and lengthened to 6,848 yards since he fired a 66 in 1963.

SHARE SECOND

Hedley Muscroft and Tony Jacklin, both of England, were next with three-under-par 68s while Miller Barber had the best American score at 69, tied with Jean Garrahalde of France and Hugh Jackson of Ireland.

Jacklin, who sank putts of 18, 20 and 15 feet on the first nine, was so happy about his round that he said "now I've got a feeling that an Englishman might win this one." The last Briton to win this 169-year-old crown was Max Faulkner in 1951. Faulkner had a 71 Wednesday.

United States Open champion Orville Moody, Davis Love Jr. of Atlanta and Billy Casper were in at 70, along with Bernard Gallacher, 20-year-old newcomer from Scotland, and Guy Wolstenholme of England.

DRIVE MEANT TROUBLE
Lee Trevino of Dallas, former U.S. Open champ, shot a 72, and Masters champion George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., staggered in with a 73.

"I'm leaving my driver in the clubhouse next time," Trevino said. "I'm going out with a three wood and a one iron. If you get into the rough here you can be in real trouble. I should know. I saw plenty of it on this round."

"I hit the rough so many times that I felt as though I was cutting hay out there," Archer cracked.

Jack Nicklaus and defending champion Gary Player also had their troubles. Nicklaus with a 75 and Player a 74.

"I was one under par after the 13th and feeling great," said Nicklaus. "Then my game got away from me. You've got to get some good bounces here."

Player said he putted badly. "I read the greens poorly and if you do that then you don't expect to score." However, the South African added:

"I've been eight shots behind the pace before and there's still a lot of time ahead."

Thirteen players in this star-studded field-rated, stronger than any in this ancient championship's history, broke par on the first day. Six others equaled it.

Coleman Joins Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Fullback Lovell Coleman, a former star with Calgary Stampede of the Western Football Conference and used sparingly last season with Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders, has signed a tryout contract with Montreal Alouettes.

Coleman, Schenley award winner in 1964, will work out in Montreal until the Eastern Football Conference club returns from a two-game exhibition swing to Western Canada. He is classified as a non-import and will act as backup for the two men the Als select for the team's proposed two running-back positions.

Nine Canadians Place In Top 20 at Bisley

BISLEY, England (CP) — Consistent shooting by Canadian armed forces marksmen gave them nine of the first 20 places Wednesday in the top-rated service rifle championship at the annual Commonwealth meet.

A sharpshooter from London, Ont., took second place among 300 competitors and eight other Canadians beat out a bunch of British service champions to pick off almost half the hedges awarded for shooting in nine events over the first three days of the big shoot.

TOP CANADIAN

The second-place award went to Cpl. J. A. Gallant, 27, a native of Richmond, P.E.I., who is with the Royal Canadian Regiment at London. Gallant nosed out the RAF champion but lost out to W.O. J. M. Siddall of the British army's School of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering in Hampshire.

The Canadian had 459 of a possible 555 in a variety of shots at different distances under service conditions, five behind the winner. Last year the top Canadian was fourth.

TWO TEAMS SECOND

In other results announced Wednesday from earlier shooting—Bisley's tabulation is slow—the Canadian service group took two second places in team matches.

A four-man team came second in the Canada Shield event for high aggregate in the first stage of the Queen Mary event fired Tuesday. Another quartet was second for the Hythe Trophy, based on events shot Monday and Tuesday.

QUALIFY FOR FINAL

Six of the Canadian shots—half the number entered—also qualified for the final of the Queen Mary which was fired late Wednesday. Only one—Sgt. Joe Daigle—made the first 10, in ninth place with 325 behind the British winner's 343.

The Queen Mary involves a miscellany of shooting under service conditions at several distances. The Hythe is for standing and sitting events.

CANADIAN CAME CLOSE

In the coveted service rifle championship settled Wednesday, some experts thought Canada ran into hard luck in not taking first place.

Cpl. Lucien (Bill) Delaroshil of Quebec City, a member of the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment—which provides 11 of the 14 members of the services team—appeared to be coasting about 10 points ahead of the field when he ran into technical trouble at the butts in his last match.

He was supposed to shoot at 10 quickly-exposed targets. Only nine came up and he had to shoot over again. On the reshoot he fared poorly and wound up in fourth place. Delaroshil had 458.

The next Canadian behind Delaroshil was Sgt. Jake Chaston of the air force in Winnipeg with 450 for seventh. Cpl. Carol Potvin of Courcellette, Que., was 11th with 443.

FORMER WINNER

Sgt. Daigle of Shannon, Que., a Van Doo who won the rifle grand aggregate and the Queen Mary match in 1965, came up with a 441 to give him 14th place.

The 17th, 18th and 19th places were taken by Cpl. Laval Mercier of Neuchâtel, Que., with 436; Cpl. Andy Bienville of Que-

Bid to Ban South Africa Fails

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP)—The International Lawn Tennis Federation rejected a Swedish proposal Wednesday that would have automatically barred South Africa from major international tennis tournaments.

Officials reported that the ninth annual meeting of the world tennis body adopted, instead, a compromise proposal giving the federations' management committee the power to exclude players or teams from competition for various reasons by a two-thirds vote.

The reasons include discrimination in racial and political questions and other rule infractions.

The Swedish proposal would have written into the international rules exclusion of players from any country with racial laws.

Manitoba's First NDP Cabinet Meets Today

By TERRY ROBERTS
WINNIPEG (CP) — The first New Democratic Party cabinet in Canadian political history meets today for the first time to chart Manitoba's course under Premier-Designate Ed Schreyer.

At the same time, the Progressive Conservative cabinet of Premier Walter Weir, toppled by the NDP in the June 25 Manitoba election, holds its final meeting.

The 13-member Schreyer cabinet, named at a news conference Wednesday, is to be sworn in Tuesday when the resignation of the Weir administration becomes effective.

Mr. Schreyer kept the post of industry and commerce minister for himself in an attempt to stop any fears businessmen may have about an NDP government.

Average age of the cabinet is 43, youngest ever for Manitoba. Schreyer, 33, also will be Canada's youngest premier though not the youngest to take office — a distinction that fell to premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island who was sworn in at the age of 32 in 1966.

Schreyer said he kept the industry and commerce portfolio as a "psychological factor" because there seems to be an opinion that "in the business community they would be reassured by my own personal position on policy."

He said when his fledgling government gains some experience he would relinquish the portfolio.

Saul Cherniack, 32-year-old lawyer, member for the North Winnipeg constituency of St. John's and financial critic since entering the house in 1962, was appointed finance minister.

A. R. (Russ) Pauley of Transona, whose retirement as leader brought Schreyer from the attorney-general's job. He is one of five appointed who have not had previous legislative experience.

Other appointments were: Agriculture, Sam Uslaw, 35, Lac du Bonnet; consumer and corporate affairs, Rene Toupin, 33, Springfield; without portfolio, Phillip Peterson, 66, Wellington; mines and natural resources, Leonard Evans, 39, Brandon; transport, Joe Borowski, Thompson East; tourism and recreation, Peter Burtniak, 43, Dauphin; youth and education, Saul Miller, 32, Seven from a Conservative, was given the attorney-general's job. He is one of five appointed who have not had previous legislative experience.

Lawyer A. H. (Al) Mackling, 41, who took St. James away

Storm-Hit Ra To Get Escort

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands (UPI) — Explorer Thor Heyerdahl, his papyrus boat Ra battered by Atlantic storms, will receive an escort on the last leg of his trans-oceanic voyage from Africa to Mexico.

The converted tanker Shenandoah left here today and was expected to rendezvous with the Ra Sunday night or Monday morning about 850 miles east of Martinique.

Heyerdahl, who seeks to show that ancient Egyptians could have made similar transoceanic trips thousands of years ago, asked for the escort after the Ra's life raft was scuttled and the last spare Papyrus bundles on board were used to support a sagging stern.

The Ra's last reported position was 1,050 miles due east of Fort de France, Martinique, and was moving westward at a speed better than two knots.

Heyerdahl told shore stations that the escort would serve as a safety backstop in the pounding seas, which had again forced the stern end of the raft below wave level.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old son turned up at the breakfast table with his hair tinted red. My husband almost hit him. I am in a state of shock. It seems Larry let his girl friend "experiment" on him. When we told Larry we were horrified he said the color of a person's hair shouldn't make THAT much difference.

Larry's hair used to be a golden blond and now he looks as if he is wearing a wig. The girl also tried to dye his eyebrows and one eyebrow is redder than the other. He looks like a freak. We didn't say much when he let his hair grow longer on the sides (it's really shorter than most of his friends) but this latest move is too much. What shall we do? — Buffalo Parents.

Dear Buff: It's his hair and his problem. Larry will get plenty of needling from his friends. You won't have to do anything. Time and patience are your best allies.

Dear Ann Landers: Four months ago my wife's parents moved to this city—five blocks from us and across the street from another daughter. They are not old people, Ann. They are in their early 50s, yet they have developed no interests and no friends, only us. My wife's sister got smart after the folks had been in town only six weeks. She insisted that her husband request a transfer. They moved out of the state and now we have them all the time. By "all the time" I mean five nights a week—and it's murder.

My wife is as fed up as I am. I am writing at her request. Can you help us? — Over-Visited.

Help Yourself

Dear Over: Sorry, I can't help you. I'm here. But your wife is there. She can help herself—and I hope she will. Here's how. She should introduce her parents to people their own age. For openness, I suggest a small party to which she can invite the parents of your friends. If this doesn't work, you and your wife should make plans and announce in advance that you are busy with previous commitments.

Dear Ann Landers: Can getting munched on run in the family? My Dad is the Number One target for relatives who want to borrow luggage, golf clubs, garden tools, etc. My mother has been driving "the girls" to their weekly club meeting for so long they don't even say "thank you."

HEMEL HAMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — David Reid, 18-months, wanted more dessert and poked his finger in a can to see if any was left. His hand got stuck in the can, but two hours later firemen managed to remove the tin.

Dentist Criticizes Parents

MONTREAL (CP) — A United States dentist said Wednesday it is important to sell dentistry to parents.

Dr. Theodore C. Levitas of Atlanta, Ga., said almost 90 per cent of children under age five in the U.S. have never seen a dentist.

About half of those under 15 have never visited one and the average U.S. teenager has seven decayed, missing or filled teeth.

In an address to a group of dentists at the Canadian Dental Association's annual meeting, he said:

"There is certainly no doubt of the need for dental care, but very often the parents only decide a child needs help after they have been up the whole night before with their child."

Dr. Levitas said dentistry for children "is perhaps the most needed and yet the most neglected of all services performed by the dentist."

He emphasized the need for consultations with both parents before complete dental services for a child are undertaken.

"There is no way one parent can relay accurately the information he is given by the dentist. Most people have no concept of what dentistry is today."

"But if the parents understand what needs to be done they will more readily accept the expense."

Asked after his lecture how parents should prepare children for a visit to a dentist, Dr. Levitas said:

"The less they tell the child the better it is. They shouldn't tell the child not to worry because the dentist isn't going to hurt them."

"Then I can explain to the child exactly what procedures are involved. I believe it's important to prepare him for the noise and smell."

Dr. Levitas advised parents to brush the child's teeth after meals, since "the average child is simply not physically able to brush his teeth properly."

He said children should first see a dentist at about two to three years of age, and thereafter at four-month intervals because primary or "baby" teeth must be as well cared for as permanent teeth.

Cross-U.S. Flight

Blonde Wins Powder Puff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Mara Culp, 27, Newport Beach, Calif., a petite blonde native of Latvia who married her flying instructor, Wednesday won the 23rd annual Powder Puff Derby cross-country competition.

Mrs. Culp, a veteran of 2,000 flying hours, claimed $2,000 in cash, a new wardrobe and an all-expense paid visit to Paris for her and her husband, Richard. She led Californians to a sweep of the first four places in the women's air race.

The 5-foot, 2-inch charter pilot for Martin Aviation Corp. logged the distance from San Diego to Washington's Dulles International Airport in 11 hours and 57 minutes flying alone in a single-engine Piper Comanche.

ERMA BOMBECK on Being Alone

Why Togetherness?

There was a rumor on a crowded bus the other day that family togetherness is out!

I started the rumor. I also printed it in the dust on a few parked cars and scribbled it on a wall at the zoo.

I don't know what got into me. I guess it came from watching television with the family and hearing only four people chew hard pretzels. Maybe it was triggered by a vacation with four maniacs who put quarters into my "massage" bed all night so I would think I was on an ocean voyage. Or it might have been my list of kiddie matinee. (Three more haircuts and the bubblegum will be gone.)

How come psychologists make you feel like some kind of weirdo if you want to be alone. I like children. I even took one to lunch last week, but we're not an organized baseball team, for crying out loud!

Housewives are usually lonely — it's an occupational hazard — but they are never alone. There's a difference.

Being alone is picking out a new lipstick without a baby tugging at your garter belt. It's talking on the phone without clicking your fingers. It's being in the bathroom without notes coming under the door. It's taking a nap with your eyes closed. It's stopping a car suddenly without your hand automatically going out to hold in your passenger. It's talking to yourself without getting an answer. It's thinking, when it's quiet.

A few summers ago it occurred to me I didn't know what I thought about things anymore. How could I? I never had time to devote to anything deeper than whether I would have string beans or squash for dinner. We were vacationing in Maine and I thought to myself, "I'll slip away from the group and find a place all my very own and I'll do something drastic like ... read a chapter out of a book."

It seemed pretty daring, but that afternoon I left a note ("Starve to death till I return") and went down to a virgin piece of oceanfront. It was scattered by rocks; water crashed against the shore. I walked.

Finally, the rocks turned to a sandy beach. The silence was broken only by a few scattered birds. I don't know how long I wandered. Then I saw it. A large rock surrounded by water, looking like an island. I took off my shoes and waded out to it. As I neared its top, I felt young and free and at peace.

Then a voice on the other side yelled, "Hey, Mon, wanta see a dead starfish that don't smell too bad?"

Remember you heard it here first. The family that plays together eventually winds up scribbling nasty thoughts on zoo walls.

Try Lobster Tails or Zucchini

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

There are barbecues and barbecues. Some are spur-of-the-moment dinners because it is suddenly too nice to eat indoors. Some are arranged for weekends and some are a little special — the all-important barbecue when something special is called for. A little more important than hamburgers and something different from the usual steak or chops.

This is the time to start thinking about lobster tails. Encasing them in foil and baking them in the coals is an especially nice way to barbecue this delicious seafood.

FOIL RAKED LOBSTER

6 lobster tails, 1 cup butter, 1/2 cup finely chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions, 2 tablespoons, chopped black olives, 1 teaspoon paprika, 6 slices lemon.

If lobster tails are frozen, run under lukewarm water until slightly thawed. With scissors remove underside membrane. Place two tails side by side on a square of heavy-duty aluminum foil.

Combine remaining ingredients except lemon slices and form into a roll. Cut roll in 1/2 inch thick slices. Place slices on meat surface of lobster. Add a lemon slice to each. Wrap foil tightly around tails and seal.

Place packets in gray coals. Cook for 10 minutes on each side. Butter mixture may be made a day ahead and sliced at the last minute.

While on the subject of barbecues don't neglect the vegetables for this type of cooking. They are good cooked on the grill in foil packets; either individual ones with a single serving or a big bundle with enough for all.

Long-cooking vegetables such as potatoes and onions can be started ahead of the steak or other favorites. Fresh vegetables such as new peas, summer squash and zucchini can be tucked around the outside when the centre of the grill is filled with the main course.

Frozen vegetables can be cooked on the grill too. Just partially thaw, and break apart solidly-packed vegetables, then cook in the same manner as fresh ones.

All vegetables take somewhat longer than when cooked on the range since the heat will vary. But it is such an easy way of preparing them and since they are tightly sealed in foil, they cook in their own juice with no flavor lost.

BUTTERED RAKED POTATOES

Scrub good-sized potatoes, then cut in quarters. Arrange each quartered potato in the centre of a square of heavy-duty foil. Pour two tablespoons melted butter or margarine over each, covering them well. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap potatoes, sealing foil with a double fold. Place on the grill over a medium hot fire and cook for 45 minutes, (turning frequently) or until soft when pinched.

BERMUDA ONIONS

Select good-sized Bermuda onions. Do not peel. Prick through with a long tined fork several times so they won't burst when cooking. Place each on a square of heavy-duty foil and wrap, twisting at the top to seal. Place on grill and cook, rolling around several times. When soft open and turn back foil. Slit with a sharp knife as you would a potato, add butter, salt and pepper.

GREEN PEAS

Shell 1 pound of new peas and place on heavy-duty foil. Add one tablespoon butter, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, a sprinkling of pepper and nutmeg and 2 teaspoons chopped fresh mint. Close the foil, twisting at top to seal. Place on the grill and cook gently about 20 minutes, shaking occasionally. Open package and pour over 1 can condensed cream of celery soup. Stir to combine and continue cooking until sauce is hot.

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

Two pounds zucchini, sliced, 2 tomatoes, peeled and chopped, 1 onion, thinly sliced, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon or 3 sprigs fresh basil, 1/2 teaspoon oregano, 3 tablespoons butter.

Place zucchini, tomatoes and onion in centre of large square of heavy-duty foil. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, basil, and oregano. Dot with butter. Bring foil up over vegetables and seal with a fold to make a tight package. Cook over moderate fire, shaking occasionally, 30 to 40 minutes.

FROZEN BABY LIMAS WITH CREAM SAUCE

Partially thaw one 8-10 ounce package of small lima beans. Place in centre of a square of heavy-duty foil. Add 3 tablespoons water, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/2 teaspoon salt and a sprinkling of pepper. Close the foil and twist at top to seal. Place on grill and cook gently about 20 minutes, shaking occasionally. Open package and pour over 1 can condensed cream of celery soup. Stir to combine and continue cooking until sauce is hot.

Improved Diet Spurs Growth

MONTREAL (CP) — Undernourished children fed an improved diet have shown remarkable growth spurts of two to three times normal, the Canadian Pediatric Society was told Wednesday.

Df. M. de Levis of Montreal told delegates attending the 46th annual meeting of the society the phenomenon is described by some doctors as "catch-up growth."

Not only the body but the skull in undernourished young children increased in size during a period of improved dietary intake, he said.

"It has been recently recognized that the skull in malnourished young children may increase in size during the period of improved dietary intake."

"With the restoration of an adequate diet, brain growth proceeds at a rapid rate and is reflected clinically by an increase in head circumference and radiologically by widening of the cranial sutures."

Cranial refers to the area of the head and sutures are a type of fibrous joint in which the opposed surfaces are closely united.

When the child catches up to his original or expected growth curve, said the pediatrician, the velocity of brain growth will be reduced to that rate normally expected for that particular age.

Road to Top Smoother For Today's Secretaries

TORONTO (CP) — Of the 75,000 clerical workers in Ontario, only a few can be called executive secretaries, who are generally defined as working in the management field earning as much as $175 a week.

Ruth Carrier, Miss Toronto 1951, is such a secretary, but her rise to the top was a gradual process. For the last six years she has been secretary to Graham C. Ferguson, president of Canadian secretary to Graham C. Ferguson, president of Canadian secretary to Graham C. Ferguson, president of Canadian mutual funds.

Nowadays the road to the top has been smoothed by the greater availability of professional secretarial training,

For example, graduates of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute's secretarial science course step into jobs with starting salaries in the $100 to $120 range.

Also changing is the kind of responsibility a secretary might have. In the words of Ruth's boss, Ferguson, the main function of his secretary is to organize his activities so that his days in the office will be "free-flowing."

"She must have the necessary judgment to redirect correspondence within the company and will therefore have to be thoroughly familiar with the activity in all departments," Ferguson said.

"She does not make executive decisions, but she will have to determine the urgency of specific confidential items that come up during my absence."

Levels of responsibility will vary greatly from job to job. In some instances the executive secretary will be managing a large office staff and in another she might be functioning as a research assistant.

In response to the added responsibilities, secretaries are accepting the Association of Administrative Assistants or Private Secretaries, founded in 1957 to upgrade the standards of secretarial work by improving qualifications.

John D Still Foe of Bill

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — It isn't because former prime minister John Diefenbaker has softened on the official languages bill that he didn't vote against it.

His opposition is "as strong today as it always was," he said in an interview Wednesday.

He explained that the House had planned to recess at the end of June. He had made speaking engagements for July. So when the bill came up for third reading this week, he was not in the House.

The bill "will divide the country and cannot be justified in that it will result in every person except those of English or French origin being made second-class citizens."

Diefenbaker said the bill amends the constitution and "this is a dangerous step as it renders the Canadian constitution a pawn in the hands of a government with a majority."

Primrose

TV Man Slapped

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal member of Parliament Wednesday slapped a free-lance TV sound technician outside the Commons chamber, the Canadian Contemporary News System reported.

In a news broadcast on CFRA Radio, reporter Arthur Lewis of the CCNS said the incident involved Viateur Ethier, member for Glengarry-Prescott, and Jim Primrose, a free-lance operator attached to the CBC-TV parliamentary crew.

The report said Ethier was leaving the Commons chamber when he spoke to Primrose in French. Primrose replied that he was sorry but he didn't speak French.

The radio report said Ethier persisted and spoke again in French and Primrose again replied he was not French-speaking.

Ethier then remarked that Canada was a bilingual country to which Primrose replied: "Is it?" The slapping incident followed.

Douglas Blasts Time Limits:

Grits Caught in Web of Duplicity

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's credibility has been destroyed by the introduction again of proposed rules to set time limits on House debates, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas told the Commons Wednesday.

The prime minister claimed he really did not want a time-limit rule for debates when proposals for time allocation first were discussed last December, Mr. Douglas said.

'NOT SERIOUS'

Trudeau had suggested the government was not really serious when it introduced a debate-limiting measure then, the NDP leader said. Trudeau had said later, after the measure was withdrawn, that it had been a decoy, designed to draw opposition fire away from other proposed rule changes which were put into effect Jan. 14.

Speaking in the second day of debate on three time-allocation rules recommended by the Commons procedure and organization committee, Mr. Douglas said the government has been caught in a web of duplicity and subterfuge.

The first rule suggested by the committee, 75A, would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation. The second, rule 75B, would provide for allocation when three of the four parties in the House agree. The third, rule 75C, would give the government power to limit debate without agreement from any other party.

Mr. Douglas said the Opposition is satisfied with 75A and 75B and that these rules would mean more order in handling House business.

But 75C, he said, exposes the government "in a blatant attempt to muzzle Parliament and downgrade the rights of its members."

Mr. Douglas said the argument by the government that it needed the time-limit rule because of protracted debates by the Opposition is not true.

ONLY ONE

"The only legislation that had extended debate was the Criminal Code amendments . . . a very important bill which required much examination."

He said there had been no other government in his experience in the Commons that had had an easier time in getting legislation through the House.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC-Oxford) said the timing of the debate does not suggest good faith. The government was indulging in gamesmanship.

Nesbitt suggested that "the triumvirate that runs the country"—Prime Minister Trudeau, State Secretary Gerald Pelletier and Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand—want debate limits because they favor a presidential system.

Seven Bills Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as deputy to Governor-General Roland Michener, gave royal assent to seven bills in the Senate chamber Wednesday.

They included the government's official languages bill which would make French and English the official languages of the federal administration and create bilingual districts in some areas of the country.

Also given royal assent were acts:

- To provide regional economic incentives;
- To authorize assistance to transportation in the Atlantic region;
- Respecting the Canada North-west Land Company Ltd.;
- Respecting Boy Scouts of Canada and to incorporate L'Association des Scouts du Canada;
- To amend the Patent Act;
- To amend the Canada Shipping Act.

With new CAREFREE Tampons, you can go anywhere and stay out longer. Read below and find out how if it's more possible.

Johnson & Johnson introduces CAREFREE* Tampons — a new concept in sanitary protection.

CAREFREE is an entirely new kind of tampon—much smaller than any tampon ever made, yet amazingly, it protects up to 3 hours longer.

Johnson & Johnson has developed CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. CAREFREE is, in fact, safe for up to 3 hours longer than any other tampon.

Another remarkable feature of the CAREFREE Tampon is that it is truly disposable. No more rigid cardboard tube to get rid of. CAREFREE comes without an applicator because it doesn't need one. There's just a neat, compact tampon in a cellophane wrapper.

What are other women doing about sanitary protection?

According to research studies conducted in Canada, the use of tampons is growing rapidly. Their use is widely accepted, particularly among the younger, more sophisticated women. In this group, the majority of women use tampons.

Most women think that tampons are indeed a good idea. But they worry about the reliability of present products, particularly when it comes to using them during the entire period. (Some women are so concerned that they use both tampons and napkins.) But such precautions are completely unnecessary with new CAREFREE Tampons.

*Trademark of JOHNSON & JOHNSON or Affiliated Companies

Higher absorbency
CAREFREE Tampons' greater absorbency results from a unique quality. While the traditional tampon expands lengthwise, the CAREFREE Tampon expands, logically enough, in width—as the flow requires. This gentle expansion causes the tampon to mould itself to the body contours so it's accident-proof.

Exhaustive clinical tests and actual use among 3,720 women have proven that CAREFREE Tampons can be worn, with complete assurance, even during days when the flow is heaviest.

New CAREFREE Tampons are truly disposable

The cumbersome applicator that you get with ordinary tampons is a thing of the past. CAREFREE doesn't have an applicator because it doesn't need one. It is compact, smooth and firm enough to be inserted easily without one. And this makes CAREFREE a truly disposable tampon.

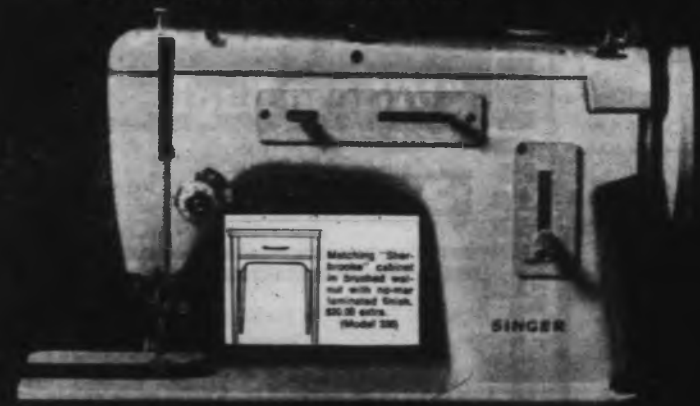

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon there is—so small you can hide one in the palm of your hand. So small you can even put a dozen of them in your most fashionable bag and still have room for all that you usually carry. (A whole box of CAREFREE Tampons takes up no more room than a small pack of cigarettes.)

Once they've tried CAREFREE Tampons women are quick to recognize their many great advantages. They're the only significant improvement in sanitary protection in years.

Mother Insists Musician 'Bathed to 48 Preludes'

By BERT BINNY

There's a pusher in town. He is Keith MacMillan, in Victoria for the 17th biennial convention of the Federation of Music Teachers' Associations, and says he, "I'm a pusher of Canadian music!"

Mr. MacMillan has been executive secretary of the Canadian Music Centre in Toronto for the past five years.

His father, the illustrious Sir Ernest MacMillan, is president of the centre.

"It's a kind of father-and-son act," observes Mr. MacMillan. "But, so far, we've never actually come to blows at board meetings."

Naturally, in such a musical

MacMillan

family, Keith MacMillan was early exposed to music.

"Probably before I was born," he says. "My mother always insisted that I was bathed to the 48 Preludes and Fugues of Bach!"

Mr. MacMillan is interested in all keyboard instruments; he does not play professionally but for his own enjoyment.

"But I was the drummer in my school band," he adds.

Actually, Canadian music couldn't have a better pusher. Mr. MacMillan knows his subject inside out, but he also has immense humor. He is scholarly without ever being pedantic.

"The Canadian music scene is just about to bust open," he says. "We have so many fine composers."

And he reels off a list of names which, though formidable, is still familiar. Among others was the name of Jean F. P. MacMillan. "There's one for you!" said Mr. MacMillan.

He is attending the Victoria convention to introduce new Canadian music. The Canadian Music Centre is particularly interested in music for young people, fostering not only its promotion but also its composition.

"Contemporary music is unfamiliar," he says, "both as a whole and in its idiom. Very often the youngsters—the pupils—are ahead of their teachers in the matter of appreciating it. After all, it's just about all they've ever heard."

Mr. MacMillan has four children whom he describes as: "He, she, he, 18, 17, 14 and 10."

The eldest, 18-year-old Ian.

Big Winner Won't Give Up His 'Pint'

LONDON — George Lamb, who earns $39 a week as a laborer, was presented with $260,734 he won on the British soccer pools.

But Lamb, who won the money in a pools entry he submitted for games played Saturday, won't be giving up his working class habits.

"I enjoy a pint in the pub," he said. "I'll be going back to do just that. I'll be giving up work though, than someone else not so lucky can have my job."

FLORENCE, Italy — Funeral services will be held here Friday for former Metropolitan Opera mezzo-soprano Gladys Swarthout, who died at 64.

LOS ANGELES — A. I. Hayakawa, 63, the jaunty Vancouver-born language expert who has ruled San Francisco State College with a firm hand as acting president, was permanent appointment, California State College trustees, as expected, voted him president by a 15-10-2 in a closed meeting.

LONDON — Actress Elizabeth Taylor said she may never make another movie. "I am seriously considering retiring from the screen," the 36-year-old film star said. "I may never work again."

SYDNEY, Australia — Marianne Faithfull, 22-year-old British girl friend of the Rolling Stones' Mick Jagger, lay unconscious in a hospital under intensive care after collapsing in a hotel suite.

LOS ANGELES — Nicky Kizala, 72-year-old reputed kingpin of the Cosa Nostra in Los Angeles, went to jail rather than tell a federal grand jury about the crime syndicate structure.

LONDON — Prince Philip made some new friends group of about 20 drug addicts at a southwest London rehabilitation centre. The prince spent about 30 minutes chatting with the youths, in a hot, stuffy smoke-filled room, about their problem.

ATLANTA, Ga. — Governor Lester Maddox, angry at federal order to Georgia to desegregate its school system, said he's willing to go to jail, give up all federal aid and shut down the state's schools rather than bow to the ultimatum from the U.S. justice department.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. — A deportation order was issued for Ruth Elsemann-Schier to return to her native Honduras at the end of her seven-year sentence for the $500,000 ransom kidnapping of Florida heiress Barbara Jane Mackie.

Hoffman, Dunaway To Film in Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — A western movie starring Dustin Hoffman and Faye Dunaway will be made in Calgary this fall.

Director Arthur Penn and 10 associates visited Alberta last weekend to choose the site for Canadian segments of Big Man, Little Man. The film is about General Custer's attacks on Indians in the American north-west and extending across the Canadian border.

Big Man, Little Man begins with Hoffman as an old man. In a flashback he recalls adventures as one of Custer's aides.

The story de-romanticizes much of the legend that has grown around Custer and his last stand.

It is expected that extras for the movie's battle scenes will be recruited in Calgary.

Arthur Penn established himself artistically with the Miracle Worker which won wide critical acclaim. However, it was his direction of Bonnie and Clyde that gave him popular fame. Bonnie and Clyde was the film that made a star of Miss Dunaway. Hoffman is best known as hero of The Graduate.

TV Expert, 14, Held As Thief

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — A 14-year-old boy, described as an "electronic buff", was responsible for a series of burglaries in the city's Eastwood section because he enjoyed outwitting burglar alarm systems, police said Wednesday.

Customs Solves Python Problem

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — Customs men here were faced with a shoppery problem when a young man showed up with eight pythons in his coat pockets, saying he had obtained them in New Guinea for research. The officials seized the non-poisonous snakes as prohibited imports. One was four feet long and two inches thick.

Police said 14 or more burglaries were solved by the arrest of the boy. In one case, he had outwitted a close-circuit television detection system, they said.

In that case, the boy entered a store, located the television camera, and when the proprietor's back was turned, snapped a picture of the empty shop with his own camera.

Then, when he staged a burglary, he placed his own picture of the empty store in front of the television camera.

The case was broken when the boy's parents found stolen items piled up in the family garage. They called police. Places burglarized included a school, a church, stores and other businesses.

The 14-year-old also implicated a 12-year-old, police said. Neither was identified because of age.

Owner Advocates Association

Motel Unity Would Keep Bloom on Boom

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

The words "no vacancy" are appearing earlier each day on Greater Victoria's motel fronts, signifying another season of "fat" for the owners, and room hunger for the tourists.

But the good times can't last forever in a business characterized here by wide-open ethics, inexperience, disorganization, speculation and poor promotion, says local manager Jack Hepburn of the Bel Isle Motel.

When business is poor — as it last was during the big ferry strikes in 1968 — the motel people are all for togetherness, but for the 11th straight year, he says, they are turning away customers every afternoon and will probably continue to do so at least until the end of August.

The peak summer months are critical for the more than 80 motels in the area, some of whom let their rooms for as little as $3.50 a night in January, but now get four times that much for a single guest.

A veteran hotel manager of 24 years' experience, Mr.

Hepburn is an outspoken advocate of a strong association of motel operators which would not only stabilize this industry to the owners' advantage, but would also police it to the benefit of customers.

The business is so open to inexperienced management, he says, that an agitated newcomer is known to have leaped over the front desk and socked a customer, while a disgruntled member of the service staff once poured water onto departing guests.

Staff turnover, Mr. Hepburn says, is a good indicator of bad management. One motel he knows of lost 20 employees in a month.

Mr. Hepburn has been unsuccessful in his attempts, along with fellow operator Alan Titterton of the Prince Charles Motel to establish the desired code of ethics. However, the B.C. Motels, Resorts and Trailer Parks Association will hold its annual convention here under his chairmanship this November.

He once came close to answering a label suit when he accused a local motel of having "bought" a good rating in an automobile association handbook. There was no action taken after he outlined his "proof."

A B.C. government tourism publication has demanded next year's room prices a year in advance, but far from benefiting the tourists, the prices will be "so distorted, it's pathetic," says Mr. Hepburn.

Operators will either have to inflate prices to protect themselves against unforeseen rising costs, or take a chance on breaking the news to customers that their room will cost more than the published figure. An unexpected tax hike of $4,000 could make this necessary.

Or a good deal on color television sets or air conditioners may come along.

making the motel more attractive but increasing its room prices by $1. This type of price rise is impossible to foresee, he says.

A stronger organization of motel owners would be able to speak with a single, impressive voice to government departments to help avoid this type of blunder. Likewise, automobile associations might listen when the complaint comes through that a motel shouldn't be rated low simply because it lacks a cocktail lounge.

With the money market the way it is, Mr. Hepburn says, major renovations and additions are almost impossible, and a motel will have to live with its "very good" rating when a swimming pool would render it "excellent."

A more subtle but equally adverse influence on the motel industry is the speculation building of new motels on the good chance that they will be sold to people with dreams of making a quick million, Mr. Hepburn suggested.

After a year of mismanagement, however, the new owner can still sell and make a profit, the only losers being unsatisfied guests. There are at least 10 motels in Greater Victoria under new management this year. "It's more profitable to sell motels than it is to operate them."

Another gripe against the every-man-for-himself motel operator's approach is that the lack of a single strong promotion system encourages the make-or-break summer season. When tourist attractions close down during the off-season, the tourists naturally stay away.

Mr. Hepburn's fears come despite three months of "fantastic" business, with no letup in sight. A random check of other motels showed that business is as good as it's ever been.

When rooms are scarce, the way is open to "scalpers," who work like this: they save several rooms under a "no vacancy" sign. About 7 p.m., up goes the "vacancy" sign and so does the price of rooms.

Tired tourists will probably thank the scalper, anyway. He is hard to detect because rooms actually do become honestly available around 7 p.m. when reservations are left untaken.

Mr. Hepburn says, he doesn't believe the scalping practice is widespread in Victoria.

Mourners Goal
For 'Bad Taste'

Families mourning the dead in Victoria and elsewhere have become the target once again of a money-making scheme described by the Better Business Bureau as legal but in "very bad taste."

"This sort of thing is extremely upsetting, especially where elderly people are concerned," Victoria manager William Tindall said Wednesday.

OBITUARY NOTICE

His comment was made after an 82-year-old Victoria woman received her husband's obituary notice sealed in plastic with a note reading: "Should you like and desire to keep it, just send $1."

Mr. Tindall said those receiving such notes "are under no obligation to send the dollar."

The envelope received by the Victoria woman listed the sender as Charles E. Leger of Shediac, N.B.

OTHER OCCASIONS

Mr. Tindall said this type of proposition had been offered here on other occasions, but that until now the source had always been in the U.S.

He said he was inclined to attach much of the blame to those who promote machines for earning money in the home. A machine for sealing obituaries in plastic would be sold in this fashion, possibly with instructions on how to raise money, he said.

He is referring the latest complaint to the post office.

Bless the Iris

As I have mentioned in earlier columns, I have a violent antipathy to physical labor. I am quite mad about gardening, of course, but I prefer my gardening to be the leisurely, pottering kind.

Consequently, I am always on the lookout for plants which will thrive and put on a good show without any strenuous activity on my part.

It would be pretty hard to put the finger on any plant quite so suitable for the lazy gardener's flower patch as the bearded iris. It is so accommodating, so trouble-free, so tolerant of weather quirks and requires so little attention. I do think, though, that it is rather a shame so many home gardeners are content to grow only the old-fashioned kinds, usually started from a bit of root passed over the back fence by some kindly neighbor.

Only too often these are either a washed-out, insipid blue shade or a muddy yellow color, and it is unfair to judge the iris tribe by these drabdy kinds. There has been something of a revolution going on in the iris-breeding world, and the newer varieties come in all the glowing colors of the rainbow: deep purple, warm mahogany reds, burnished copper, some lovely wine shades, and glorious pinks.

The reason why I bring up the subject of irises now is because midsummer is the best time of year to buy and plant iris roots. Incidentally, it is also the best time to take up, divide and replant overcrowded clumps of iris in your garden, and this was discussed in a recent column.

Today I thought it might serve a useful purpose if I were to list and describe a few iris varieties which have taken kindly to the rather poor soil in the Chesnut garden.

For the benefit of the novice I should perhaps explain the terms "standard" and "fall." You see, an iris has six petals. Three of these stand upright and these are called the standards, while three dangle downward from the flower, creating the characteristic iris shape, these are known as the falls.

Argus Pheasant is a great favorite at our house, for it is a wonderfully bright copper color, reminding one of a shiny new penny, with broad, flaring falls and wide standards, flowering in the middle of the iris season and standing about three feet tall.

Zantha has the reputation of being somewhat more prone to root rot than its lesser brethren, although I have never had a smidgen of trouble with mine — possibly because I grow it in well-drained soil in a sun-baked situation.

Lady Mohr is a real attention-getter, one of the most exciting irises I have ever seen. It has fluted, oyster-white standards and chartreuse to green-yellow falls, with a patch of violet coloring on each petal. The whole flower remind one of a giant green orchid, growing to three and a half feet tall.

I never thought I would care much for a white iris, but I fell hard for Cliffs of Dover at first sight. The thickish petals are ruffled and frilled, pure white with a high sheen, and highlighted with a golden throat. Cliffs of Dover has none of the muddiness so often found in white irises — the flower actually sparkles.

We grow four pink varieties, namely Color Carnival, Maytime, Cloud Cap and Colorful, and I find it difficult to name the best of the four as they are all breathtakingly beautiful in flower. If I could grow only one, though, I think I would choose Colorful, with rose pink falls and golden standards.

The Naked Truth

WASHINGTON — There is so much nudity in the arts these days that it's losing its shock value. I predict that if the trend continues, we're all going to take nudity for granted, and no one is going to get too excited about it anymore.

Rather than fight it, I believe we should figure out ways of adapting nudity to other spheres of our society, such as politics and diplomacy.

For a start, I think it would be a good idea for the Soviet-American disarmament talks to be held in the nude, with all participants sitting around the table unclothed.

Now, before you start writing letters to your editor, let me explain the advantage of holding the disarmament conferences in the nude.

First, it would show that both parties have nothing to hide and are willing to negotiate in good faith. When you're talking to someone with no clothes on and you have none on yourself, it's almost impossible to lie!

Another reason why nudity could work at a disarmament conference is that, without any clothes, the conferees would soon forget that they were Russians and Americans and would start thinking of themselves as members of the same human race.

One of the more obvious arguments in favor of a nude disarmament conference is that neither side could accuse the other of having something up its sleeves.

Nor would there be any danger of the parties carrying bugging devices on them (providing no one with a hearing aid would be permitted to be a delegate).

At the beginning, when the delegates arrive and leave the conference hall, they could cover themselves with their briefcases, but I'm sure that after a few days they'll be less self-conscious and this won't be necessary.

If the idea works and we have a good disarmament conference, it is my feeling that the principle could be adapted to other areas.

For example, if all military officers were made to discard their uniforms and ribbons and appear in the nude, I doubt if anybody — Russians, Americans, Chinese or anyone else — would have much interest in military matters.

Whether we like it or not, the uniform is one of the big attractions in waging wars, and without clothes, it would be very difficult for someone to give orders without the subordinate breaking up in laughter.

After the military, the next step would be to force all politicians to take off their clothes before going about the government's business. In this way the public would see their politicians for what they really are, and congressional debates would be more revealing.

Had Nelson A. Rockefeller gone nude to South America, I am certain he would have been cheered everywhere he went.

The big question is, should the President of the United States also disrobe in public, or would this be demeaning the office?

I don't think he should at the beginning. But as time goes on and the people get more adjusted to it, I don't see any reason why he can't meet with other world leaders in the nude.

There may be some smart-aleck kid who yells, "The President has no clothes on," but the Gallup Poll will probably disclose that 65 per cent of the people think he's going the right thing.

Did You Know?

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

One-fifth of mankind is southpaw. That means about 300,000,000 people are left handed. Among the most famous lefties in history were Alexander the Great, Leonardo da Vinci and Benjamin Franklin.

Dentists are among the professional groups who have been most successful in giving up smoking. Only one in three now uses tobacco. Americans are still the world's heaviest smokers. Last year the average was 3,869 cigarettes for each adult.

Milk normally remains drinkable for about seven days under normal refrigeration — 45 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. But it can last up to seven weeks if kept cooled to a point just above freezing and up to 20 weeks if it is pasteurized at a temperature of 200 degrees instead of the customary 165 to 172 degrees.

Nature's oddities: The incisor teeth of a pocket gopher grow at the rate of 46 inches a year, or nearly an inch each week. If he didn't keep them ground down by constant gnawing they would cause his death.

Genius often goes unrewarded in its own lifetime. Mozart, regarded by many as the most gifted of all composers, on occasion was so impoverished that he couldn't afford heat in his room. While writing some of his immortal music, he wrapped his hands in woolen socks to keep them warm.

You may have trouble on a clear day taking a picture of your wife in clear focus, but aerial cameras now are so precise that they can identify objects as small as a sports car from altitudes up to 200 miles.

Many women dislike the wearing of beards by men. Among members of the Toda tribe in India, however, men prize facial hair on women. The more hair a girl grows on her face, the lovelier she is held to be.

How it began: Medals are traditionally worn on the left breast of a soldier's uniform. This custom goes back at least as far as the Crusaders, who were so proud of the emblems of the order for which they fought that they placed them next to the heart.

It's no wonder you sometimes feel nervous. Your brain has some 10,000,000,000 nerve cells and your body holds more than 100,000 miles of nerve fibres.

Here's why, when travelling on the highway, you should keep ample space between your car and the one ahead of you: It takes the average driver three-quarters of a second to react to an emergency. In that time a car going 50 miles an hour will travel 68 feet.

Love Needs Light

To the lonely, love is a cure for the malady, a harbor for the drifting soul.

To the insecure, love is a reward, the merit-badge of success.

There is nothing "new" about love except the ways we now worship it. In earlier history, love was linked to the whole of life's values; it was integrated into the patterns of social and ethical goals.

Nowadays, however, love itself is the goal, the ultimate value.

When love, however, is absolutized, defied and venerated, sad things can happen. It is not enough to justify poor behavior by saying that "love is blind." Nor proper to engage in anti-social acts that harm and destroy — all in the name of one's private love fulfillment.

Love needs more than its own heat; it needs a lot of light.

But this is precisely what love does not have, when it stands all by itself, absolutely enthroned, and is allowed to become the measuring rod of all other acts or ideals. How has it happened that our time has become the "Age of Love?"

In earlier days, people had a sense of intimate belonging to the groups of which they were part. The primitive man had regular contact with all the members of his tribe and village. He shared with his elan relatives a life of loyalty to clearly visible goals which all accepted and all understood.

Ancient man knew nothing of what David Riesman has so aptly called the "lonely crowd." The impersonality of modern city life has brought about a widespread feeling of physical isolation and a sense of rootlessness.

We are lonely even when we are with people because most other people are lonely, too. We share so little with those whose lives we touch, that we barely touch any lives at all.

The loneliness of modern life is only part of the reason that love has assumed such a disproportionate significance today. We should not overlook the fact that our society has been teaching us, from earliest childhood, to gauge our "success" by the "amount" of love we receive.

We are trained as children by carefully controlled dispensations of love: if we do well we receive love, if poorly, love is denied us.

But this ever-present threat makes up chronically insecure about love and obsessed by the challenge to hold on to it.

We measure our whole lives in similar scales: the more unsure we are of our own merit and status the more love we need as a therapy for our neurotic self-doubting.

For all of their assorted mental aches and emotional pains some seek love as a remedy. But "love" that is taken to be a thing unto itself, embraced as a fleeting moment unrelated to ethical decisions and moral purposes soon degenerates into pleasure pills.

Love then comes to mean having what we want when we want it. Which, of course, is not love, but gratification of our ego, senses, vanity, or glands.

Spiritually mature love knows better. It knows that it must depend upon more than love alone. It must always be ready to know the ways of suffering, sacrifice and self-denial.

Out of such understanding, love is not the goal of immediate desire, but the great means of reaching the larger possibilities that await us.

Charity Chief Quits After Article Furor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Peal Buck, Nobel prize-winning novelist, announced Wednesday the resignation of the president of her foundation which aids Amerasian children.

Miss Buck said Theodore Harris, 38, a former dancing instructor, resigned because of unfavorable publicity about his personal and foundation activities in an article published in a local magazine.

FORMED IN '64

Miss Buck, who formed the Peal Buck Foundation, Inc., in 1964, after taking dance lessons from Harris, said Harris and the foundation planned legal action against the magazine.

In its July issue, the Philadelphia Magazine reports interviews were made with young men from Korea brought to the United States by the foundation to attend school who said Harris made physical advances to them.

STAFF MEMBERS

The magazine also said Harris spent foundation money lavishly on dwellings for himself and other staff members.

Miss Buck in an interview at the foundation headquarters here, denied the magazine's charges as "lies" and said the foundation was financially sound. The article was "all slanted," she said.

"Because of the injustice and viciousness of the attack, we may gain support by this," said the author who gained fame through her works about the Asian continent where she grew up.

'NO ABUSE'

"There has been no misuse of funds, and our books are open for inspection at anytime," Miss Buck said.

She said there has been some unfavorable reaction to the charges by contributors and information for the magazine associates in the U.S. But she said the article was former foundation employees and other persons "who have a personal grudge against the foundation."

Miss Buck said she was resigning as chairman of the board and treasurer of the foundation to assume the presidency and that the controller, Albert Metz of Philadelphia, was "becoming treasurer." The chairmanship was temporarily vacated.

Miss Buck said the foundation was structurally sound and she planned no other changes in her efforts to help the 2,000 Amerasian children, many of them fathered by American servicemen, now served by the foundation.

CHARGES DENIED

Harris also denied the charges in his letter of resignation.

"Although I am innocent of the charges that have been leveled against me, I feel that the unpleasant publicity resulting has made it impossible for me to serve the foundation effectively at this time," the letter said.

Broker Cheats Crippled Sister

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A real estate broker has been convicted of bilking his half-blind, crippled, widowed sister of $174,000. Judge Mark Brandler in Superior Court ruled Robert Gentle, 41, guilty of six counts of grand theft about a loan. He will be sentenced Aug. 8. The money represented most of a settlement Mrs. McGee received from a 1963 traffic accident that left her confined to a wheelchair.

Placentia Bay Now Normal

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said that the fishing industry has returned to normal at Placentia Bay in Newfoundland. Fish in the bay have been given "a clean bill of health" by the health department.

Errors in Fact

Arctic Tour Tips Receive Chill

NEW YORK (CP) — A New York travel director organizing an Arctic tour this summer has admitted he "made a mistake" about some of the Canadian attractions in his advertising brochures.

Steven Sensi, director of travel for the Admiral Byrd Polar Centre in Yonkers, said he made some errors in jotting down information he received via telephone to Canadian officials.

CONTACT ASKED

"We are going through with our project and if the Canadian officials have any serious objections they should contact us direct," he said in an interview.

One of the items in the material which drew the ire of northern development department officials in Ottawa concerned a church at Igloodik on Melville Island.

The brochures stated the church was built by Norsemen more than 1,000 years ago. A spokesman for the department said the structure was "built by the Eskimos only 20 years ago."

RE. APOLOGIZED

Another error was material which said tourists would find the "world's largest" whale processing plants and grain shipping facilities at Churchill, Man.

Sensi said so far about 40 persons have signed up for the tour, and that he has straightened out the information and

Rocks Fly In Rumble On Beach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rocks and bottles were hurled at police Tuesday night as they attempted to break up a teenagers' fight watched by a crowd of an estimated 1,000 spectators at Kitsilano Beach here.

Nine persons including four juveniles were arrested and police seized baseball bats, lengths of chain and pipe, and a claw hammer.

One youth who suffered minor scratches on his arm caused by a police dog was taken to Vancouver General Hospital for anti-tetanus shots.

Officers, aided by horses and dogs, were ordered to the area after police received information that a fight would take place, a follow-up to a fight Monday evening.

Job Service Office Avoiding 'Kooks'

The location of the Victoria office of B.C.'s hard-core jobless employment service was being kept a secret to avoid "kooks" wandering into it, head job-finder P. A. Gagliardi said Wednesday.

The office is right there for anyone to see and wander into in room 216 Central Building, 620 View Street, and it goes by the name of Provincial Alliance of Businessmen.

Minister without Portfolio Gagliardi, who lost his highways portfolio a year ago and was later assigned to set up the employment service in six B.C. cities, said he didn't want just anybody coming in for a job.

"All kinds of kooks that you can't do anything for would flock to the office and I'm not geared to that. I don't want a whole bunch of people at the office.

"I select the people I want brought in," Mr. Gagliardi said. Despite the intentional secrecy, the local manager, R. S. Price, says, "People who find this office are given an interview." But "there are only a secretary and myself here, and we just couldn't handle the flow of people if everyone came in."

Complaint Made Over Bid

A formal complaint over the Nanaimo school board's building contract tendering practices will be made to the board and the education department by the Victoria regional committee of the Amalgamated Construction Association.

"The protest will be sent by the committee when it meets, sometime within the next week," said E. J. Phillips, ACA director in Victoria.

The complaint will concern what Mr. Phillips calls "the highly unusual manner" in which the board awarded the contract for an eight-room addition to Nanaimo high school.

Quinney and Fuller Construction of Nanaimo was awarded the $434,431 contract over Bird Construction Company of Victoria.

"Bird Construction was the low bidder," said Mr. Phillips. "I've never in my experience known of a case when a company of the stature of Bird Construction — which is a major national company of high repute — had its bid refused when it was the lowest."

"Their bidding practice and accuracy is questionable."

"The taxpayers' money is just as easily put to their advantage with an out-of-town firm as with a local firm."

Gordon McGillivray, chairman of the Nanaimo board, rejected the implication that favoritism toward a local firm might have played a role in the handling of the bids.

"That doesn't enter into it at all," he said. "There was no bidding procedure here."

Mr. McGillivray said a base bid and alternate prices were accepted: Bird Construction Co. had the low base bid while Quinney and Fuller had the low alternate bid.

"There was a fine line between them," he said.

"We're quite well aware of the ethics of the situation," said Mr. McGillivray. He was, however, unable to say which of the two firms had the lower combined bid.

"I think Bird Construction was dealt with fairly," he said. "The whole picture of school board business is the most democratic and efficient setup possible."

Anglicans in Quandary

Leaders Wrangle Over Unity

LONDON (AP) — The Arch-bishop of Canterbury and the primate of the Church of England, the 82-year-old prelate whom they still want unity. They disagreed Wednesday over the union plan, which 31 per cent of the Anglican clergy rejected. "A faulty scheme of union," said the Anglican clergy. The Methodists, still meeting in annual conference at Birmingham, rejected a move to unite with the Anglicans.

Word from Lambeth Palace essay for approval.

Ups and Downs Taught Early

Jumping classes, trail classes, cross-country riding and basic riding education are basis for six-day Canadian Pony Club Camp at Saanichton Fairgrounds. Twenty Victoria and Saanichton young people are staying at fairgrounds and learning ups and downs of riding. Susan Pink, 13, and Even Steven take low jump as classmates wait turns. Camp ends today. — (Jim Ryan)

PLAN DEFEATED

The plan for reuniting the Methodists with the state church was defeated on much the same issue that caused John Wesley to found the Methodist Church.

High Anglicans insisted that Methodist ministers must be ordained again before they are accepted in an episcopal church, while others objected to a proposed service of reconciliation because of its ambiguity.

Fisher, a venerable and respected figure now living in semi-retirement as rector of a small parish in rural Dorset, attacked the reconciliation service as nothing more than "a pious subterfuge." Thousands of the clergy heeded him.

BETTER WAYS

Fisher said in an interview: "Better ways can be found in place of the one which has been rejected. I know at least three."

Asked what they were, he replied: "I would be very glad to describe the alternatives to the authorities of either church."

"The great thing is there has been no defeat for the unity of spirit. On the contrary, it has been liberated from a faulty scheme of union."

Ramsey's spokesman had no comment. Some Anglican churchmen were pessimistic about the church's future in the wake of the rejection.

TELEPHONE STRIKE

What is the issue?

Responsibility in wage demands - - that's the crux of the dispute between B.C. Telephone and the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C.

The federation officers have made many statements about morale of our work force and about alleged inequities the company has inflicted upon its employees.

B.C. Telephone is completely flexible on such matters and will talk about them at any time the union officers show real responsibility in wage demands.

But the federation officers are sadly mistaken if they think the strike against B.C. Telephone will lead to a settlement half way between their demands and the unanimous recommendations of a federal conciliation board.

These officers have made absurd demands for wage increases, reduced hours and other benefits amounting to 43.5 per cent, including a 32.1 per cent increase in wage rates by next January.

The federal conciliation board, including the union's own nominees, recommended terms providing a 17-per-cent wage increase by January 1, 1970, together with other benefits and a reduction in work hours for plant employees which has the effect of boosting their hourly wage rates by 24.8 per cent.

Seen in perspective, the board's unanimous recommendations — which the company has agreed to accept — clearly are fair to the employees, costly to the company and above the increases which governments of all levels have described as appropriate guidelines for fiscal responsibility today.

When the union officers are prepared to recognize the wage levels recommended unanimously by the conciliation board as realistic, then there will be purpose to resumed negotiations.

Turnout Bigger Than for Johnson

Hippies Mourn 'Folk Hero'

QUEBEC (CP) — Andre Lachance, 24-year-old longshoreman and motorcycle gang leader, was buried Wednesday in the fashion of a folk hero.

The event attracted more than 3,000 people, many of whom had never heard of Lachance until he was killed in a traffic accident Saturday.

BIG FUNERAL

The turnout was bigger than for the funeral of the late premier Daniel Johnson last year.

The service for Lachance, known as "President Pat" of the local Hell's Hounds club, was held at the Roman Catholic church in the poor people's parish of St. Sauveur.

The street outside the church was so crowded several people had to climb atop roofs of nearby buildings. Mothers and fathers held small children above their shoulders.

Among the sights was a huge wreath in the form of a swastika, placed on a flower car by a member of the club, biggest of the city's six motorcycle clubs with about 40 members.

FEW IN MOURNING

The only people in conventional mourning attire were the undertakers and members of the Lachance family. The others showed off the latest in underground fashion.

Hippie women painted like Easter eggs competed for attention with beer-drinking bike riders whose greasy blue denim costumes were decorated with the usual array of swastikas, iron crosses and medals.

During the funeral service the church was as busy as a railway station at rush hour. People walked in and out and up and down the aisles at leisure. The bike riders were up front.

The funeral cortege left the church with the pealing of bells mingled with the sound of grumbling motorcycle engines. Estimates on the number of bikes ranged from 150 to 350.

Members of at least 15 motorcycle clubs were present, including the Rolling Ventures of Baie Comeau, The Conquerors of Chicoutimi, The Popeyes of Sorel and Devil's Disciples of Montreal.

Everywhere along the streets there was praise for "Pat." He was described as "a well-liked guy," "a good mechanic who gave away money he made on a snarly mood. The Hell's the waterfront."

He is reported to have earned as much as $12,000 a year on the waterfront.

Several hundred people, including custom car buffs with their beautiful women and beautiful cars, followed the cortege to a nearby cemetery.

After the burial the Hell's Hound members chased sightseers away from the grave, crying: "Get out. Seen enough? Beat it. We want to be alone."

'Services Carry All Toxic Items'

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told the Commons Wednesday that test samples of materials for biological warfare are not shipped to Canadian research stations by commercial transport.

Cadieux said Canadian forces aircraft and vehicles are used in all movements of such toxic substances to test centres at Sturley Bay near Ottawa and Suffield, Alta.

He told David Lewis, the NDP deputy leader, that samples shipped have in each case been the equivalent of a tablespoonful and that all precautions, including special containers, are used.

The minister said shipments of the materials from the United States to the test centres were last undertaken in 1963. Canadian samples are moved only once or twice a year.

He said research and testing of materials for biological warfare conducted in Canada "are of a defensive nature only."

Benson Finds Going Tough In Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON
 Colonial Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Edgar Benson has asked the Commons to give a loan priority to small businessmen and to borrowers in areas in need of economic development.

Under questioning Wednesday in the Commons as to what action he might be taking to ease the credit squeeze, the finance minister reported briefly on his recent conference with the bankers.

U.S. ACTION

New Democratic leader Tommy Douglas wanted to know if he had followed the lead of U.S. Treasury Secretary David Kennedy in asking bankers to hold the line on interest rates by the use of "selective lending."

It was then he spoke of his special credit plan on behalf of small business and the "have-less" areas of the country.

He told Douglas he hadn't asked them the "impossible" of setting a limit or ceiling on interest "because so much depends on what happens in the United States," and whether here at home the government wins the "battle against inflation."

ANY ASSURANCE?

Had the finance minister been given "any assurance" from the bankers, pressed Douglas, that they would hold the line against any further increases from record high rates.

Benson answered by reminding the New Democrat the federal government, as perhaps Canada's biggest borrower, was "anxious" rates go no higher.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield accused the finance minister of avoiding straight answers to straight questions on the pretext that a Commons committee was investigating interest rates.

When the committee files its recommendations, he asked the finance minister, would the proposals be accepted?

TORY LEADER:

Denying he was "hiding behind the committee," Benson suggested the Conservative leader, if he wanted to know what was going on at the committee, read the evidence of Bank of Canada Governor Luis Rasminsky.

"I can assure the minister," snapped Stanfield, "that not only did I read the evidence of the governor, but also the evidence of the finance minister, and I am still rather confused."

Benson stopped the Conservative leader cold with the retort, "I have not appeared before the committee."

HEES JOINS IN

Into the din jumped former Conservative trade minister George Hees to attempt taking a round out of the finance minister.

Governor Rasminsky had testified that consumer credit restrictions "probably would have been imposed in the past two years had the federal government power to do so," reported Hees, so was the finance minister intending to ask the provinces to help Ottawa secure such authority "to control inflation?"

NOT RIGHT NOW

"Not at this particular time," replied the finance minister, being pointedly careful not to say such a time might later come.

Then did the government "intend completely disregarding this effective means of inflation control and do nothing about it?" bared in George Hees.

No. Replied Benson, just as pointedly leaving his future options open.

LET 'EM KNOW

Well then," shouted George Hees, his voice carrying above the hoos and cat-calls from the government side of the House and the desk-pounding encouragement of his fellow Conservatives, "what in the world do you intend doing. For heaven's sake, let Parliament and the country know."

That ended the exchange.

Foreign Bill $7,200,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The government contributed $7,200,000 toward the post-secondary education of foreign students in Canada during the 1967-68 fiscal year, the Commons was told.

Give Me All But Honor For Canada—Crump

CALGARY (C.P.) — The chairman and president of Canadian Pacific Railway suggested Tuesday that Canadians should be willing to sacrifice everything but honor for the preservation of the country.

Speaking at the 38th annual Old Time Rangenmen's dinner, N. R. Crump of Montreal said more tolerance and more education are needed for national unity. "We have to know each other better."

He said passage of the Official Languages Act in the Commons Monday was "a momentous thing in Canada's history" and urged understanding in its implementation.

As a "unilingual Anglo," Crump confessed to difficulty in understanding the aspirations and attitudes of French-Canadians but said that with generations in Quebec they have same rights as Canadians.

Criticizing the tendency toward regionalism, he asked: "Are we a nation? Have we any national pride?"

"Sometimes I think our knowledge of the problem decreases with the square root of the distance from Ottawa," Crump condemned "the activists and Marxists" who are allowed to disrupt some universities, but chided administrators for letting a few disorders get out of control.

He called on university administrators to supply both the change that is necessary in an age when knowledge doubles every 10 years and the discipline necessary to allow the 98 or 99 per cent of serious students to acquire skills and knowledge. Crump said that immediate end is likely to inflation.

Georgia Strait Coho Spared If Run Light

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Depending on the salmon run now just getting started, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis may close Georgia Strait to both commercial and sport fishermen. This was his explanation of an exchange that took place in the Commons Wednesday between himself and New Democratic Leader Tommy Douglas.

"Nothing is decided yet," he insisted outside the House. "We'll have to play it like a piano, by ear."

"If the run is good and enough fish can escape to the breeding grounds. Then perhaps there won't have to be any closing of the strait to either sport or commercial people.

"If not, then we will have to widen the areas of prohibition around the south end of Vancouver Island."

Following was the exchange between Davis and Douglas: DOUGLAS: "May I ask the minister of fisheries whether he intends to ban fishing for coho salmon in the Georgia Strait for commercial fishermen during July and August?"

DAVIS: "This matter is under active consideration because of the concurrent demand by the sports fishermen, but I am not prepared at this moment to say what decision will ultimately be made."

DOUGLAS: "Is the minister considering applying any such closure to the sports fishermen or is it to be applied only to commercial fishermen?"

DAVIS: "Consideration will be given to both sides and to the claim of both parties."

Conservative fisheries critic Lloyd Crouse, a Maritimes MP, had another question about West Coast fishing.

CROUSE: "Has the minister any report to make on his recent visit to British Columbia and especially on his proposal that the Japanese be permitted to harvest dogfish in West Coast waters to protect our salmon from this predator?"

DAVIS: "The visitors from Japan are men from the technical level. They were not prepared to discuss policy, but we have some hope we can develop a trade with the Japanese in this surplus fish."

At this point, Newfoundland Conservative MP James McGrath used the dogfish to stick a gaff into B.C. Liberal Ray Perrault.

There have been strained feelings between the two who are near-deskmates.

"In view of the interest taken in fishing matters by the honorable member for Burnaby-Seymour," suggested McGrath, "would the minister consider changing the name of this fish from the Blunth dogfish to the Burnaby cod?"

Everybody except Perrault chuckled at what was very obviously an "in" joke with parliament.

He made his remarks in an address to W.H.O.'s 22nd annual health assembly to formally introduce his annual report on W.H.O. activities around the world.

Candau said "DDT has been instrumental in controlling some of the most important vector-borne diseases of man. The concept of malaria eradication rests completely on its continued use."

He said DDT's "low cost makes it irreplaceable in public health at the present time. Limitations on its use would give rise to grave health problems in the majority of the developing countries."

The W.H.O. chief executive called for worldwide co-operation of all nations in health programs but acknowledged pressure to bring in non-member governments has slackened. The communist regimes of China, East Germany, North Vietnam and North Korea are the most conspicuous absentees.

"The movement towards universal membership of states has apparently abated but will undoubtedly revive, and at any moment," Candau said.

Boarding Blamed On Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States Coast Guard and fisheries officials Wednesday blamed a Canadian customs officer for the seven-hour detention of a Canadian fish boat June 26.

Robert Simpson, acting area director of fisheries at the U.S. bureau of commercial fisheries in Juneau, Alaska, said in a telephone interview that the 12-mile limit had nothing to do with the boarding.

He said the Canadian boat was boarded because

COUNTDOWN To the Moon

Moon Countdown Beginning Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the countdown set to start today, Apollo 11 astronauts Wednesday rehearsed how they will prepare to step on to the moon.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr., who hope to become the first men to stroll on the lunar surface, worked in a landing craft trainer learning how to put on their oxygen-filled backpacks.

As they labored, their Apollo 11 co-pilot, Michael Collins, worked in a command ship trainer practising what he will do circling the moon alone in the mother ship while his two colleagues explore below.

The three astronauts also met with experts from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reviewing computer navigation programs designed to steer Apollo 11 automatically on a perfect course to and from the moon and guide Armstrong and Aldrin to a precision landing on the surface July 20.

Discussing problems that may arise with Apollo 11's complex 35-foot-tall Saturn V rocket and spacecraft combination, a space agency official said the "kind of accuracies we're dealing with are extremely precise" in navigation computer programs. For example, when the upper stage of the Saturn rocket ignites in earth orbit to fling Apollo 11 toward lunar orbit, "an uncertainty of just eight-tenths of a mile per hour could cause the spacecraft to impact the moon."

Kelsey Bay

Mac-Blo Closes Division

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Wednesday announced closure of its Kelsey Bay Logging division as British Columbia's labor troubles crept into the woods.

A company spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said the division on Vancouver Island was shut down "until further notice" because of a persistent slowdown by employees.

The shutdown affects some 300 men.

The spokesman said at issue is the union's insistence that employees receive pay for the Dominion Day holiday "which they are not entitled to since they were engaged in another wildcat strike at that time."

"The slowdown has reduced production in recent days by about 40 per cent normal," the spokesman said. The company viewed it as "another form of wildcat strike."

He said the employees, members of the International Woodworkers of America, have so far this year staged nine "wildcat strikes" against company operations.

He said the company is prepared to talk to the union at any time "provided it receives an assurance from the union that employees are prepared to resume work in a normal manner."

Meanwhile Wednesday 6,600 employees of the British Columbia Telephone Co. announced they will increase strike activity.

WILL BE WIDENED

Bert Johns, general secretary of the union's plant division, said the strike will be "widened."

Mr. Johns said in a statement, "We are asking the B.C. Federation of Labor to declare 'hot' telephone conduit now being installed in commercial and industrial construction projects."

"Such a declaration would mean that no further telephone conduit would be installed until this strike is settled."

PRESIDENT BLAMED

Mr. Johns blamed J. Ernest Richardson, president of B.C. Tel. for making the action necessary. He said Mr. Richardson's "stubborn refusal to negotiate with the union" was partly responsible for the continuation of the strike.

Employees seek a 32 per cent wage increase over two years on present rates of $1.45 to $3.10 an hour. The company has endorsed a conciliation board recommendation for a 17 per cent hike.

Meantime, about 200 workers refused to cross picket lines

"He didn't feel worthy of the honor right now," said McFarland.

Situation 'Disturbing'

U.K. Race Report Urges Civil Draft

LONDON (AP) — A massive report on Britain's growing race problem, published Wednesday finds the situation "profoundly disturbing."

The report, sponsored by the non-political Institute of Race Relations, is based on five years of study and research in Britain, which has absorbed more than 1,000,000 colored subjects from colonies and former colonies.

The report's most startling conclusion is that re-establishment of compulsory national service for Britain's young men to harness their energies is "well worth considering." The draft in Britain was discontinued in 1960.

Health Chief Praises Safety Record, Gains

'World Can't Afford DDT Ban'

BOSTON (UPI) — The head of the World Health Organization said Wednesday the world cannot afford to outlaw DDT insecticides until economically feasible substitutes are found.

Director-General M. G. Candau acknowledged international concern over evidence that some insecticides harm certain wildlife species.

But he praised the 20-year record of DDT's safety to man.

Candau, a Brazilian, also urged W.H.O. members to keep the door open to all nations irrespective of politics or ideology.

He made his remarks in an address to W.H.O.'s 22nd annual health assembly to formally introduce his annual report on W.H.O. activities around the world.

Candau said "DDT has been instrumental in controlling some of the most important vector-borne diseases of man. The concept of malaria eradication rests completely on its continued use."

Pesticide Residue Still at Safe Level

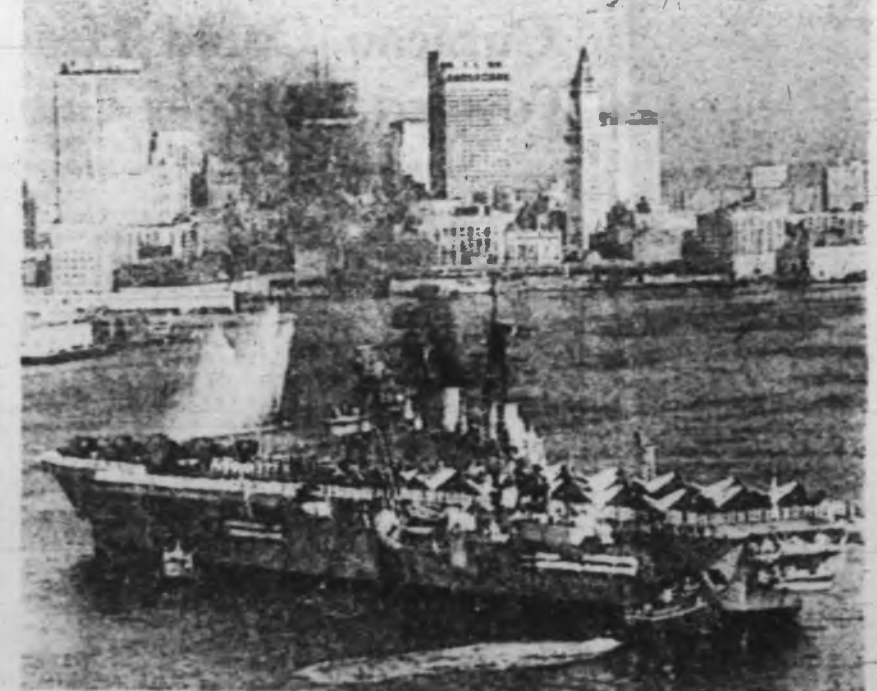

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that recent surveys have not indicated any dangerous level of DDT or other pesticides in Canadian food.

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kootenay West), asked whether the minister would institute a full study on the problem of DDT.

Munro said the question is under review but no decision has been reached on such a study.

Sharp Tells House

Ottawa Backs Thant Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday Canada is opposed to shipment of arms into the troubled Middle East.

Answering Commons questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Sharp said Canada supports United Nations Secretary-General U Thant's appeal for an end to all military action between the Arabs and Israelis, and a cease-fire.

Stanfield asked what specifically Canada is doing to improve the situation. Would it call for an international embargo on arms shipments to the two sides?

The minister replied that Canada itself is not supplying arms to either side and opposes such shipments. He didn't think Canada could do more than support the pleas of U Thant and others for a cessation of hostilities.

Stanfield said Canada appears to be doing nothing besides endorsing U Thant's position. He asked what Canada's policy is on a settlement imposed by the great powers.

Sharp replied Canada is working as effectively as it can with the governments in the area concerned, trying to get them to support the peace efforts of Sweden's Gunnar Jarring, U Thant's special representative in the area.

Answering another question from Stanfield, the external affairs minister said he hopes to visit the Middle East but he can't say when.

GIs Ambushed

Six-Hour Attack Drives Viets Back

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese regulars using rocket-propelled grenades Wednesday ambushed an American truck convoy 65 miles northwest of Saigon killing four GIs and wounding 11. An American counter-attack killed 22 of the attackers.

U.S. military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese used a land mine, automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades in an effort to stop the convoy.

SIX-HOUR PUSH

They said armoured units guarding the trucks counter-attacked the communist troops with tanks, armoured personnel carriers, fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery and after six hours finally forced the North Vietnamese to pull back.

The North Vietnamese force was identified as members of the 7th army. The U.S. 1st cavalry division convoy was traveling from An Loc to Quang Lai in Binh province and was escorted by armoured elements of the U.S. 11th armoured cavalry regiment.

American military sources in Saigon said, meanwhile, that the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into South Vietnam last month dropped to its lowest level since the U.S. military buildup began in 1965.

Communist forces stopped up their shelling attacks throughout South Vietnam Wednesday night and this morning, pounding at least 29 targets with rockets, mortars or recoilless rifle fire. Fourteen of the shelling attacks occurred Wednesday night.

Slightly after 7 a.m. today, about 10-150 men rockets smashed into a South Vietnamese army dependent base in an area near Ben Hoa, 14 miles northeast of Saigon.

Spokesmen said six civilians were killed and 14 wounded in the attack. They said four of the six were children who were out getting bread for breakfast. At least 12 houses were destroyed in the attack.

Soviet Warships Steam Off U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States defense department said Wednesday three guided missile ships and two submarines are among the group of Soviet vessels heading along the U.S. coast for a visit to Cuba.

The Russian naval group is due to visit Cuba between July 20 and 27, the first time a Soviet fleet group has come so close to the United States.

The group consists of a guided missile cruiser, a missile destroyer and guided missile frigates was located 600 miles east of Charleston, S.C.

Another group including two submarines and a submarine tender was 720 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla.

This would put the Soviet fleet closer to the U.S. than any Soviet fleet group has come in the past.

Soviet fleet officers have joined the two groups from time to time since 1965, when the first Soviet fleet group visited the United States.

The Soviet fleet group is expected to visit Cuba after President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union in August.

Black Power Leader Can't Enter Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuters) — A British United States Black Power leader Wednesday was denied entry to Bermuda, where the first Caribbean-North American regional Black Power conference opens today.

Officials of the British colony said George Abiodun, 30, arrived here Tuesday but was turned back when airport immigration officials refused him entry on a lack of identification.

Abiodun again attempted Wednesday to enter Bermuda posing as a clergyman but he was recognized and put back on the plane for New York.

Informed sources said Maluma Ren Karenga, head of the central Black Power planning committee in New York, is also on the list of prohibited aliens. Karenga is scheduled to speak at the opening session today.

East Berlin or No Guns

Soviet Pressure Spurred Egypt?

By JOE ALEX MORRIS Jr., of the Los Angeles Times Service

BONN — Egypt may have recognized East Germany out of fear that the Soviet Union would cut off future arms deliveries if she did not, a West German spokesmap said Wednesday.

There is information that the Soviet Union had made further weapons deliveries to Egypt dependent on the recognition of East Berlin, deputy government spokesman Conrad Ahlers told a press conference here. He did not elaborate.

Government leaders tended to credit growing Soviet influence in the Arab world for the step, which was met with regret but not surprise here. It makes Egypt the fifth Arab state and the sixth in the non-communist world to recognize East Germany recently.

Suez Guns Blaze

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian gunners exchanged artillery fire across the Suez Canal all day Wednesday. The army said one Israeli soldier was killed and five were wounded in the firing.

Along the Jordan River cease-fire line, Arab guerrillas opened bazooka and light-arms fire on an Israeli patrol, 20 miles north of the Dead Sea, and wounded two soldiers, the army announced.

The military announced also that Arab saboteurs blasted a war memorial to Australian and New Zealand Second World War dead and slightly injured two Israeli civilians.

grounds that 17,000,000 East Germans have no freedom of choice. But this claim has economic aid and trade concessions in a major difference of opinion between Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt on retaliation to recognition of East Germany.

Both Bonn leaders agreed on Egypt's decision, which was relayed here Tuesday by the Italian embassy in Cairo. Kiesinger said simply that "the decision of the Soviet Union has become stronger" in the Middle East. Brandt said Cairo's step many has never altered its region's leading progressive.

Close to $250,000,000 in capital aid and credit guarantees were given to that country, with the result that for years Nasser resisted East Berlin demands for full diplomatic ties.

The immediate reaction here was to tie the step to Nasser's need for Soviet arms in the steadily heightening confrontation with Israel and also to the alleged concern that no Arab state overtakes his image as the Arab world's leading progressive.

Qualicum Beach

Priest Helps New Church

By DOREEN ADDIE

QUALICUM BEACH — A Qualicum Beach priest saw the second church which he has helped to build on Vancouver Island dedicated at the weekend. He is Rev. Jan Placenta who was born in Poland 60 years ago. In 1939, he was arrested by the Germans and spent the next five years at the Dachau prison camp.

"It was not so much the physical suffering," he said, "as the mental suffering, and the way in which they reduced you to a condition less than that of an animal."

Before he was ordained in Poland in 1934, Father Placenta had spent five years in a seminary where, apart from studying the academic subjects, he had had the guidance of a spiritual director in learning the morals and virtues of life.

"GOOD FOR ME"

"And, in a way, I think of Dachau as being like that seminary," he said. "I learned so many things about life there. I came to love those who hated me. It was good for me."

For a year after his release by the American Army, Father Placenta was chaplain of the Polish Army in the 32nd British Division. Then came four years as chaplain in a camp for displaced persons at Paderborn, Westphalia.

In 1950, he came to Canada and worked for six years at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Victoria. From there, he started to build the Church of the Sacred Heart on McKenzie Avenue, being appointed its pastor in 1956. A school, a convent for nine teachers and a rectory are now all part of that church.

LAND CLEARED

On December 9, 1957, Father Placenta was appointed pastor at Qualicum Beach.

Less than a year ago, the site of the new church at French Creek was nothing but bush. Now the land is cleared and trees frame the contours of the new building. Cement paths curve round the church and large flower beds form a blaze of colour against the brown and white of the walls.

Inside, huge beams span the ceiling and a plain cross stands high above the altar, softly illuminated by hidden lights.

Mosquitoes at Crofton

Sprays Start Next Week

NORTH COWICHAN — A "very responsible person" is charging North Cowichan council with tardiness in handling the Crofton mosquito infestation and the same person "stated he will not vote for any of us."

Ald. Tom Burge told council Wednesday afternoon.

"Take nomination papers to the gentleman," joked Mayor Donald Morton.

However, criticism over the mosquito problem also came from the ranks of the council.

Ald. John Cannon complained: "Council did not act as diligently as it should have. We have taken a lot of unnecessary criticism."

Council made two major decisions in connection with the problem.

Campbell River

Vandals Hit School Property

CAMPBELL RIVER — Vandals have hit school property in the Campbell River area, reports Campbell River RCMP.

Windows in a number of schools were pried open, but in most instances no appreciable amount of damage appeared to have been caused, said a spokesman.

However, a water fountain was broken off the wall in Discovery Passage School, causing flooding in two classrooms. Two school buses were entered in the parking lot at the junior secondary school, fire extinguishers broken and the contents sprayed over the buses.

Two false alarms have been turned in to the fire department within the last two weeks at Evergreen and Cedar elementary schools.

Fire officials say they have a line on the culprit, believed to be a young person, but as yet no action has been taken.

A year's negotiations for land exchange with Pacific Logging Co. has been completed. The municipality will get a piece of land from the company at Crofton Beach and the company will take over some land in the Mount Prevost area.

Council gave approval to a request from Chemainus Ratepayers' and Citizens' Association to improve parking facilities at Fullers lake arena, Chemainus.

Mayor Morton commended the association for its thorough request first with the engineer and the recreation director.

It was because the first meaning of the church was a coming together, he said, as a symbol of God gathering together all people across the world, of all social conditions and all backgrounds, into one big congregation.

But did people come together like this, he asked, when they only had to listen to the traffic outside to know there were many other interesting ways of spending time and other ways of relaxing in this affluent world?

Union Bay Retirement

Career Ends For Teacher

UNION BAY — The end of the school term in Union Bay elementary school, was also the end of the 48-year teaching career of Mrs. Annie Campbell, who has retired.

It was in 1920 that Mrs. Campbell, then Annie Bailey, left her home in Ladysmith to go to Port Alberni for her first teaching job. She stayed there for a year, and then came to Union Bay, where she has taught ever since.

"I had my first class in a small building behind the school, because it was overcrowded. This place was also a social centre for the community, where meetings, card games and dances were held. We often had to clean up the place before we could start school," she recalled.

Eventually the present school was enlarged, so she and her pupils moved to better accommodation.

It was during these early years that she met Tom Campbell, and on New Year's Day 1926, she became Mrs. Campbell.

During the years that followed, she was busy with husband, home, and family, which included one son, Donald, and two daughters, Verna and Sharon. However, she kept in touch with her teaching by substituting whenever she was called.

She went back to fulltime teaching in 1956.

During the 12½ years she has taught Grades 3 and 4 exclusively, and has had the same room in which to teach.

On her last day, there were many presentations. There was a bowl of flowers, presented by Isabella Hood, and a gift of crystal, presented by Mrs. J. Stewart, both from the Parents' Auxiliary of the school. There was a gift of crystal from the school board. The students had collected money and bought their own gift. It was a silver tray, and David Hamilton presented it.

Roy Pickert, teacher of Grades 5 and 6 read a special scroll which had been lettered by Mrs. Shirley McKay.

Bathtub Race Spreads

KELOWNA (CP) — Mayor R. F. Parkinson of Kelowna Tuesday challenged Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney to a bathtub race on Lake Okanagan, Aug. 8 as part of the 1969 Regatta festivities.

Mr. Parkinson said the race, featuring numerous other contestants, will be run over a shorter course than the planned 30-mile test.

Nanaimo is already famous for its annual bathtub race to Vancouver across Georgia Strait.

NORTH BEND, Wash. (AP) — A United States Navy Intruder jet crashed near here but it was believed the pilot ejected just before the plane came down, the state patrol said.

Good Neighbor Appeal Help Low in Comox Valley

COURTENAY — Residents of J. W. Gansner to review former campaigns and attempt to find a way to communicate to the residents of the valley about donations.

Figures given at the meeting showed that Comox Valley district contributes only $1.28 per capita, National per capita figures were more than three times this amount, it was stated. The appeal fund drive in the district has failed to reach its quota for the past two years. Last year the target was $36,000 but lacked $8,294.04 to make the goal.

It was pointed out that the $1.28 per capita donation meant that the 20 participating agencies shared funds on the basis of just over six cents each for a population nearing the 25,000 mark.

Mrs. E. V. McNeil, who has had previous experience in that type of fund drive, told the meeting that Prince Edward Island last year contributed $2.66 per capita and had experienced little difficulty in raising its quota each year.

Smythe and Ballard Charged with Tax Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, two of Canada's best-known names in the management of professional hockey, were charged Wednesday with income tax evasion over a four-year period.

The charges involve $278,920 for Smythe and $134,885 for Ballard, both directors of Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

The information against Smythe alleges that between April, 1965, and March, 1968, he evaded income taxes of $278,920 made up as follows:

● The sum of $35,576 appropriated by him from monies payable to Maple Leaf Gardens in respect of the Marlboro Hockey Club.

● A total of $208,166 appropriated by him from Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., in respect to the cost of construction and improving his residence.

● The sum of $35,178 appropriated from the Gardens for personal and family expenses.

The other four counts allege that Smythe made "false or deceptive" statements in his tax returns for the years 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

In 1964, the crown alleges, Smythe made a false statement by saying he had incurred a loss of $15,146 when he had failed to report income of $4,910.

In 1965, Smythe reported his income as $9,906, the crown alleges, but failed to report income of $10,165.

In 1966, the information said his return was falsified again when he reported an income of $34,330. The crown claims he should have reported another $22,115.

The 1967 return listed income of $38,323, which the crown said should have shown another $42,728.

In the case of Ballard, the information alleges that he evaded taxes on $134,885

income received by him from the Gardens. The crown charges Ballard appropriated $74,335 from the Gardens in respect of the cost of constructing and improving his residence.

It adds that he also appropriated $24,713 from the Gardens for personal and family expenses, and $35,575 from monies payable to the Gardens in respect of the Marlboro Hockey Club. The Marlboros are in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

For the tax year 1964, the crown alleges Ballard made a false statement by saying his income was $64,628, but failed to report other income of $4,481.

In 1965, it charges his reported income was $89,356 when in reality it was $13,717 higher. In 1966, the crown alleges Ballard reported an income of $261,743, but failed to include another $41,685.

For the tax year 1967, the information says Ballard reported $68,113 but allegedly failed to show a further $74,798.

The two are to appear in court July 17.

Penalties under the Income Tax Act depend on whether the Crown proceeds summarily or through an indictment.

A summary involves a trial in provincial court. Upon conviction there is a minimum fine of $25 and a maximum of $100,000 on each count, plus double the tax that should be paid and possibly imprisonment for up to three years.

If the Crown decided to proceed by indictment, which would be before a higher court, imprisonment, in addition to the other penalties, could be as high as five years and not less than two months.

The shock announcement came only 13 days after both Smythe and Ballard were fired as president and executive vice-president respectively of the Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Both are still members of the board and are governors and alternate governors, respectively, of the NHL.

Cliff Allan with sighted bow

By KEVAN HULL

To see Cliff Allan relaxing on a picnic lawn would give one the impression of an average working man of 26.

Watching him at his hobby a few minutes later, that impression would be swiftly wiped out. There is nothing average in the way the young welder manipulates his bow on the target range. And that is why he rates as the Vancouver Island hope to dethrone two-time winner Don Jackson of London, Ont., when the Canadian Archery championships are held here Monday through Thursday, at Macdonald Park.

ALL BUSINESS

Everything is in earnest from the moment he slips into his glove, arm and chest guards and slips on the side quiver of arrows.

A quick adjustment of the bow and a 29 and one-half inch aluminum arrow is readied for shooting.

MOUTH SHOWS MARKS

And the arrow speeds to be the target centre on the straw.

Six inches to a group of six arrows shot at the target from 60 metres and there is less than a foot separating any of the 36 shots.

This is the style which won Allan the free style aggregate at Nanaimo in the recent Vancouver Island championships with a record total of 1307, which included records in the American and Field rounds of 54010 and 271300.

50M UNDER TREE

"I hadn't intended to become involved in archery," said Allan. "I went shopping with my mother for a bow for my mother. When Christmas morning came there were two bows under the tree."

That was five years ago and he has been a member of Seaview Archers since then, starting with a bare bow (no sight). He won the Island field event three years ago before switching to the sighted bow.

Glen has since changed to a sighted bow and represented Canada at Bales, England in last year's international cadet shoot.

But another member of the Allan family has been progressing.

His wife, Mrs. Allan, is a member of the Victoria Archers and has been competing in the Pacific Northwest Golf Association championships.

In the men's division, Jim Frye of Whidbey, Wash., eliminated defending champion Allan Brooks of Medford, Ore., 4 and 2, in Wednesday's first round of match play.

And in the women's division, defending champion Cathy Gaughan of Eugene, Ore., ran into some trouble on the back nine to lose on the 19th hole to Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver.

MEDALISTS WIN

While the defending champions were being knocked out, both medalists managed to avoid the proverbial jinx on the opening round.

Jim Maclean of Seattle had to go to the 20th hole before getting past Doug Bajus of Vancouver while Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver scored a steady 1 and 2 victory over Sue Devoe of Medford, Ore.

Victoria's Bill McColl went out in the first round, losing to Peter Bentley of Vancouver on the 14th hole at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

Not only did the league-leading Couquillan A dancas come to battle without scoring stars Mike Gates and John Allen, they had to start rookie Terry Garrett in goal and probably turned in their poorest performance of the season.

MADE NO MATTER

It made no matter. The Shamrocks were in the running for no more than 12 minutes and the eventual of the defeat, this time by 2-1, was obvious from the time Bill Bradley and Wayne Spooner scored 17 seconds apart to break a 2-2 tie.

It was 6-2 at the end of the first period, and Shamrocks made no serious threat in the remainder of one of the year's duller games.

They had their chances. Looking anything but like a club which started the game 12-1, Adanacs gave the ball away time and again with wild shooting, lost 19 of the 32 faceoffs and were generally dull.

But they never looked like possible losers. Shamrocks weren't moving, left everything up to the man in possession when they had the ball and ing rapidly in archery and hopes to capture the junior girls' title in the Canadians.

Sister Wanda, 14, holds indoor records for the Island senior instinctive (bare bow) and B.C. junior girls' instinctive events.

Miss Allan, who earned the money to go to the meet by berry picking, won the clout shot in the Pacific Northwest tournament in Langview last year and placed third in the freestyle, despite using the bare bow.

Mrs. Jones, ladies' freestyle titlist in the Island meet and holder of several records, and the Allans were all within striking range of the Canadian event marks in the practice.

Coffey Shines In Ti-Cat Win

EDMONTON — A 42-yard field goal by Tommy Joe Coffey, his fourth of the night, midway through the final quarter gave Hamilton Tiger-Cats a 22-21 win over Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Eskimos still had a chance to snatch the victory, before 12,500 fans, but a fumble by quarterback Dave Coleman snuffed out the last threat.

STRUCK QUICKLY

Ti-Cats struck quickly with Joe Zuger hitting halfback Ed Buchanan for an 85-yard pass run touchdown after just 32 seconds of play but it was passing while Coleman and Fulen completed 26 of 37.

Edmonton made two interceptions.

Hamilton's Willie Bethes topped the running with a 10.7 yard average on four carries.

Pinky Clements with six carries for 27 yards and Jim Thomas with 25 yards in eight carries led the Eskimos ground attack.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — "It isn't because former prime minister John Diefenbaker has softened on the official languages bill that he didn't vote against it."

His opposition is "as strong today as it always was," he said in an interview Wednesday.

He explained that the House had planned to recess at the end of June. He had made speaking engagements for July. So when the bill came up for third reading this week, he was not in the House.

The bill "will divide the country and cannot be justified in that it will result in every person except those of English or French origin being made second-class citizens."

Diefenbaker said the bill amends the constitution and "this is a dangerous step as it renders the Canadian constitution a pawn in the hands of a government with a majority."

TV Man Slapped

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal member of Parliament Wednesday slapped a free-lance TV sound technician outside the Commons chamber, the Canadian Contemporary News System reported.

In a news broadcast on CFRA Radio, reporter Arthur Lewis of the CCNS said the incident involved Viateur Ethier, member for Glengarry-Prescott, and Jim Primrose, a free-lance operator attached to the CBC-TV parliamentary crew.

The report said Ethier was leaving the Commons chamber when he spoke to Primrose in French. Primrose replied that he was sorry but he didn't speak French.

The radio report said Ethier persisted and spoke again in French and Primrose again replied he was not French-speaking.

Ethier then remarked that Canada was a bilingual country to which Primrose replied: "Is it?" The slapping incident followed.

Douglas Blasts Time Limits:

Grits Caught in Web of Duplicity

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's credibility has been destroyed by the introduction of proposed rules to set time limits on House debates, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas told the Commons Wednesday.

The prime minister claimed he really did not want a time-limit rule for debates when proposals for time allocation first were discussed last December, Mr. Douglas said.

'NOT SERIOUS'
Trudeau had suggested the government was not really serious when it introduced a debate-limiting measure then, the NDP leader said. Trudeau had said later, after the measure was withdrawn, that it had been a decoy, designed to draw opposition fire away from other proposed rule changes which were put into effect Jan. 14.

Speaking in the second day of debate on three time-allocation rules recommended by the Commons procedure and organization committee, Mr. Douglas said the government has been caught in a web of duplicity and subterfuge.

The first rule suggested by the committee, T5A, would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation. The second, rule T5B, would provide for allocation when three of the four parties in the House agree. The third, rule T5C, would give the government power to limit debate without agreement from any other party.

Mr. Douglas said the Opposition is satisfied with T5A and 75B and that these rules would mean more order in handling House business.

But T5C, he said, exposes the government "in a blatant attempt to muzzle Parliament and downgrade the rights of its members."

Mr. Douglas said the argument by the government that it needed the time-limit rule because of protracted debates by the Opposition is not true.

ONLY ONE
"The only legislation that had extended debate was the Criminal Code amendments, a very important bill which required much examination," he said there had been no

With new CAREFREE Tampons, you can go anywhere and stay out longer. Read below and find out how it's made possible.

Johnson & Johnson introduces CAREFREE* Tampons — a new concept in sanitary protection.

CAREFREE is an entirely new kind of tampon—much smaller than any tampon ever made, yet amazingly, it protects up to 3 hours longer.

Johnson & Johnson has developed CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. CAREFREE is, in fact, safe for up to 3 hours longer than any other tampon.

Another remarkable feature of the CAREFREE Tampon is that it is truly disposable. No more rigid cardboard tube to get rid of. CAREFREE comes without an applicator because it doesn't need one. There's just a neat, compact tampon in a cellophane wrapper.

What are other women doing about sanitary protection?

According to research studies conducted in Canada, the use of tampons is growing rapidly. Their use is widely accepted, particularly among the younger, more sophisticated women. In this group, the majority of women use tampons.

Most women think that tampons are indeed a good idea. But they worry about the reliability of present products, particularly when it comes to using them during the critical period. (Some women are so concerned that they use both tampons and napkins.) But such precautions are completely unnecessary with new CAREFREE Tampons.

*Trademark of JOHNSON & JOHNSON or Affiliated Companies

Higher absorbency

CAREFREE Tampons' greater absorbency results from a unique quality. While the traditional tampon expands lengthwise, the CAREFREE Tampon expands, logically enough, in width—as the flow requires. This gentle expansion causes the tampon to mould itself to the body contours so it's accident-proof.

Exhaustive clinical tests and actual use among 3,720 women have proven that CAREFREE Tampons can be worn, with complete assurance, even during days when the flow is heaviest.

New CAREFREE Tampons are truly disposable

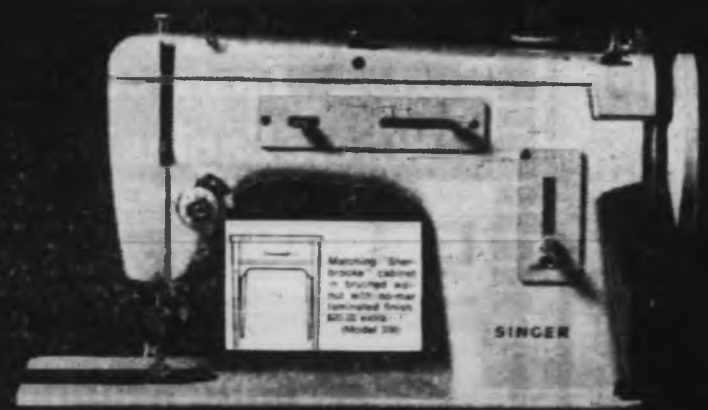

The cumbersome applicator that you get with ordinary tampons is a thing of the past. CAREFREE doesn't need one. It is compact, smooth and firm enough to be inserted easily without one. And this makes CAREFREE a truly disposable tampon.

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon there is—so small you can hide one in the palm of your hand. So small you can even put a dozen of them in your most fashionable bag and still have room for all that you usually carry. (A whole box of CAREFREE Tampons takes up no more room than a small pack of cigarettes.)

Once they've tried CAREFREE Tampons women are quick to recognize their many great advantages. They're the only significant improvement in sanitary protection in years.

Turnout Bigger Than for Johnson

Hippies Mourn 'Folk Hero'

QUEBEC (CP) — Andre Lachance, 24-year-old, long-haired, and motorcycle gang member, was burned Wednesday in the fashion of a folk hero.

The event attracted more than 3,000 people, many of whom had never heard of Lachance until he was killed in a traffic accident Saturday.

HIS FUNERAL

The turnout was bigger than for the funeral of the late premier Daniel Johnson last year.

The service for Lachance, known as "President Pat" of the local Hell's Hounds club, was held at the Roman Catholic church in the poor people's parish of St. Sauveur.

The street outside the church was so crowded several people had to climb atop roofs of nearby buildings. Mothers and fathers held small children above their shoulders.

Among the sights was a huge wreath in the form of a swastika placed on a flower car by a member of the club, biggest of the city's six motorcycle clubs with about 40 members.

FEW IN MOURNING

The only people in conventional mourning attire were the undertakers and members of the Lachance family. The others showed off the latest in underground fashion.

Hippie women painted like Easter eggs competed for attention with beer-drinking bike riders whose greasy blue denim costumes were decorated with the usual array of swastikas, iron crosses and medals.

During the funeral service the church was as busy as a railway station at rush hour. People walked in and out and up and down the aisles at leisure. The bike riders were up front.

The funeral cortege left the church with the pealing of church bells mingled with the sound of grumbling motorcycles. Estimates on the number of bikes ranged from 150 to 350.

Members of at least 15 motorcycle clubs were present, including the Rolling Ventures of Baie Comeau, The Conquerors of Chicoutimi, The Popeyes of Sorel and Devil's Disciples of Montreal.

The motorcycle people were in a snarly mood. The Hell's Hounds wouldn't answer questions about their leader who had died in a collision with an automobile.

At the time, Lachance was going to visit his wife in hospital where she had given birth to a baby girl, their first child, two days earlier.

Everywhere along the streets there was praise for "Pat." He was described as "a well-liked guy," "a good mechanic who gave away money he made on the waterfront."

He is reported to have earned as much as $12,000 a year on the waterfront.

Several hundred people, including custom car buffs with their beautiful women and beautiful cars, followed the cortege to a nearby cemetery.

After the burial the Hell's Hound members chased sightseers away from the grave, crying:

"Get out. Seen enough? Beat it. We want to be alone."

'Services Carry All Toxic Items'

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told the Commons Wednesday that test samples of materials for biological warfare are not shipped to Canadian research stations by commercial transport.

Cadieux said Canadian forces aircraft and vehicles are used in all movements of such toxic substances to test centres at Stirling Bay near Ottawa and Suffield, Alta.

He told David Lewis, the NDP deputy leader, that samples shipped have in each case been the equivalent of a tablespoonful and that all precautions, including special containers, are used.

The minister said shipments of the materials from the United States to the test centres were last undertaken in 1965. Canadian samples are moved only once or twice a year.

He said research and testing of materials for biological warfare conducted in Canada "are of a defensive nature only."

Benson Finds Going Tough In Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Edgar Benson has asked the Commons to give a loan priority to small businesses and to borrowers in areas in need of economic development.

Under questioning Wednesday in the Commons as to what action he might be taking to ease the credit squeeze, the finance minister reported briefly on his recent conference with the bankers.

U.S. ACTION

New Democratic leader Tommy Douglas wanted to know if he had followed the lead of U.S. Treasury Secretary David Kennedy in asking bankers to hold the line on interest rates by the use of "selective lending."

It was then he spoke of his special credit plan on behalf of small business and the "have-less" areas of the country.

He told Douglas he hadn't asked them the "impossible" of setting a limit on ceiling on interest "because so much depends on what happens in the United States," and whether here at home the government wins the "battle against inflation."

ANY ASSURANCE?

Had the finance minister been given "any assurance" from the bankers, pressed Douglas, that they would hold the line against any further increases from record high rates.

Benson answered by reminding the New Democrat the federal government, as perhaps Canada's biggest borrower, was "anxious" rates go no higher.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield accused the finance minister of avoiding straight answers to straight questions on the pretext that a Commons committee was investigating interest rates.

When the committee files its recommendations, he asked the finance minister, would the proposals be accepted?

TORY LEADER:

Denying he was "hiding behind the committee," Benson suggested the Conservative leader, if he wanted to know what was going on at the committee, read the evidence of Bank of Canada Governor Luis Rasminsky.

"I can assure the minister," snapped Stanfield, "that not only did I read the evidence of the governor, but also the evidence of the finance minister, and I am still rather confused."

Benson stopped the Conservative leader cold with the report: "I have not appeared before the committee."

HEES JOINS IN

Into the din jumped former Conservative trade minister George Hees to attempt taking a round out of the finance minister.

Governor Rasminsky had testified that consumer credit restrictions "probably would have been imposed in the past two years had the federal government power to do so," reported Hees, so was the finance minister intending to ask the provinces to help Ottawa secure such authority "to control inflation?"

NOT RIGHT NOW

"Not at this particular time," replied the finance minister, being pointedly careful not to say such a time might later come.

Then did the government intend completely disregarding this effective means of inflation control and do nothing about it?" bared in George Hees.

"No," Replied Benson, just as pointedly leaving his future options open.

LET 'EM KNOW

"Well then," shouted George Hees, his voice carrying above the howls and cat-calls from the government side of the House and the desk-pounding encouragement of his fellow Conservatives, "what in the world do you intend doing. For heaven's sake, let Parliament and the country know."

That ended the exchange.

Reports Delay Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — Supply Minister James Richardson told the Commons Wednesday the government did not hold back adjudication reports critical of the post office, which were made public July 4.

The reports were dated April 29 and May 15. When Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield questioned Communications Minister Eric Kierans on the delay Monday, Kierans said he was unable to explain it. He said questions should be directed to the public service staff relations board.

CLERICAL WORK

Richardson said Wednesday that the reports were received by the staff relations board June 16 and were made public July 4. He said the 13 working days, between those dates were spent in printing, proof-reading, reprinting, and distributing the reports.

He said this length of time is normal for such a job and there was no attempt to withhold the documents.

Foreign Bill $7,200,000

KELSEY WOODS CLOSED

● Busy signal at strike-split households.

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Wednesday announced closure of its Kelsey Bay Logging division as British Columbia's labor troubles crept into the woods.

A company spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said the division on Vancouver Island was shut down "until further notice" because of a persistent slowdown by employees.

The shutdown affects some 300 men.

The spokesman said at issue is the union's insistence that employees receive pay for the Dominion Day holiday "which they are not entitled to since they were engaged in another wildcat strike at that time."

"The slowdown has reduced production in recent days by about 40 per cent normal," the spokesman said. The company viewed it as "another form of wildcat strike."

He said the employees, members of the International Woodworkers of America, have so far this year staged nine "wildcat strikes" against company operations.

He said the company is prepared to talk to the union at any time "provided it receives an assurance from the union that employees are prepared to resume work in a normal manner."

Meanwhile Wednesday 6,800 employees of the British Columbia Telephone Co. announced they will increase strike activity.

WILL BE WIDENED

Bert Johns, general secretary of the union's plant division, said the strike will be "widened."

Mr. Johns said in a statement, "We are asking the B.C. Federation of Labor to declare 'hot' telephone conduit now being installed in commercial and industrial construction projects."

"Such a declaration would mean that no further telephone conduit would be installed until this strike is settled."

PRESIDENT BLAMED

Mr. Johns blamed J. Ernest Richardson, president of B.C. Tel. for making the action necessary. He said Mr. Richardson's "stubborn refusal to negotiate with the union" was partly responsible for the continuation of the strike.

Employees seek a 32 per cent wage increase over two years on present rates of $1.45 to $5.10 an hour. The company has endorsed a conciliation board recommendation for a 17 per cent hike.

Meanwhile, about 200 workers refused to cross picket lines.

Georgia Strait Coho Spared If Run Light

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Depending on the salmon run now just getting started, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis may close Georgia Strait to both commercial and sport fishermen. This was his explanation of an exchange that took place in the Commons Wednesday neither sport or commercial people. "If not, then we will have to widen the areas of prohibition around the south end of Vancouver Island."

Foll wing was the exchange between Davis and Douglas. "Nothing is decided yet," he insisted outside the House. "We'll have to play it like a piano, by ear."

"If the run is good and enough, fish can escape to the breeding grounds. Then perhaps there won't have to be any closing of the Strait to either sport or commercial people. "If not, then we will have to widen the areas of prohibition around the south end of Vancouver Island."

Foll wing was the exchange between Davis and Douglas. "Nothing is decided yet," he insisted outside the House. "We'll have to play it like a piano, by ear."

DAVIS: "This matter is under active consideration because of the concurrent demand by the sports fishermen, but I am not prepared at this moment to say what decision will ultimately be made."

DOUGLAS: "Is the minister considering applying any such closure to the sports fishermen or is it to be applied only to commercial fishermen?"

DAVIS: "Consideration will be given to both sides and to the claim of both parties."

Conservative fisheries critic Lloyd Crouse, a Maritimes MP, had another question about West Coast fishing.

CROUSE: "Has the minister any report to make on his recent visit to British Columbia and especially on his proposal that the Japanese be permitted to harvest dogfish in West Coast waters to protect our salmon from this predator?"

DAVIS: "The visitors from Japan are men from the technical level. They were not prepared to discuss policy, but we have some hope we can develop a trade with the Japanese in this surplus fish."

At this point, Newfoundland Conservative MP James McGrath used the dogfish to stick a gaff into B.C. Liberal Ray Perrault.

There have been strained feelings between the two who are near-deskmates.

"In view of the interest taken in fishing matters by the honorable member for Burnaby-Seymour," suggested McGrath, "would the minister consider changing the name of this fish from the humpback dogfish to the Burnaby cod?"

Everybody except Perrault guffawed at what was obviously an "in" joke with Parliament.

Boarding Blamed On Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States Coast Guard and fisheries officials Wednesday blamed a Canadian customs officer for the seven-hour detention of a Canadian fish boat June 26.

Robert Simpson, acting area director of fisheries at the U.S. bureau of commercial fisheries in Juneau, Alaska, said in a telephone interview that the 12-mile limit had nothing to do with the boarding.

He said the Canadian boat was boarded because

Moon Countdown Beginning Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the countdown set to start today, Apollo 11 astronauts Wednesday rehearsed how they will prepare to step on to the moon.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr., who hope to become the first men to stroll on the lunar surface, worked in a landing craft trainer learning how to put on their oxygen-filled backpacks.

As they labored, their Apollo 11 co-pilot, Michael Collins, worked in a command ship trainer practising what he will do circling the moon alone in the mother ship while his two colleagues explore below.

The three astronauts also met with experts from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reviewing computer navigation programs designed to steer Apollo 11 automatically on a perfect course to and from the moon and guide Armstrong and Aldrin to a precision landing on the surface July 20.

Dismissing problems that may arise with Apollo 11's complex 265-foot-tall Saturn V rocket and spacecraft combination, a space agency official said the "kind of accuracies we're dealing with are extremely precise" in navigation computer programs. For example, when the upper stage of the Saturn rocket ignites in earth orbit to fling Apollo 11 toward lunar orbit, "an uncertainty of just eight-tenths mile per hour could cause the spacecraft to impact the moon."

Munro said the question is under review but no decision has been reached on such a study.

The report, sponsored by the non-political Institute of Race Relations, is based on five years of study and research in Britain, which has absorbed more than 1,000,000 colored subjects from colonies and former colonies.

The report's most startling conclusion is that re-establishment of compulsory national service for Britain's young men to harness their energies is "well worth considering." The draft in Britain was discontinued in 1960.

Health Chief Praises Safety Record, Gains

'World Can't Afford DDT Ban'

POSTON (UPI) — The head of the World Health Organization said Wednesday the world cannot afford to outlaw DDT insecticides until economically feasible substitutes are found.

Director-General M. G. Candau acknowledged international concern over evidence that some insecticides harm certain wildlife species, but praised the 20-year record of DDT's safety to man.

Candau, a Brazilian, also urged W.H.O. members to keep the door open to all nations irrespective of politics or ideology.

He made his remarks in an address to W.H.O.'s 22nd annual health assembly to formally introduce his annual report on W.H.O. activities around the world.

Candau said "DDT has been instrumental in controlling some of the most important vector-borne diseases of man."

The concept of malaria eradication rests completely on its continued use.

He said DDT's "low cost makes it irreplaceable in public health at the present time. Limitations on its use would give rise to grave health problems in the majority of the developing countries."

The W.H.O. chief executive called for worldwide co-operation of all nations in health programs but acknowledged pressure to bring in non-member governments has slackened. That communist regimes of China, East Germany, North Vietnam and North Korea are the most conspicuous absentees.

"The movement towards universal membership of states has apparently abated but will undoubtedly revive, and at any moment," Candau said.

The Protestant Orphanage has changed its name to the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family, opened a day care centre for children and is ready to begin architectural planning of $1,500,000 worth of low-rental housing for single-parent and low-income families.

The program has been hailed as a potential showpiece of service to families.

The orphanage stands ready to receive an initial 15 children from needy families.

Intention of the expanded board of management is to provide an entire range of services for needy families — from houses to residential or day care, from recreation to emergency shelter.

Praise for the imagination shown in the development came from Family and Children's Service executive director Gordon Wright.

"This could well become a showplace for the entire continent, a unique project which will point the way for other developments," he said.

Charles Ellington, president of the centre, said some 15 families had already been housed in the orphanage since

Ellington

January, because of home emergencies.

"We hope to continue this service," he said.

The pilot day care unit will be expanded as space becomes available and the need becomes evident, he said.

He expects children and families will be referred by welfare agencies.

"As soon as an architect has been chosen, he can go ahead with his plans," said Mr. Ellington.

"We want as many rental units as possible, but we want to retain all the beauty of this land.

"We want the needy families to have the kind of surroundings other families have," he added.

There are 12 acres of land surrounding the big house on the hill at Cook and Hillside, secured in 1891 through a bequest of the late John Taylor.

"We expect to put in recreational facilities on a par with those at the YM-YWCA," Mr. Ellington said. "It will be a place the community will want to come into."

Mr. Ellington said he expected many of the women housed in the units would find a new way of life, and be able to become self-supporting once they had good housing and care for their children.

"We hope to provide a complete program of recreational, educational and social services for the residents and the neighboring communities."

"I would expect that some of the women would want to take over the care of some children, while others would go out to work."

"It is likely that the place would function as a complete community," he said.

Mr. Ellington said the new name honored the memory of the Bishop Edward Cridge, who founded the original Home for Orphans in the city in 1873.

"The ladies' auxiliary has become part of the expanded board of management and will help control policy and financing of the complex of family and children's services," he explained.

He pointed out that while the proposed development was expected to cost an initial $1,500,000, federal and provincial contributions would cover 50 per cent of the cost.

"The city of Victoria has said it will put up 5 per cent toward any such housing development," he said, "and we have the money for our share, so we are ready to go right ahead."

Mr. Ellington said there was a possibility that the present form of residential care would be phased out, and the home used as a group foster home.

"However, we haven't made final decision on these things yet," he said. "Our firm intention is to go right ahead with the low-rental housing units."

"We expect to build 100 at first, but the numbers are really up to the architects who will have to retain the present atmosphere of the grounds."

Mr. Ellington said that since the complex was working on a new concept, future plans for the centre were still tentative.

"We do hope to keep pace with the demand for services, and I would think there will be a counselling program for the women," he said.

Mr. Wright said he hoped the Family and Children's Service would be able to work closely with the new centre.

"Any facilities we have will be at their disposal, and we will give any help we can," he said.

Who's Managing Who?

Home-Front Lines Busy
As Issue Takes Toll

A member of the management team comes face-to-face with a striker.

Management: "Get out of bed and make my breakfast."

Striker: "Yes, dear."

This may not be exactly routine in a labor dispute, but the current B.C. Telephone Co. strike is producing a number of oddities.

To begin with, there are 6,600 people on strike and a good number happen to have wives, husbands, boyfriends, girlfriends and assorted relatives crossing their picket lines daily to man the phones for management.

In one case, a woman has been working an 84-hour week as a member of management while her husband has been walking the picket line.

On the second day of the strike, the woman fixed her husband with a household management look and told him that since she was working the longer shift, he should make her breakfast.

According to the woman, he did, without any argument.

Last week in Victoria, a man who is in management took his girlfriend, who is a striker, to a party.

The hostess said afterward not one angry word had been spoken.

Also in the Victoria area is a 64-year-old man who walks the picket line while his son crosses it to go to work.

"There doesn't seem to be any trouble because of all these things," a union spokesman said Wednesday night.

"But then, who knows what happens at home?"

There are, of course, other types of odd happenings.

A Victoria man who wanted a phone installed in a new house at the end of July could get nothing but a busy signal each time he phoned the company's downtown Victoria office.

Finally, he drove downtown in desperation and found that the phones used to answer installation orders had all been left off the hook.

It appeared that the load of calls had become too heavy for the management.

Phone Strikers Concerned
For Management

Striking B.C. Telephone Co. workers in Victoria accused the company Wednesday night of overworking its own management personnel to the point of endangering their health.

"It seems quite apparent that these supervisory people are forced to work 112-hour shifts, seven days a week, are definitely going to affect the health of these people," the statement said.

It said also: "Union leaders are not making demands, but are taking orders from the membership, which had decided on a strike by an 85 per cent majority vote. And contrary to company reference to paid union leaders, the six paid officials of the federation stopped drawing pay when the strike began."

St. Joseph's Looks Ahead

By PAT MURPHY

Without further delays, a new acute and extended-care St. Joseph's Hospital complex could be completed in five years, the chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital board said Wednesday.

However, Dr. Alex Wood thought that a more realistic schedule would see a 200-bed extended-care hospital ready in two years, the central building of a 640-bed acute-care institution ready in five, and the remaining sections of the main hospital completed in seven.

Dr. Wood, who was reporting on a presentation given Wednesday at a meeting of the regional hospital board advisory committee, declined to estimate the cost of the complex, but admitted that hospital construction ran at about $32,000 a bed.

FEASIBILITY REPORT

That would put the total cost upward of $26,000,000.

The presentation was made in the form of a feasibility report by Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners, St. Joseph's architects, for at least the first part of the building study.

Appointment of a permanent architectural firm awaits the formation of a public society which will operate the new St. Joseph's.

Constitution of the society is in the hands of Health Minister Ralph Lofmark, awaiting his approval.

STREET CLOSED

The preliminary plan presupposes the closure of Humboldt Street between Rupert and Blanshard and the extension of Belleville to Fairfield, through the property of the Sisters of St. Ann.

The plan also presupposes the use of the grounds now occupied by St. Ann's Academy.

Dr. Wood said Wednesday that the sisters had agreed to sell and that evaluators, appointed by the religious order and the hospital, were already making an assessment of the property.

RETAIN ACADEMY

A member of the hospital board, Michael Griffin, said the sisters wanted to leave the elementary school field, but retain their interest in the high school academy.

The proposed new hospital, to be built in several sections, would span the extension of Belleville Street with an aerial walkway, which would later be developed and built several storeys high for other uses if needed.

When completed, the several buildings of the new hospital would form a rough horseshoe bounded by Collinson and Rupert Streets, Beacon Hill Park boundary and Blanshard Street.

A big feature of the whole program, said Dr. Wood, would be that there would be no loss of bed use during construction. In fact, he added, there would be a steady gain over the five to seven years of construction.

A new unit would be built and an old one demolished, and this leapfrogging process would be continued throughout.

CRASH PROGRAM

In the interim, a crash program for more acute-care beds right now was being studied, said Dr. Wood.

By means of prefabricated buildings, or some other temporary structure, St. Joseph's hoped to be able to add 50 more beds in the 429 it now has in use.

Royal Jubilee Hospital hoped to come up with 50 more beds to meet the desperate need, Dr. Wood said, and other courses of action were being studied.

Skillings
Mending

Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings is in good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital following a fall in the Union Club about 5 p.m. Saturday. His son David said late Wednesday, that he was satisfied with his father's progress.

Will Victoria Youth Come and Take It?

Four of a Kind Offer a Hand

Jelly Beans For Peace was the name of a spur-of-the-moment movement that started in Centennial Square Wednesday, said the slim, blonde girl at the ironing board.

"Actually," Eve Hertzberg explained as she deftly ironed a minidress at the Cool-Aid house on Balmoral, "it was part of our welcome to Victoria and we loved it. Some of the kids in the square just came over to us and said 'Jelly beans for peace'."

The 18-year-old Quaker from Toronto is one of four young people who arrived Wednesday to spend six weeks in Victoria as members of S.O.S. Summer of Service volunteers.

"We wanted to do something to give a sense of purpose," said Eve, who is a second-year philosophy student at the University of Toronto.

She said the four had been invited here by Victoria Youth Council and were the temporary meal guests of Cool-Aid.

"But we won't be working with Cool-Aid," said Blaine

Duncan, 21, of Iroquois Falls, Ont., a United Church member. "Cool Aid has 300 kids working with them. They're great people but we want to reach the kids who aren't associated with them."

"The transients and the draft dodgers are being looked after by Cool-Aid but we want to get to know the young people in Victoria and do something for them," explained Susan Vickers, 18, of Toronto, an Anglican.

Bruce Mellott, 19, a United Church member from Oakville, Ont., said he worked with S.O.S. in Winnipeg last year. He became interested in the group when he was a member of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament.

S.O.S. is an interdenominational group organized by the Canadian Council of Churches in 1966 to send volunteer young people to Canadian communities to foster worthwhile projects among young residents.

The group is supported by the federal government and by the organizing churches.

In Victoria, the quartet is being housed at St. John's Anglican Church Memorial Hall and arrangements are being made for funds for food. The young people are not paid.

They plan to go wherever young people are and find out what they'd like to be doing. "First, what some of them have told us, there isn't much to do here," said Susan.

All four said they were anxious for "social involvement" and expected to get more out of their summer here than they put in.

"We're ready to give to the young people here and we hope they'll give something back for all of those involved," said Susan.

It looks as if Centennial Square will be their main headquarters for a while, said Eve.

That's where the young people are. We hope we can find out what they want. Maybe a coffee house. Maybe something else."

The quartet issued an invitation to all young people in the area to meet them in Centennial Square or to phone them at the Cool Aid number, 283-1951, and ask for S.O.S.

Colwood Man Killed
By Broken Mirror

A 22-year-old Colwood man bled to death Wednesday night after he put his arm through a full-length mirror in his bedroom.

Colwood RCMP identified the man as Robert Stewart Coulter, of 2179 Aylton. He was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital at 6 p.m., police said.

Police speculated he was probably standing in front of the mirror, which was the front door of a closet, and possibly removing a sock when he lost his balance and put his arm through the mirror. Broken glass severed an artery near the shoulder.

Mr. Coulter is survived by his wife and a daughter.

Owner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre has ordered an inquiry into the death.

Students Asked to Avoid High-Rate Ottawa Loans

The credit trap threatens university students who have no other source of funds but government loans. University of Victoria financial aid officer Neil Granewall warned Wednesday.

"A student who borrows the maximum of $1,000 over five years will have to repay $65 per month for 10 years at the current interest rate," said Mr. Granewall.

A couple of student teachers who borrowed $10,000 over five years, then married on graduation, would face payment of $130 a month for a decade.

THE MESSAGE

Mr. Granewall said he was giving prospective borrowers this message: "Borrow if you must, but pare your budget to the minimum."

As financial aid officer he administers the loan plan established by the federal government and administered by the province.

The plan was established in 1964 with an interest rate of 5½ per cent. The loans were (and remain) interest-free until after graduation.

SIX MONTHS

Six months after graduation, a borrower must begin repayment.

Last year the interest rate was increased to 8½ per cent and regulations tightened to reduce borrowing.

Mr. Granewall said Wednesday that 1,400 students applied last year and about 1,100 were granted loans. The students borrowed a total of $756,000, which was down $20,000 from the previous year although enrollment rose by 700.

LENGTHY TEST

The 1963-70 government application form includes a lengthy means test for both student and his parents.

A variety of scholarships and bursaries for needy students also is available.

SECOND CLASS

Second-class marks — between 70 and 80 per cent — are worth a government scholarship varying from one-half to one-third of tuition.

Students in need may apply for a provincial bursary, which varies from $120 to $400, with the average at $177. Last year, the government granted bursaries to 3,539 students for a total of $694,050.

At the University of Victoria, 520 students got $94,500 in bursaries.

The University of Victoria estimates that a single student from outside Victoria will require between $1,500 and $1,800 for eight months on campus.
